

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Monday, November 29, 1982

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.
The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Gracious God, from whom comes every good gift, bless, we pray, all those who work for righteousness and good will among people. We especially remember those who labor in this place that their efforts will give direction to the common good and confidence and security to the people of this Nation. Teach all of us to know the paths of truth and honor that ought be the standards of those who call upon You, that with diligence and resolve we will do those things that bring justice and mercy upon our land and allow us to be the people You would have us be. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

APPOINTMENT AS MEMBERS OF U.S. GROUP OF NORTH ATLANTIC ASSEMBLY

The SPEAKER. The Speaker desires to announce that, pursuant to the order of the House of October 1, 1982, empowering him to accept resignations, and to appoint commissions, boards, and committees authorized by law or by the House, he did, on November 10, pursuant to the provisions of section 1, Public Law 689, 84th Congress, as amended, appoint as members of the U.S. group of the North Atlantic Assembly to be held November 14-19, 1982, in London, England, the following Members on the part of the House:

Mr. PHILLIP BURTON of California, chairman;

Mr. HAMILTON of Indiana, vice chairman;

Mr. BROOKS of Texas;

Mr. ROSE of North Carolina;

Ms. OAKAR of Ohio;

Mr. GARCIA of New York;

Mr. ROSENTHAL of New York;

Mr. STARK of California;

Mr. BROOMFIELD of Michigan;

Mr. WHITEHURST of Virginia;

Mr. BADHAM of California; and

Mr. ROTH of Wisconsin.

CONGRESS MUST ADMIT TO GRAVITY OF NATION'S PROBLEMS AND DEMONSTRATE A SPIRIT OF COOPERATION

(Mr. WRIGHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, we meet in unusual circumstances. It is a time of severe economic distress unprecedented in the past 40 years. More than 13 million Americans are out of work and more than 6 million others who need full-time employment are working part time. Nearly one-third of our industrial capacity lies idle.

In the national elections earlier this month, the American people made it clear that they expect Congress to act. The time available to us in this post-election session is short. We cannot hope to do all or even most of the things necessary to stimulate a lasting recovery. But we can at least arrest the downward drift of the stagnant economy.

Our first task must be to move people off the unemployment rolls and onto productive payrolls. We can begin the renewal of our highways and bridges, and the rest of the Nation's deteriorating infrastructure. We must reassert the will of Congress to direct the Federal Reserve Board to return to a sustained and steady policy of affordable interest rates without which no lasting economic recovery will be possible.

We can make a beginning on each of these necessities in the short days that lie before us, Mr. Speaker, if we can inspire among us a spirit of cooperation sufficient to subdue the temptations to petty confrontation. We shall not agree on everything, but we owe it to the public to admit the gravity of the Nation's problems and confront them frankly. Such a spirit has predominated at times in our Nation's past. May we strive to engender that constructive spirit in the few days that remain to us this year.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

NOVEMBER 29, 1982.

Hon. THOMAS P. O'NEILL, Jr.,
The Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, I have the honor to transmit a sealed envelope from The White House, received in the Clerk's Office at 4:00 p.m. on Friday, October 15, 1982 and said to contain H.R. 1371, an Act to amend section 12 of the Contract Disputes Act of 1978, and a veto message thereon.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely,

EDMUND L. HENSHAW, Jr.,
Clerk, House of Representatives.

CONTRACT DISPUTES ACT OF 1978 AMENDMENTS—VETO MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 97-253)

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following veto message from the President of the United States:

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning without my approval H.R. 1371, a bill "To amend section 12 of the Contract Disputes Act of 1978."

H.R. 1371 would require the Federal Government to pay interest to contractors on claims in excess of $50,000 without regard to the date the claims are certified, as now required by section 6(c) of the Contract Disputes Act. The bill would also require the Secretary of the Treasury to determine interest rates to be paid contractors, taking into account the rates of interest on current commercial loans maturing in approximately 5 years.

The payment of interest by the Government on contractual claims has a long history. Traditionally, the Government's sovereign immunity has barred interest payments unless the terms of a specific statute or contract required it. Among other reforms suggested by the Commission on Government Procurement in 1972 was a recommendation that the Federal Government pay interest on contractual claims. As a result of this recommendation, Congress passed the Contract Disputes Act of 1978.

I have no objection to the language in H.R. 1371 concerning the way in which interest rates on contractual claims against the Government are determined. I strongly object, however, to other language in the bill that would amend the Contract Disputes Act to require that interest on a claim run from the time a claim is submitted without regard to the date of certification of the contractor's claim. This provision is inconsistent with the purpose of the certification requirement of the Contract Disputes Act. That requirement is intended to discourage the submission of inflated claims against the Government by requiring contractors to certify that their claims are made in good faith and are accurate and complete to the best of their knowledge.

By permitting interest to run from the date a claim is submitted, instead of from the date of certification, as current law provides, H.R. 1371 could result in a large increase in Governmental obligations without any corresponding benefit to the claims resolution process so carefully established in the Contract Disputes Act. For this reason, and considering that there have been no hearings or studies conducted addressing the need for such a substantial departure from existing law, I find the bill unacceptable.

RONALD REAGAN.

THE WHITE HOUSE, October 15, 1982.

□ 1215

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WRIGHT). The objections of the President will be spread at large upon the Journal, and the message and bill will be printed as a House document.

Mr. SAM B. HALL, JR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the veto message of the President, together with the accompanying bill, H.R. 1371, be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

This has been cleared with the minority.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

MORE UNEMPLOYED CITIZENS TODAY THAN TOTAL CITIZENS WHEN NATION WAS FOUNDED OVER 200 YEARS AGO

(Mr. BLANCHARD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BLANCHARD. Mr. Speaker, there are more unemployed citizens in our country today than there were total citizens in America when our Nation was founded over 200 years ago.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, there are three times as many people out of work here in America than there were people at the time of the birth of our Nation.

Action to put our people back to work is long overdue. Many parts of our country have been living with a serious recession for several years. In Michigan we have more unemployed people than some States have people. We have more unemployed people than there are people in Vermont, Alaska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Delaware, and Wyoming.

And the Federal Government must act to begin to address this problem now.

One way is to promptly enact comprehensive public works and construction legislation during the remaining days of this session to begin to rebuild America's aging infrastructure and put our people back to work.

The need is clear. America's public facilities are wearing out and the cost of repairing them grows by the day, and it grows with our neglect. Failure to repair and maintain our roads, bridges, sewer and water systems, and other aging public facilities threatens our public health and safety, erodes our quality of life, and cripples our economic development.

Someday we will have to face up to this problem, why not now, when we so desperately need to put American men and women back to work?

Past testimony before the Economic Stabilization Subcommittee which I am privileged to chair, documents the erosion of America's public facilities. For example, one out of every five bridges in our country requires major rehabilitation or total reconstruction; 1 out of every 4 miles of our Interstate Highway System requires replacement.

In Michigan there is urgent need for infrastructure improvements in every corner of our State. I have in my hand a lengthy list of important projects, already on the drawing boards, but there are no funds to get these projects going. Whether it is water supply improvement in Menominee, sewer repairs in Ferndale, or bridge repairs in Wayne County, there is much work to be done. In surveying just 5 of the 13 cities I represent, we came up with 27 projects worthy of funding.

Even here in Washington, D.C., over half of the city's water mains need replacement.

The fact is that America's public works investment has dropped 28 percent in the past 15 years. Is it any wonder why we are on our way to being a second-rate economic power with such a lack of investment?

It is time for action. All the sophisticated weaponry we can develop and produce will not save us from ourselves, will not protect and preserve our country if we neglect our communities and our people in distress.

I urge my colleagues to enact a comprehensive public works and construction program that is fair, workable, and targeted where it is needed most. It is time to begin investing in our future. Let us get on with the job.

NATURAL GAS PRICE INCREASES: PEOPLE CANNOT TAKE IT ANY MORE

(Mr. GLICKMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GLICKMAN. Mr. Speaker, as it gets colder, more and more we will see people across the country faced with the choice of "heat or eat." Why? Because their natural gas bills are literally going through the ceiling in spite of surplus supplies. Over just the last year, rates have gone up an average of 25 percent.

This situation is intolerable, and it is one that we have to deal with quickly. To that end, I am introducing two bills today which I urge all of you to support.

My first bill would roll back gas prices to their October 1 levels and freeze them there through the end of 1984. That would give us the time we need to review the Natural Gas Policy Act and to make needed changes while protecting consumers in the meantime.

The second bill would strike down take or pay clauses now in effect and prohibit such clauses in new contracts. Take or pay provisions in contracts have locked pipelines into purchasing large amounts of costly new and decontrolled gas while lower priced old gas is left sitting in the ground. They are throwing the market way out of balance. Under the bill certain present take or pay provisions could be reinstated after FERC review if they are found to be necessary to prevent disruption of underlying financial agreements and if they would not lead to unreasonable consumer prices.

Mr. Speaker, I keep hearing this issue is too complicated for consideration in the lameduck session. How do you tell a working family whose gas bills are skyrocketing while the thermometers are plummeting that we do not have time to deal with the problem now?

THE LATE GRADY NUTT, "PRIME MINISTER OF HUMOR"

(Mr. HIGHTOWER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HIGHTOWER. Mr. Speaker, he was introduced as the "Prime Minister of Humor." Grady Nutt was an ordained Baptist minister whose unique ministry of humor made him one of the most popular of entertainers.

Grady Nutt, who appeared regularly on the "Hee Haw" television show, was killed November 23 when a plane crashed after taking off from a Vine-mont, Ala., airport.

Grady Nutt was a native of Amarillo, Tex., in my district, where he lived until he was 14 years old. He attended Wayland Baptist University before graduating from Baylor University and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

His stories about church and preachers endeared him to the hearts of millions. "Hee Haw" cohost Buck Owens described Nutt as an original whose brand of humor cannot be replaced.

In a 1980 interview Grady Nutt said:

Only the most foolish people think that if I have faith in God I'll never face any calamity. The healthy ones realize that with God I can face any calamity.

We thank God for the life and witness of Grady Nutt. He is survived by his wife, the former Eleanor Wilson of Lyndon, Ky., and two sons, Perry, 24, and Toby, 22.

Mr. MAZZOLI. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HIGHTOWER. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. MAZZOLI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for taking the time to mention our friend, Grady Nutt. He lived in my congressional district at the time of his death. He was a very fine man, and a respected ordained minister. We will miss him very much in Kentucky.

MRS. TRUMAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KILDEE). The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) who is about to speak about someone well known in this country, and well loved by everyone in this country.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, while Congress was in recess prior to the 1982 general election, we were all saddened by the death of former First Lady Bess Truman, who passed away on Monday, October 18, 1982, in Independence, Mo., at the age of 97.

Mrs. Truman was one of the most loved and respected First Ladies in our Nation's history. A gracious lady, with a wonderful sense of humor, dignity, and a quiet pride, she embodied qualities and values treasured by all Americans.

So that our colleagues here in the House might have the chance to pay tribute to Mrs. Truman, and express their sympathies to the members of the Truman family, I have arranged for a special order to take place at the close of business on Wednesday, December 8, 1982.

Mr. Speaker, I invite all Members of the House to join me at that time in honoring this great lady, on behalf of themselves and their constituents.

Mrs. Truman will be missed—but her long, full life will continue to serve as an inspiration to us all.

LET US NOT UNDERMINE AMERICA'S STRENGTH

(Mr. STRATTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Speaker, last week the chairman and members of the House Armed Services Committee returned from a 10-day trip to Europe designed to get a first-hand assessment of the state of our NATO Alliance, as well as the progress of the nuclear arms reductions talks in Geneva.

We met with the members of the North Atlantic Assembly in London; with members of the new West German Government and with opposition leaders in Bonn and in Berlin; and with our own nuclear arms negotiators in Geneva, Ambassadors Nitze and Rowny.

Three key points were made most forcefully to our committee, which I believe should be shared with this House as we begin work on the crucial appropriation bills for fiscal 1983.

First. Any action by this Congress to withdraw any U.S. forces from Europe, a move already underway in the other body, would seriously undermine the North Atlantic Alliance and undercut the new Federal German Government in Bonn, which has emphatically pledged itself to close cooperation with the United States and has vigorously reaffirmed its commitment to carrying forward the two-track decision of the zero option INF negotiations in Geneva, at the same time preparing for installing the U.S. Pershing II missile on its territory if those negotiations should fail.

Second. Any action of the U.S. Congress to deny or delay the planned positioning of the Pershing II in Germany in accord with the earlier NATO decision will also gravely undermine our relations with the current German Government, and seriously weaken the entire NATO Alliance. To cut out funds now for the Pershing while months still remain to correct any current technical flaws in the weapons, would be shortsighted in the extreme.

Third. Any failure on the part of this remaining session of the 97th Congress to provide funds for the MX-Peacekeeper weapon, will, as Secretary Weinberger said yesterday on television, virtually wipe out the strategic nuclear reduction talks now underway in Geneva. If Congress, by its failure to fund MX, publicly demonstrates its unwillingness to counterbalance recent Soviet strategic missile capabilities, the Soviet negotiators would no longer have any incentive to agree to the substantial strategic reductions contained in the U.S. proposal, on which, by the way, our negotiators gave us their judgment the Soviets were currently involved in serious negotiations.

Whatever may have been the lesson of the November 2 elections, and whatever the predilections of individual Members of this House might be on the three key issues, I urge my colleagues not to cast your votes in this lameduck session without having fully pondered the long-range implications of your action on the future security and foreign policy of the United States.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S WEAK ECONOMIC POLICIES

(Mr. ALEXANDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker, during the election recess, debate among candidates focused attention on the administration's economic policies: Its hollow promises to balance the Federal budget; its reckless tax cuts; its insensitive reductions in Government programs for the needy; its reversal to raise taxes; and, its record deficits.

The American people discovered that the Reagan administration had no coherent economic policy. So, it was on November 2 that the voters said "No" to Reaganomics.

We are fortunate to have the advantage of this postelection session to begin the job of repairing the damage that this administration has done to our economy. Let us begin today to put America back to work.

THIS IS STILL THE REGULAR 2D SESSION OF THE 97TH CONGRESS

(Mr. JACOBS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JACOBS. Mr. Speaker, in this day of inexact English usage, let the record show that this is not a special session of the 97th Congress. It is not a special session called by President Reagan. It is not even in the strictest sense of the traditional vernacular the "lameduck" session of the 97th Congress. It is the regular 2d session of the 97th Congress during which the election intervened.

REPORT ON SOCIAL SECURITY

(Mr. CONABLE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to announce that at the close of business today I am going to take an hour to talk about the social security situation.

It is my opinion, Mr. Speaker, that the leadership is making a mistake in not using the Commission which has now adjourned its meeting until December 10 to try to achieve a permanent solution, both short-term and long-term, to the social security dilemma now facing us.

We know that has been the subject of sensitive political rhetoric in recent months, but it seems to me that it would be very wise for the Congress to try to get this issue behind us. The Commission is a valuable tool for achieving that end.

It is obvious that the President and the Speaker must be parties to the negotiations within the Commission, but we all know what has to be done.

I would like to give a report to the Congress on the most recent meeting of the Commission and the prospects for resolution of the problem. Social security is a bad issue to give new Members of Congress to teethe on next spring. In a budget context next spring it will be very difficult to handle, but during a lameduck session—if it is not too late to change our minds about that—it could be possible to achieve the permanent solution that would make us all heroes as we go to our respective political rewards with the end of the 97th Congress.

REPEAL THE DAIRY DEDUCTION

(Mr. GUNDERSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUNDERSON. Mr. Speaker, last August Congress approved a 50-cent deduction from the price support for milk in the belief that the deduction would result in reduced Commodity Credit Corporation purchases of dairy products.

At that time, several Members, including myself, warned that a reduction in dairy price supports would increase, not decrease, milk production.

Projections recently released by the USDA confirm this prediction as the CCC is expected to purchase 13.9 billion pounds—milk equivalent—of dairy products in the current fiscal year—300 million pounds more than last year.

The only thing the 50-cent deduction will do is force some fine young and family dairy farmers out of business. While we cannot prevent the deduction from being implemented on December 1, Congress can make sure that it is short lived.

Clearly, we need to do two things. First, I am today introducing a bill that would repeal the deduction and keep the level of dairy price supports at $13.10 per hundredweight. Second, we must develop and pass a more comprehensive solution to the problems facing the dairy price support program early in the next Congress.

I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this legislation essential to the survival of family dairy farms.

LET US RETAIN THE CAP ON CONGRESSIONAL PAY

(Mr. PETRI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Speaker, I rise to state my complete and absolute opposition to the outrageous congressional pay raise which is scheduled to go into effect on December 18.

Certainly, I see nothing wrong with compensating Government workers for inflation, but the scheduled 27 percent, $17,000 congressional pay raise is clearly excessive.

I do not know about your districts, but in the Sixth District of Wisconsin, $17,000 is a lot of money. Many of my constituents would be happy to be earning $17,000, much less getting a $17,000 raise.

When people are hurting in Wisconsin and all across the country due to the current economic climate, it is unconscionable that Congress should seek to reward itself in this manner.

Accordingly, I intend to work to maintain the cap on congressional pay. This is not the time for feathering our own congressional nests.

FREEZE CONGRESSIONAL SALARIES

(Mr. SMITH of Oregon asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, we all know that leadership should begin at the top.

Now it is time to put our money where our mouths are.

Today I am introducing a bill that would freeze congressional salaries at the present level.

For many months I have been advocating a total freeze on Federal spending to balance the budget. This pay freeze bill is really no different.

It simply says we will take no more, and no less than we are right now.

If we do not act by December 17, Members of Congress will get a raise between $2,426 and $16,637.

How fair is that?

How the devil can we even consider raising our own salaries at a time when millions of Americans are out of work and many more are accepting wage cuts just to stay employed.

We simply cannot. Leadership begins right here.

I for one am not going home to the unemployed in Oregon to justify a pay raise because Congress cannot put a lid on Federal spending.

That is not my idea of a Christmas present.

I urge every responsible Member to join me in supporting this pay freeze bill.

If we are really serious about restoring fiscal sanity we can start by freezing our salaries right where they are.

WADING THROUGH THE RHETORIC

(Mr. GOODLING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I am amazed and confused by the rhetoric I hear from many of my colleagues when they tell me what the people were saying in the last election.

Now, if my colleagues want to see what the people were saying in the last election, when you have a national election right after a redistricting, we have to look at the Senate. Of course, everything stayed the same in the Senate.

Now, if we must look at the House, I would suggest Members look at two of my dear friends, one a moderate Republican from New York, an incumbent, who ran against a Democrat from New York, an incumbent, who put more rhetoric in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the last 2 years against the President's program than any other Member of Congress.

Now, what was the public saying in that election since the moderate Republican won?

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE CRAIG HOSMER, FORMER MEMBER OF THE HOUSE

(Mr. LUNGREN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LUNGREN. Mr. Speaker, it is my sad duty to announce to the House of Representatives the passing away last month of Craig Hosmer, who served 22 years of distinction as a Member of this Chamber.

At the time of his retirement from Congress in 1974, Representative Hosmer served as ranking minority member of the Interior Committee and on the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy. In addition for being known for his dry humor in the Halls of the Capitol, Representative Hosmer was considered one of the leading authorities in Congress on water resources and nuclear power. He was also one of the principal architects of the Colorado River Basin project, which allocates water to California and other Southwestern States.

A native of Orange County in California, Congressman Hosmer was first elected in 1952 and was reelected 10 times, by as much as 70 percent, to represent many of the cities from Long Beach through Huntington Beach, which I currently have the privilege of representing.

On Tuesday, December 7 I will be sponsoring a special order in Craig Hosmer's honor, and would like to invite the participation of those Members interested in commemorating Representative Hosmer's service in the Congress.

TRIBUTE TO DEPARTING MEMBERS OF ILLINOIS DELEGATION

(Mr. MICHEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MICHEL. Mr. Speaker, I want to announce to the House that I intend later in the day to request a special order for tomorrow, hopefully to be joined in by my colleague, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. ERLBORN), to pay special, appropriate tribute to the four Members of our Illinois delegation who will not be back in the 98th Congress: Ed DERWINSKI, Bob McCLODY, PAUL FINDLEY, and TOM RAILSBACK.

I suspect that as the session draws to a conclusion, there will be other special orders requested for similar purposes. I would encourage Members to schedule those orders as early as possible, so that we can avoid having them pile up during the last couple of days we are in session, when the press of business is normally the greatest.

Again, that will be tomorrow for the four Members of whom we made mention.

NATIONAL POLICY FOR DISPOSAL OF NUCLEAR WASTES

(Mr. ROTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROTH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to urge this body to carefully consider legislation that will establish a national policy for disposal of nuclear wastes.

In particular, I want to urge my colleagues to give their support to the provision that requires that both Houses of Congress vote in the affirmative before the decision of a State Governor can be overridden. Every major organization representing the States—National Governor's Association, National Conference of State Legislatures, and State Planning Council—have endorsed the two-House procedure.

This process assures that all concerned parties will have a role to play in the decisionmaking process. It establishes a system of checks and balances so that the President, Congress, Governor, and State legislature will all be fully involved. It is a good procedure, and merits our support.

PROPOSED AGENDA FOR THE LAMEDUCK SESSION

(Mr. LOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Speaker, first, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate all of my colleagues who successfully sought reelection this past month, and to offer my personal best wishes to those who will not be returning to the 98th Congress.

In the meantime, however, the so-called lameduck session of the 97th Congress has now begun.

Despite all the rhetoric which has flowed during and since the campaign season, it is my firm belief that the majority of Americans expect the Congress to exercise the kind of fiscal restraint which will be necessary to limit the growth in Federal spending and reduce future deficits. We will have that opportunity during the next 3 weeks, as the House will begin consideration of the several remaining appropriations bills.

It appears likely that the Congress will do little more, however. Nowhere on the current schedule prepared by the Democratic leadership is the regulatory reform bill. Also missing are action on the Caribbean Basin and enterprise zones initiatives, immigration reform, and a host of other legislation which has been logjammed for months by the Democratic leadership.

Without action on these important measures, and if it follows historical precedent, the current "lameduck" session could very well end up being a "turkey."

CONCERN OVER A NUCLEAR CONFRONTATION

(Mr. WEISS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, a week ago when the President addressed the Nation in a speech which will be remembered for its Orwellian renaming of the MX missile, the most awesomely destructive device projected in the history of mankind as the peacekeeper, he expressed some concern at what he noted was the fear in letters and communications he received from the children of this country concerning a possible nuclear war.

In essence, he told the American people in essence that the children should not be subjected to that kind of fear; that they need not worry because he was taking care of things.

Mr. Speaker, I have had occasion during this break to address schoolchildren of various age groups throughout my district, and, in truth the children are worried. They are worried because their parents are worried. Indeed, all of America is deeply concerned about the direction in which this administration is taking us toward increased nuclear confrontation.

Mr. Speaker, there will soon come a time for the membership of this body in the early days of the new Congress, to say no to the MX. That will be the best and most effective way to begin to erase some of the fears of the children of America.

Mr. DAN DANIEL. Mr. Speaker, this Member recently returned from an overseas mission which was the most rewarding of any I have undertaken since I have been a Member of this body. I visited with the 6th Fleet, our troops in Lebanon and Sicily, and then went on to the Pacific, with stops in Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Okinawa, and Guam.

In the Mediterranean, I was especially encouraged by the enthusiasm of our forces, and by the Navy-Marine Corps teamwork both in the landing of the Marines in Lebanon and in the continuing operation.

My optimism is somewhat dimmed by the continuing shortfalls in equipment and spare parts, and unacceptable length of time it takes to get essential items to the fleet. The men out there are doing the job they were sent to do despite these shortfalls. But, it is because of their ingenuity, their "can do" spirit, that the mission has been successful thus far.

In the Western Pacific, my purpose was to assess the state of our military readiness and observe firsthand the living conditions and quality of life programs provided our military personnel, particularly those stationed along the demilitarized zone and other remote, and isolated sites.

I want to report to the Members that the quality of the people serving in our armed services today far surpasses anything that I found on my last trip just 2 years ago. I think that comes about for three reasons. No. 1, of course, is that we are getting a better type recruit now. No. 2, is the emphasis that has been put on people programs and leadership training.

The third thing I was impressed with is that we are now beginning to reap dividends from those extra dollars that we have been authorizing and appropriating for operation and maintenance.

There is no question that improvements are heavily attributable to additional funding over the past 2 years. Here as elsewhere the key to increased readiness is the quality, dedication, professionalism and high morale of our military personnel. It makes no difference how sophisticated or effective our weapon systems are if we do not have qualified and properly motivated people to operate them.

Serious deficiencies remain. We do not have adequate training facilities, ammunition, flying hours, or steaming days to maintain proficiency levels. There is also a shortage of funding for joint exercises needed to improve coordination between the services and allied forces. Finally, the material readiness of critical communications and support equipment continues to be a problem due to the lack of spare parts and trained maintenance personnel.

Our forces and those of our allies are ready to meet the formidable challenges facing them today. Sustainability is the biggest challenge we face at this time. We must build up war reserve stocks in critical areas of fuel, ammunition, spare parts, and major equipment.

In general, the same trend observed in the readiness areas also applies to quality of life programs. Conditions have improved somewhat, but there is much to be done. It seems all too often that people-oriented activities rank at the bottom of the priority list. Overseas, the PX, commissary, gym, and recreation activities represent the only activities to fill the void, and provide our military personnel and their families with some of the comforts we here in the States take for granted.

It was shocking to learn that 48 percent of military personnel stationed in Korea live in substandard housing. Many are being housed in quonset huts built more than 30 years ago. At one remote site, we saw a sign painted on one such hut: "We have done so much for so long with so little that we can now do almost anything with nothing."

Increasing sustainability, improving housing and working conditions, and providing adequate recreation facilities are areas that require congressional support. Improvement in these areas will greatly increase our military readiness.

The operation and maintenance money we have provided is going into people programs, and into making our people ready, which we have done. I certainly hope that trend will continue.

NO SUBMINIMUM WAGE IN ENTERPRISE ZONES

Mr. GARCIA. Mr. Speaker, it has been brought to my attention that sometime during the course of the day the President will be addressing the National League of Cities in Los Angeles. I understand that one of the topics that he will be talking about is enterprise zones and the necessity for pushing enterprise zones during this lame-duck session. As the sponsor of that legislation, I would hope that that would be a reality.

But what concerns me, Mr. Speaker, if I understand a story on the AP wire service, is that there may be an amendment proposed that would in fact add a subminimum wage for teenage workers to the enterprise zone legislation. I want to make it clear that both myself and my colleague from New York (Mr. KEMP), have worked very hard. We have struck an agreement with the administration that the minimum wage in an enterprise zone will not be undermined. The legislation does not now contain such language and it was our understanding that no such language would be added.

I want to make it clear that if in fact the enterprise zone comes to this floor and anybody tampers with the minimum wage, after we have all worked very hard over the last several months to make sure it is not tampered with, then I will withdraw my support of that legislation.

A PRAYER FOR HENRY HYDE

Mr. JOHN L. BURTON. Mr. Speaker and Members, after seeing our good colleague, HENRY HYDE, I meditated for a while and came up with a prayer: "Oh tender Lord, show us Your mercy. Do not let HENRY HYDE run against CHUCK PERCY."

INCREASING AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR ALLEN J. ELLENDER FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Education and Labor be discharged from further consideration of the Senate bill (S. 3002) to increase the authorization of appropriations for the Allen J. Ellender fellowship program, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

Mr. ERLBORN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask my chairman, is this a version of the bill that the House has already passed, a different version having to do with the Ellender fellowships, having passed the other body, and the gentleman is going to ask that the bill passed by the body be amended with the House language and then request a conference?

Mr. PERKINS. That is correct.

Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, the House on September 29 passed under suspension of the rules H.R. 7137. That bill increases the authorizations for the Close Up Foundation's Ellender fellowship program by $500,000 a year for fiscal years 1983 and 1984. It also extends the authorization for that program for an additional fiscal year and sets the authorization at $1.5 million.

The Senate bill, S. 3002, contains identical provisions as regards the Close Up Foundation.

However, the House passed-bill contains three additional items not included in the Senate bill. These items are:

First, a guarantee of funding for law-related education in the Secretary's discretionary fund in the new education block grant.

Second, an increase in the authorization of appropriations for the law school clinical experience program from $1 to $2 million a year for 2 years.

Third, an authorization of appropriations for the Chappie James Aerospace Memorial at Tuskegee University. This amount is set at $9.6 million.

Mr. ERLBORN. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to this request, and I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 3002

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the total amount which may be appropriated to carry out the joint resolution of October 19, 1972 (86 Stat. 907), relating to the Allen J. Ellender fellowship program, shall not exceed $1,500,000 for each of the fiscal years 1983, 1984, and 1985.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. PERKINS

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. PERKINS: Strike out everything after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

LAW RELATED EDUCATION

SECTION 1. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the total amount which may be appropriated to carry out the part E of title IX of the Higher Education Act of 1965, relating to law school clinical experience programs, shall not exceed $2,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1983 and 1984.

(b)(1) Section 583(b) of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981 is amended by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (2), by inserting "and" at the end of paragraph (3), and by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph: "(4) the law-related education program formerly authorized by part G of title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965."

(2) Such section is further amended by inserting "(or $500,000 in the case of the pro-

ELLENDER FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

SEC. 2. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, there is authorized to be appropriated to carry out the joint resolution of October 19, 1972 (86 Stat. 907), relating to the Allen J. Ellender fellowship program, not more than $1,500,000 for each of the fiscal years 1983, 1984, and 1985.

GENERAL DANIEL JAMES MEMORIAL HEALTH EDUCATION CENTER

SEC. 3. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the total amount which may be appropriated to carry out subpart 2 of part H of title XIII of the Education Amendments of 1980, relating to the General Daniel James Memorial Health Education Center, shall not exceed $9,600,000 for the fiscal years 1983 and 1984.

Mr. PERKINS (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment in the nature of a substitute be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the Senate bill and the amendment.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. PERKINS).

The amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

The title of the Senate bill was amended so as to read: "An act to increase the authorization of appropriations for certain education programs, and for other purposes."

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON S. 3002

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House insist on its amendment and request a conference with the Senate thereon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky? The Chair hears none, and without objection, appoints the following conferees: Messrs. PERKINS, FORD of Michigan, ANDREWS, MILLER of California, CORRADA, KILDEE, WILLIAMS of Montana, HAWKINS, BIAGGI, RATCHFORD, WASHINGTON, SMITH of Iowa, GOODLING, JEFFORDS, COLEMAN, ERDAHL, and PETRI, Mrs. ROUKEMA, Messrs. DENARDIS, CRAIG, and ERLBORN, and Mrs. FENWICK.

There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

NOVEMBER 29, 1982.

Hon. THOMAS P. O'NEILL, Jr.,
The Speaker, U. S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, I have the honor to transmit sealed envelopes received from the White House as follows:

(1) At 3:10 p.m. on Monday, October 25, 1982 and said to contain a message from the President on Federal Pay.

(2) At 3:10 p.m. on Monday, October 25, 1982 and said to contain a message from the President wherein he transmits the Annual Report of the Railroad Retirement Board for fiscal year 1981.

(For message, see proceedings of the Senate of today, Monday, November 29, 1982.)

ANNUAL REPORT ON TRADE AGREEMENTS PROGRAM 1981-82—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on Ways and Means:

(For message, see proceedings of the Senate of today, Monday, November 29, 1982.)

COMMUNICATION FROM CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS AND TRANSPORTATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Chairman of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, which was read, and without objection, referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS
AND TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, D.C., October 6, 1982.

Hon. THOMAS P. O'NEILL, Jr.,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Enclosed are copies of resolutions adopted by the Committee on Public Works and Transportation on September 23, 1982. These resolutions approve four watershed projects of the Soil Conservation Service in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 566, Eighty-third Congress.

Every best wish.
Sincerely,

JAMES J. HOWARD,
Chairman.

There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS AND TRANSPORTATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Chairman of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, which was read and, without objection, referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS
AND TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, D.C., October 6, 1982.

Hon. THOMAS P. O'NEILL, Jr.,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Enclosed are copies of resolutions adopted by the Committee on Public Works and Transportation on September 23, 1982. These resolutions authorize studies of potential water resources projects by the Corps of Engineers in accordance with the provisions of Section 4 of the Act of March 4, 1913, as amended.

Every best wish.

Sincerely,

JAMES J. HOWARD,
Chairman.

There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS AND TRANSPORTATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Chairman of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, which was read and, without objection, referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS
AND TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, D.C., October 14, 1982.

Hon. THOMAS P. O'NEILL,
The Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1959, as amended, the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation approved the following projects on June 9, 1982:

Lease Construction: Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, Federal Building.

Lease Consolidation: Boston, Massachusetts, Food and Drug Administration.

Washington, D.C., International Communications Agency.

Construction: San Francisco, California, Federal Building.

The original and one copy of the authorizing resolutions are enclosed.

Every best wish.

Sincerely,

JAMES J. HOWARD,
Chairman.

There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS AND TRANSPORTATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the chairman of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, which was read and, without objection referred to the Committee on Appropriations:

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC WORKS AND TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, D.C., October 15, 1982.
Hon. THOMAS P. O'NEILL,
The Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1959, as amended, the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation approved the following projects on September 16, 1982:

NUCLEAR WASTE POLICY ACT OF 1982

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 3809), to provide for repositories for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste, transuranic waste, and spent nuclear fuel, to amend provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 relating to low-level waste, to modify the Price-Anderson provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 and certain other provisions pertaining to facility licensing and safety, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 333, nays 4, not voting 96, as follows:

□ 1315

Mr. ERDAHL changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the motion was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 3809, with Mr. PANETTA in the chair.

□ 1330

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole House rose on Thursday, September 30, 1982, the text of H.R. 7187 was considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment.

Are there any further amendments which are made in order pursuant to the rule?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. UDALL

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which is made in order by the rule.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. UDALL: Strike out section 141 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

MONITORED RETRIEVABLE STORAGE

SEC. 141. (a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) the executive branch and the Congress should proceed as expeditiously as possible to consider fully a proposal for construction of one or more monitored retrievable storage facilities to provide long-term storage of high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel;

(2) the generators and owners of the high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel to be stored in such facilities have the primary responsibility to provide for, and the responsibility to pay the costs of, the long-term storage of such waste and spent fuel until such waste and spent fuel is accepted by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of this title; and

(3) disposal of high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel in a repository developed under this Act should proceed regardless of any construction of a monitored retrievable storage facility pursuant to this section.

(b) SUBMISSION OF PROPOSAL BY SECRETARY.—(1) Not later than 5 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall complete a detailed study of the need for and feasibility of, and shall submit to the Congress a proposal for, the construction of one or more monitored retrievable storage facilities for high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel. Each such facility shall be designed—

(A) to accommodate spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste resulting from civilian nuclear activities;

(B) to permit continuous monitoring, management, and maintenance of such spent fuel and waste for the foreseeable future;

(C) to provide for the ready retrieval of such spent fuel and waste for further processing or disposal; and

(D) to safely store such spent fuel and waste as long as may be necessary by maintaining such facility through appropriate means, including any required replacement of such facility.

(2) Such proposal shall include—

(A) the establishment of a Federal program for the siting, development, construction, and operation of facilities capable of safely storing high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel, which facilities are to be licensed by the Commission;

(B) a plan for the funding of the construction and operation of such facilities, which plan shall provide that the costs of such activities shall be borne by the generators and owners of the high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel to be stored in such facilities;

(C) site-specific designs, specifications, and cost estimates sufficient to (i) solicit bids for the construction of the first such facility; (ii) support congressional authorization of the construction of such facility; and (iii) enable completion and operation of such facility as soon as practicable following congressional authorization of such facility; and

(D) a plan for integrating facilities constructed pursuant to this section with other storage and disposal facilities authorized in this Act.

(3) In formulating such proposal, the Secretary shall consult with the Commission and the Administrator, and shall submit their comments on such proposal to the Congress at the time such proposal is submitted.

(4) Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to authorize the Secretary to select a specific site for the location of a monitored retrievable storage facility.

(c) ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENTS.—(1) Preparation and submission to the Congress of the proposal required in this section shall not be considered a major Federal action under section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4332(2)(C)). The Secretary shall prepare, in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary implementing such Act, an environmental assessment with respect to such proposal. Such environmental assessment shall be based upon available information regarding alternative technologies for the storage of spent nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste. The Secretary shall submit such environmental assessment to the Congress at the time such proposal is submitted.

(2) The requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) shall apply with respect to the construction of any monitored retrievable storage facility developed pursuant to this section.

(d) LICENSING.—Any monitored retrievable storage facility developed pursuant to this section shall be subject to licensing under section 202(3) of the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5842(3)).

(e) IMPACT ASSISTANCE.—(1) Upon receipt by the Secretary of congressional authorization to construct a facility described in subsection (b), the Secretary shall commence making annual impact aid payments to appropriate units of general local government in order to mitigate any social or economic impacts resulting from the construction and subsequent operation of any such facility within the jurisdictional boundaries of any such unit.

(2) Payments made available to units of general local government under this subsection shall be—

(A) allocated in a fair and equitable manner, with priority given to units of general local government determined by the Secretary to be most severely affected; and

(B) utilized by units of general local government only for planning, construction, maintenance, and provision of public services related to the siting of such facility.

(3) Such payments shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary determines are necessary to ensure achievement of the purposes of this subsection. The Secretary shall issue such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection.

(4) Such payments shall be made available entirely from funds held in the Interim Storage Fund established in section 137(c) and shall be available only to the extent provided in advance in appropriation Acts.

(5) The Secretary may consult with appropriate units of general local government in advance of commencement of construction of any such facility in an effort to determine the level of payments each such unit is eligible to receive under this subsection.

(f) LIMITATIONS.—(1) No monitored retrievable storage facility developed pursuant to this section may be constructed in any State in which there is located any site approved for site characterization under section 112. No repository may be developed under this Act in any State in which there is located any monitored retrievable storage facility developed pursuant to this section.

(2) No monitored retrievable storage facility developed pursuant to this section may be constructed unless the Congress by law specifically authorizes such construction and thereafter approves appropriations for such construction.

Mr. UDALL (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, from the beginning of the nuclear age about 40 years ago, we have ground up and created in this country every day some quantities of nuclear waste. This country has failed, to this moment, to dispose of a single pound of these deadly wastes which now are in temporary repositories in different parts of the country.

This bill dealing with this subject has been before the Congress now for a number of years. This is the third Congress in which we have attempted to secure enactment of a nuclear waste bill.

Mr. Chairman, the passage of this bill will, for the first time, give us a national policy on high-level nuclear waste. It will give us an opportunity to set in motion a procedure by which we will choose for permanent deep geological storage a main repository for the nuclear waste.

Let me emphasize that nuclear waste put in this repository will not be accessible. It will amount to a decision on the part of our country that this is going to be the permanent storage. It will be buried, and it will not be available for us or for future generations. This is the main issue.

The passage of this bill will set in motion a chain of events and decision points by which we will have in the United States a facility licensed and available for permanent storage of high-level nuclear waste.

Let me emphasize in the debate there will be three kinds of facilities that we will be discussing. I am discussing now the major facility for deep geological and permanent storage of nuclear waste. It is time the country made a decision on this and that we have some answers on it.

The second kind of facility that we will be discussing in this debate is what is called AFR, away from reactor storage, to deal with the spent fuel rods from our civilian nuclear power plants.

Originally we calculated on the need for little away-from-reactor storage because we were going to go immediately to reprocessing. Now the reprocessing option is very much in doubt. So we provide in this bill a small, modest size away-from-reactor storage program that cannot exceed 1,700 metric tons capacity and which will be available for emergencies where we have rods that we need a place for and the company cannot do it on-site. We will have a program that cannot exceed 1,700 metric tons where we can take rods in an emergency and where we can carry out commitments we have made to other countries in connection with their nuclear power program.

The third kind of facility—and that is the one that is involved in my amendment—is what is known as monitored retrievable storage. This is another idea of saving the spent nuclear fuel rods, putting them in a cavern or a near-the-surface facility and saving them for the day when, presumably, according to some in America, we will need the fuel, the energy, that is locked up in those rods, and we will be able to go back and get them out and put them to use.

We do not know all of the answers about this monitored retrievable storage. Certainly in the light of the surprises we have had about other nuclear waste and about our nuclear power plants which are more costly and much more difficult to operate than we had imagined, we do not know all of the answers, and I, for one, want to keep this option alive. I think it is an option we ought to keep alive.

So the bill which came out of the various committees had a provision for a study by the Energy Department to tell us within 2 to 5 years—and the argument comes on the 2- to 5-year period—what kind of a facility it should be, where it might be located, and other features of it.

It would then come to the Congress, and if the Congress affirmatively acted, we would then have this monitored retrievable storage facility.

The monitored retrievable storage section of H.R. 7187 is intended to provide research and reports which will assure that special waste management technology will be available if it is needed as part of the waste management program.

This "MRS" technology is not the best answer to our national nuclear waste problem. It does not provide a permanent solution, but rather would require that nuclear wastes be under guard at constant expense until some permanent solution was developed. Nonetheless, it is probably important that we have this back-up technology available to assure that technical or institutional failure in our effort to develop permanent deep geologic facilities does not leave us unable to fulfill our obligation to provide some answer to the waste problem.

Upon review of our MRS section, the chairman and ranking minority members of the Interior and Commerce committees and subcommittees have agreed on some changes to that section which we believe would improve its operation:

First. We would increase the amount of time the Secretary has to provide the required MRS report from 2 to 5 years. The report we request must include detailed engineering designs adequate to enable the solicitation of bids for a facility and to enable complete construction and operation of an MRS facility. The report must be accompanied by an environmental assessment and by a need and feasibility study.

DOE has flip-flopped on its ability to provide this study in time. But there is no urgency to acquisition of this information, since an MRS decision will not have to be made until well into the next decade.

Second. We remove exemptions from licensing considerations and NEPA. If they are developed, MRS facilities could become indefinite repositories for high-level waste and spent fuel. They may serve other functions, such as storage of spent fuel pending reprocessing. Future decision on the use of any MRS facility, and on its size, must be related to decisions on licensing requirements and on appropriate sites for the facility. We can not remove the regulatory and NEPA reviews that may be required unless we more fully understand the nature of the technology.

Third. We make clear that the decision when to construct an MRS facility, whether it is needed, and what role it will have in the waste management system, is left to future Congresses, which will have a better understanding of these issues.

Our changes in the MRS section do not reduce the information that will be produced, or alter the congressional commitment to assure that this technology will be ready to go if it is needed.

I urge your support for these modifications.

Mr. HUCKABY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I certainly concur with a lot that our distinguished colleague, the chairman of the Interior Committee, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL), just stated. The monitored retrievable storage system: I think can properly be characterized as a backup system. I think anybody that knows much about the nuclear industry today recognizes the fact that France is probably the world's leader in this industry. This is how the French store their nuclear waste today, in an environment where they can monitor it, where, if necessary, they can retrieve it, because they recognize that we today, with our state of the technology today, do not know, we do not have all of the answers.

What does MRS buy for us? It buys several things for us.

First of all, it gives us additional years, perhaps up to 50 additional years, to obtain additional technical information, because let me tell you this: It is theoretically possible to reduce the half lives of the really hot radioactive materials from literally hundreds of thousands of years down to a few hundred years. But we do not know how to do that today.

If you stored this for a period of 50 years, there is tremendous heat dissipation, so that once you put it into a permanent repository it would be far, far safer. But there is one basic flaw with the chairman's amendment to this section. It calls for a 5-year study.

Within 5 years this bill mandates that the President pick the site for the permanent repository.

The Department of Energy informs me that they have the capability of completing an indepth, detailed study of how you would go about developing a monitored retrievable storage system and reporting back to Congress within 2 years. And that is what the basic bill calls for. It does not authorize an MRS. It tells the DOE to make an indepth study and come back and a future Congress could make that determination, if it were necessary, if as the chairman stated we ran into serious technical problems in determining a permanent repository.

So if you want a backup system, if you want a system that makes sense, I think you have got to recognize that the timeframe is the operative section here, and to put out to 5 years the time of just when a study is due to be reported back to Congress will negate the whole impact of this Nation ever possibly having the option of going with an MRS if we should need it in the future.

And that is why I would urge a "no" vote on this amendment.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HUCKABY. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I wonder if the gentleman has something new from the Department of Energy. The reason we chose the 5-year period is the testimony the Department of Energy gave in the Senate hearings. And what they communicated to the Congress was that it would take 5 years. This is not just a study. It is a site specific selection including the complete studies involved in putting a MRS at a specific site. And they testified to the Congress, and I will read the testimony if the gentleman likes, that they could not do this in less than 5 years. That is why it was selected.

There is no desire to delay unduly. As a matter of fact, I think the MRS is the way to go.

Mr. HUCKABY. As the gentleman is very well aware, there have been studies that the Department of Energy has contracted out to private contractors ongoing in the last several years. And I think that the timeframe the gentleman talked about was the entire timeframe of time that has already elapsed.

In my communications with them, they have indicated that 2 years is ample time to go ahead—where it would be in a sequence on a PERT chart—so that if it was necessary to bring it into play we would still have the option, whereas after 5 years we might not have that option.

Mr. OTTINGER. Has the Department of Energy communicated this to the gentleman in any way?

Mr. HUCKABY. I did not hear the gentleman.

Mr. OTTINGER. Has the Department of Energy communicated this to the gentleman in any way? It has not communicated it to the committee.

Mr. HUCKABY. Yes.

Mr. OTTINGER. How? Does the gentleman have it in writing?

Mr. HUCKABY. No. Strictly telephone.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HUCKABY. I yield to the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. UDALL. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I hope the gentleman will note and I am sure he is aware of the fact that my amendment says not more than 5 years. And the plan is to be produced by the Department of Energy in not more than 5 years.

It seems to me with the uncertainty the Department has shown on this issue that the language in the amendment, is appropriate. If they can bring it in 3, do it in 3, if they can bring it in 4, do it in 4. Four is not more than 5 and 3 is not more than 5.

Mr. HUCKABY. As the gentleman very well knows in no place in our country does Parkinson's law operate better than in the Department of Energy. If you give them 5 years, they will take 5; if you give them 2 years, they will take 2 years.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HUCKABY. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would like to congratulate the gentleman on his efforts here in this regard and reiterate what the gentleman has said.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. HUCKABY) has expired.

(At the request of Mr. MARRIOTT and by unanimous consent, Mr. HUCKABY was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. MARRIOTT. If the gentleman will continue to yield, if we give them 5 years, they will take 5 years. If we give them 2 years, they will take 2 years. And I would think we would get this study done in 2 years. And I applaud the gentleman for his amendment.

Mr. HUCKABY. I thank the gentleman for his comments.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words and I rise in opposition of the amendment.

I want to congratulate the gentleman from Louisiana. He has been persistent in his idea of the monitored retrievable storage plan. And I agree with him.

One of the things that has bothered me about the entire question of burying nuclear wastes is that it is such a waste of money, simply to bury the spent fuel rods. My understanding of the figures is that it is about $5 million value per value for each reactor, and we have 70, that is about $350 million a year that we are just pouring down the hole.

We should have an alternative, if the deep repository is not feasible. And this amendment would delay it for 5 years, when you look at the fact that we must make a choice within 2 years, and perhaps even start digging the shaft for the repository within a reasonable period of time, much less than 5 years. So if we stick to the proposal which is offered today of a 5-year study, and the repository is not feasible, then we will have no plan at all.

Finally, I might just say that the 2-year idea appeals to me. Maybe the Department of Energy might not be able to do it in 2 years and probably cannot. We can always have an extension. But if we give them 5 years, it will be 10 years before we have a plan.

So I would congratulate the gentleman from Louisiana for his foresight in offering such an amendment.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LUJAN. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Did I misunderstand the gentleman? Is the gentleman speaking for the amendment or against the amendment?

Mr. LUJAN. I am speaking against the amendment. I am speaking in favor of the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I thank the gentleman for clarifying that.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment offered by my colleague from Arizona (Mr. UDALL). This amendment was offered on behalf of all those who negotiated on this bill. It was clearly a part of the agreement that we made with the minority; it was signed on to by the chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee, by myself, chair of the appropriate subcommittee of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL), and it is my understanding that the minority of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee signed on as well.

I am strongly in favor of an MRS. based on the past experience of the Department of Energy the chances are that they are not going to succeed in establishing a permanent repository that does not leak. Their previous efforts in Lyons, Kans., and indeed at the WIPP site in New Mexico, would indicate it is actively possible that they will be unable to come up with a permanent repository that is totally secure. So I think having monitored retrievable storage available to us is a very worthwhile endeavor. But siting monitored retrievable storage in a way that protects the communities where it is located is vitally important. It is designed to store wastes for some 50 to 100 years. A great many hazards are attached to it that would not be present in a permanent repository and I do not think we ought to rush to a decision on it without providing the kind of safeguards that we provide for a permanent repository.

For example, the legislation would set a very bad precedent in allowing for the first time the environmental impact statement to be restricted so you could not consider alternative sites or alternative designs. In addition, the NRC would be restricted in its licensing to protect the health and safety of the public by preventing them from considering alternate sites and alternate designs—I think that is a very unwise provision.

Moreover, the timetable is so short that the Department of Energy could not possibly meet it. And as the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) has indicated, this amendment does not mandate that they take 5 years. It just says up to 5 years.

The Department of Energy testified last year before the Senate, and I will quote their testimony.

"If this provision is enacted, then a specific site must be selected to comply with it. It is not feasible to complete such activities within the one year allowed * * *" in the bill as it was in the Senate.

It would also take 9 months to 1 year just to solicit bids from and select an architect/engineering firm to prepare necessary designs and an additional 2 years to complete actual detailed design specifications and drawings required for solicitation of bids for facility construction. In addition to the architectural/engineering selection process and detailed site-specific specifications, 2 years would be required to identify and select a specific site for a MRS facility. This would include:

- (1) Development of detailed siting requirements and criteria;
- (2) A thorough analysis of potential sites proceeding from a national perspective through regional and area reviews to actual sites for consideration in the final selection process;
- (3) Coordination of activities with states in which potential sites for an MRS facility are located.

These and other factors would extend beyond the limitation in the bill.

So what we are talking about here is not just an abstract study of what an MRS would look like. What is called for in this bill is a site specific design that would permit us to go ahead with just a simple additional authorization by Congress to construction. This is a very complex endeavor; it is something that has never been constructed before in this country. It poses considerable hazards to the States if it is not done properly. It does not require the same safeguards and procedures that we require for a permanent repository, and that concerns me.

I think that the protections provided by the gentleman from Arizona, to allow adequate time to do this right, No. 1, and do it within the time that DOE says it needs, and second, to assure that there is an adequate environmental impact statement, and to assure that the NRC is not restricted in its ability to review and license this first-of-a-kind technology is very important.

For that reason, I strongly urge adoption of the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. OTTINGER) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. OTTINGER was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OTTINGER. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Does the gentleman see the retrievable system being something different than the permanent repository? The question I have is if in fact we ought to have a retrievable system, then maybe we should not move ahead so quickly on the permanent repository.

And if we have a shorter study time, perhaps we can find one repository that is retrievable and not wind up with two different systems.

And I wonder if the gentleman would comment on that issue.

Mr. OTTINGER. I would be glad to comment. There is a major difference. A permanent repository is designed so that spent fuel and high level nuclear waste can be disposed of in a nonretrievable form which is environmentally safe and secure.

Monitored retrievable storage is designed for long-term storage, 50 to 100 years, in a manner that would be retrievable so if something goes wrong you could get back at it.

Mr. MARRIOTT. So the gentleman thinks there should then be two different systems, a permanent repository and a separate retrievable system?

Mr. OTTINGER. I do indeed.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. OTTINGER) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. OTTINGER was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. OTTINGER. I think that we ought to take our time about a permanent storage facility, because the experience of the Department in developing a permanent disposal facility has been so bad in the past. It is very difficult to find a geological formation that is stable enough to reasonably guarantee that these highly radioactive substances can be safely disposed of for the tens of thousands of years they are going to remain dangerous.

So I do not think we ought to rush that process. It is in part to give us the time that is needed to find a permanent repository that I favor the monitored retrievable storage concept. I do not think we ought to abandon permanent disposal, but this alleviates the pressure to rush to a poor choice.

Mr. MARRIOTT. If the gentleman will continue to yield, the problem I am faced with now is that DOE is moving along on five permanent repository sites. They are going to move ahead and they are going to make a decision. In fact, the press states they are about to make that decision any minute.

Now the question I have is if in fact that is premature, maybe we better speed up the study on the retrievable system and delay the permanent repository until we know what we are doing.

Mr. OTTINGER. Well, my point is that you cannot speed up the site specific design called for in this bill in such a manner as to pose a potential hazard to the communities that would qualify as a site. And the gentleman's district may be one of the areas in which that retrievable storage is in fact placed. I am sure the gentleman would not want it put there without full environmental review or without full NRC licensing procedures to assure that the storage is secure. That is what this amendment provides.

If they can do it in 2 years, so much the better. And I would be glad to join in putting pressure on the Department to move as quickly as possible. But I do not think we ought to tie their hands in the manner in which the language in the bill does. As I mentioned, DOE has already testified that they could not accomplish the bill's requirements on a sound and safe basis.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OTTINGER. Of course, I would be glad to yield.

Mr. BROYHILL. I just wanted to comment on the statement of the gentleman from Utah. He has a somewhat different view of this legislation than I do. It is important that we select a permanent repository.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

(At the request of Mr. BROYHILL, and by unanimous consent, Mr. OTTINGER was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, it is not my understanding that the Department's selection is imminent. In fact, under the terms of the bill, that selection may not occur until as late as 1987 or it could be as late as a year thereafter.

I would also point out, and I looked back into the law to make sure that it is a fact, that any repository, the final repository, permanent repository, that is constructed, shall be designed and constructed to permit the retrieval of any spent nuclear fuel that is placed in that repository. Is that not correct?

Mr. OTTINGER. That is absolutely correct. Everything the gentleman has said is correct.

Mr. BROYHILL. I do not disagree with the MRS that has been proposed here. My only concern, as always, has been the timeframe in which these decisions can be made. If it has taken these many years to come up with the siting and the design and the plans and so forth for the permanent facility, it does not seem reasonable that we are going to be able to make these same decisions in just a few short months on an MRS.

I certainly do not disagree with it, but we at least ought to give them a little more time in order to make sure that they do the right thing.

Mr. OTTINGER. My friend, the gentleman from North Carolina, is supporting the Udall amendment then; am I correct?

Mr. BROYHILL. That is correct.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Udall amendment to H.R. 7187 relating to monitored retrievable storage facilities (MRS).

Although I have the greatest respect for the gentleman from Arizona and appreciate greatly his tireless efforts to bring this essential legislation to the floor, I must oppose him on this issue. As the cosponsor of the MRS sections of the Interior Committee's bill, H.R. 3809, with my distinguished colleague from Louisiana, Mr. HUCKABY, I believe that it is imperative that this amendment be defeated.

I contend that at least my support for the MRS concept comes from no selfish or parochial motive. As a Representative of a State which is not under consideration for a deep geological storage site, nor likely to be because of the geology, my advancement of the MRS concept indeed raises the possibility that the district or State I represent could become a repository for high level nuclear wastes. Nevertheless, I think it is important that this amendment be defeated. I believe that parallel implementation of the MRS program is imperative. That implementation must occur without the unnecessary delay envisioned and resulting from the Udall amendment.

For more than 40 years, we have used excuse after excuse to delay the final decision on nuclear waste disposal—less time for high level nuclear waste, but I think that timeframe is accurate for nuclear waste. No doubt, we can keep thinking up logical sounding excuses for more and more decades. The time for excuses is over, however. The time for action has come.

I support the MRS concept because I believe that the deep geological storage option will be beset by continued delay and objection. You are dealing with uncertainty when you are dealing with natural geology. In fact, this Nation may never see a permanent deep geological waste storage facility due to political and technological obstacles. Waste storage cannot continue in the temporary, unsafe fashion that it has maintained for these decades. We are just courting disaster if we continue to take that course.

Our Nation must find some safe method of waste isolation. The MRS concept offers our Nation a way to isolate wastes, yet still monitor them for the continued safety of our citizens. It is a concept which must at least be kept on a parallel track with the other ongoing efforts, like deep geologic storage, or else we may wake up 5 or 6 years from now still without any waste disposal option or solutions readily available to us for the storage of high level nuclear wastes.

For these reasons, I think we ought to move on parallel tracks and we ought to move rapidly on those parallel tracks.

This amendment, while it keeps alive the concept of MRS, MRS does not move us in parallel fashion. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to defeat the Udall amendment.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment and I do so for a number of reasons; but preeminent among them is the real belief that I have that if we do not pass this amendment, then the monitored retrieval storage facility will displace the permanent nuclear waste facility. A permanent repository should be the centerpiece of any piece of legislation which we produce in this body this week. Under the existing language in the legislation, there is only a 2-year timeframe for reporting back to the Congress as to the site and the type of MRS facility which ought to be constructed.

Now what will transpire is this: With the possibly construction of a facility of a huge nature—an MRS facility could perhaps store for several hundred years the surplus nuclear wastes which we have in this country. An MRS would, without question, derail any efforts to construct, in the ensuing years, a permanent waste repository.

So the real issue here is, are we serious about putting together a permanent waste repository bill? If we are, then we cannot possibly use the present language of H.R. 7187, because that language calls for a monitored retrieval storage facility in 2 years. While the Department of Energy testified that it would take at least 5 years for them to comply with the terms of the bill with regard to reporting back the logistical difficulties in putting together such an MRS project. And, H.R. 7187 as before the House would telescope the timeframe down to 2 years. Such a proposition exposes what I believe is the real agenda of the present bill and the underlying assumption of this bill which is to replace the permanent repository which should be the real objective of the legislation.

The estimated cost of monitored retrievable storage facility is upward of $3.8 billion—that is $3.8 billion. Do we seriously believe that we are going to be able to appropriate $3.8 billion for an MRS facility and then find the money, $3 billion or $4 billion or $5 billion for a depository. Do you think that will happen when this interim facility will take care of all the problems for several hundred years? I doubt very seriously whether that would ever be the case.

What we have in front of us is an attempt to bait and switch, a very attractive and superficially alluring proposal to take care of an interim problem; when in fact what we are asking for is a streamlined process: Cutting back on environmental protections, cutting back on public participation, very costly, and ultimately something which will kneecap any attempts which we have at finding a permanent repository.

My hope is that we can keep on a clear track, that we can keep the objective very clearly in front of us. By doing so is how we put together a bill which will take care of our permanent waste problems.

I believe that the amendment which has been put together by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), and the gentleman from New York (Mr. OTTINGER) very aptly deals with the problem.

We say to those proponents of the language in H.R. 7187, let us have a 5-year study period. Let us have it reported back to Congress, since it is only in its conceptual form right now. And, it says that if in 5 years it does not appear likely that a permanent repository is ever going to be constructed, then perhaps we can consider some interim type of facility on a massive basis such as this. But, here as we enter into for the first time the area of permanent repositories, it seems to me to be counterproductive and ultimately will signal the death knell of any permanent repository if we go forward with the current language.

What I ask you to do is to consider very seriously the proposal put forth by the chairman. I think that it is a solid one. I think it is one that takes care of the problems of public participation, of the environmentalists, and of the taxpayers, which I genuinely believe want to see their dollars expended wisely in this coming era of austerity at the Federal level.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MARKEY. I would be glad to yield to the gentleman from Nebraska.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I do have a question. Given what I think the gentleman would agree to, given the fact that we are dealing with uncertainty when we are dealing with natural geologic structures, we cannot know precisely about the consistency, the possibility of voids, unless we go into the type of drilling and testing which really ruins the geologic media itself.

Is the gentleman willing to assure this Member and other Members of the body that we are not going to reach an impasse in 4 to 6 years, whereby questions about the unknown in geologic storage simply delay us again from finding a high level nuclear waste geologic repository that will work?

Mr. MARKEY. I cannot guarantee the gentleman that they will find a permanent repository that will be suitable for storing these materials for 10,000 years.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. MARKEY was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. MARKEY. I can give the gentleman one guarantee, however, that if we pass this monitored retrievable storage facility legislation in its present form, we will never have a permanent repository in this country. The political will to accomplish the goal of pressuring a State to accept the Nation's nuclear waste will end, because potential repository States can argue, and argue convincingly, that the Nation will have a monitored retrievable storage facility that will hold this waste for 200 or 300 years. Let the next generation worry about the problem.

This is the problem that we have faced for the past 20 years, the problem of parochialism. The only way that we are going to be able to circumvent it, is if we take out the roadblocks and we keep our minds straight on the problem ahead of us. Any other approach on the question of a monitored retrievable storage facility, as superficially appealing as it appears to be, will in fact be counterproductive and will result in the exact contrary with what is the objective of the gentleman.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield again?

Mr. MARKEY. I would be glad to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. BEREUTER. I thank the gentleman for yielding again.

I come from a State that has no possibility of having geologic media that can be used for high level nuclear waste storage. I do not share the conclusions of the gentleman about what MRS will do.

It seems to me that it is just inevitable that 4 to 6 years from now the gentleman and I, or our successors, are going to be here and we are going to be hearing about all the reasons why deep geologic waste contains these uncertainties, which make it unacceptable for the storage of high-level nuclear waste.

Mr. MARKEY. The problem is that the gentleman is now conceding that there is no permanent geologic repository possible. I believe that it is possible; but the only way in which it can be done, is if we rally all the forces, that includes the utilities, the nuclear vendors, and public opinion and the Congress together in commitment to a single common objective.

What we are now talking about is constructing interim facilities which can be used by the nuclear utility companies in this country to take care of their public relations problem, which has prohibited them from constructing any new nuclear powerplants until there is a permanent waste repository.

The headline, saying we have found a permanent solution, will give them that victory; but coupling it with a monitored retrievable storage facility will be a hollow victory for the people of this country that do want a permanent waste repository.

Mr. LUNDINE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I rise in support of the amendment.

I think a lot of important points with respect to the Udall amendment have already been made. I certainly do not want to be redundant; but I would like to add my support in favor of the Udall amendment.

The idea of an MRS is another interim technology. At a hearing of the Science and Technology Committee earlier this year, I asked the Department of Energy what this facility, MRS, would look like, where it might be located. The witness from the Department of Energy had no idea. He had no basic concept. He said the Department had no engineering plans, no criteria for such a facility.

Mr. HUCKABY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield on that point?

Mr. LUNDINE. I would be glad to yield if the gentleman will let me finish with just that point.

The Department of Energy had no concept with respect to the issue even of whether it would be colocated at a permanent site or it would be set apart at another site.

Now I would be happy to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HUCKABY. The Department of Energy has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on studies already. There are artists' sketches in detail of how this might be stored inside mountains or in deserts. Numerous other alternative scenarios presently exist in the hands of the Department of Energy of how an MRS might be constructed, plus we have the knowledge of the French who are doing it today.

Mr. LUNDINE. This testimony this year before the Committee on Science and Technology left unequivocal the point that we are at only the conceptual design stage of such a facility. It seems to me not unreasonable to ask that a technology which is interim and which is going to be very expensive, as this would, be given the same amount of attention as was given to a permanent repository because we are talking about something that is going to be very expensive.

As the gentleman from Massachusetts has already indicated, it is not likely we are going to have an MRS and a permanent repository. The chances are that we are going to have one or the other.

Now, it just seems to me to be reasonable and, considering the technological progress today, considering the likely expense and keeping in mind that it is our object to develop a permanent answer to isolating these radioactive elements from the biosphere, we must allow for the proper amount of time for this study, and that is the reason I support the Udall amendment.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. LUNDINE. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. VENTO. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I want to commend the gentleman for his statement. I would rise in support of the Udall amendment. The fact is that while the MRS idea or concept may not necessarily be intended to short circuit a so-called permanent type of storage facility—it may very well do so. I do not think that is the intent of the authors and I hope that is not the consequence of the MRS facility, irrespective of what direction this particular amendment takes.

There are different types of high-level wastes, some of which can be retrieved, some that do have an economic value, because of simply the nature of the qualities of the waste in fact, from light-water reactors. How to deal with these wastes is the question we are trying to address. We do not have breeders. We do not have a reprocessing system in place. Different types of wastes therefore can indeed justify a monitored-retrievable-storage-type facility.

Nevertheless, if we are going to pursue this particular goal, this particular facility, to deal with waste, it seems to me it deserves a fair hearing. It deserves, for instance, an adequate environmental impact statement with respect to where it is located, if it is Minnesota, Indiana, or New York.

All of us want to have an adequate criterion of the area that the waste goes to. I think in the same instance, it deserves an adequate review and licensure by the NRC.

I am concerned with the attempt and object to in terms of the MRS not only with the fact that it competes with and has a potential to short circuit a permanent type of solution to this problem, which I understand no one agrees with as a goal. We are concerned about that; but what we object to is the attempt to force this particular type of decision.

After all, the delay with regard to permanent disposal of nuclear wastes, and in most instances justified by the lack of knowledge and uncertainty that continues to exist, we do not need false hopes raised with an MRS system that is based on half-baked concepts and an unjustified optimism. I urge a vote to adopt the Udall amendment and a realistic timeframe for the consideration of the MRS facility.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. LUNDINE) has expired.

(On request of Mr. VENTO and by unanimous consent, Mr. LUNDINE was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, indeed there is uncertainty. The idea to force the MRS and push it is the type of concept that is going to create more problems than it is going to solve.

So I appeal to my colleagues to support the amendment today which would provide us adequate time for a relatively new concept, a new concept brought about because of the lack of reprocessing, because of the lack of a breeder reactor, and the lack of an answer as to what to do with spent nuclear fuel rods.

Mr. Chairman, all we are asking for is adequate time. This time gives what is relatively a new concept of MRS adequate time for licensure, adequate time for an environmental impact statement before we go off with a half-baked idea in a couple of years to force a decision.

So if we can accomplish this today, I think we will have a parallel system of two tracks, and hopefully it will not short circuit the answer and solution to this particular problem.

Mr. LUNDINE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his contribution and for his support of my position in this regard, even though our analysis of the overall situation may be slightly different.

I think the point is, we ought to take a careful look at this MRS proposal. We ought to make progress, but we ought to allow the Department of Energy to do a proper job. This is exactly what the Udall amendment is directed toward achieving, and that is why I am so strongly in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I do not know of too many more speakers on this amendment. I would like to see if we could get an agreement.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment cease at 2:30.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona that all debate on the Udall amendment cease at 2:30?

There was no objection.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the Udall amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the proponents of the Udall amendment would have you believe that the present bill authorizes the construction of an MRS without EIS evaluation and without proper evaluation by this Congress of a site recommended by the study. That is not so.

The legislation before us does not authorize an MRS facility to be constructed. It certainly does not authorize one to be constructed before this Congress approves one; nor does it authorize one to be constructed without a proper environmental impact statement and evaluation. In fact, the present legislation provides that within 2 years the Department of Energy would recommend this Congress a concept for construction of a site-specific MRS. Then it would be the prerogative of this Congress to examine, with appropriate hearings, that study, that decision by the Department to recommend to the Congress.

Those hearings could last ad infinitum if we so choose. Those hearings could go on as long as we determine there were questions unanswered by the DOE study. Those hearings would not necessarily produce an MRS; those hearings would simply be the basis upon which this Congress could then make a decision as to whether the DOE recommendations made sense or did not make sense.

Those hearings would not produce the construction of an MRS unless the construction is then authorized. Even that authorization would not produce an MRS until proper environmental impact statements were obtained and the total environmental aspects of that project would be evaluated and acted upon.

So the proponents of the Udall amendment who would make you believe that the current status of this bill produces an MRS without an environmental impact statement, without proper action considered by this Congress, are simply in error.

The Udall amendment, on the other hand, would extend by 3 additional years the study, the information that this Congress ought to have in order to determine whether the MRS concept makes sense.

I think it makes sense. Some of the proponents of the Udall amendment do not believe that the MRS makes sense. They would rather see us make a decision on the permanent deep-geologic storage question prior to determining whether or not we can monitor the storage of nuclear wastes and find out exactly some of the answers to the questions that have gone unanswered all these years with reference to deep-geologic storage.

So, those proponents of the Udall amendment would have us reach that point somewhere down the way where we would have to make a decision on deep storage when all the facts are not in a point in time when we have to decide or begin shutting down nuclear plants. They would have us reach that point without the advantage of this study by DOE on a monitored retrievable system of storing nuclear wastes pending the final decision on a deep-geologic study.

Gentlemen, I believe the Udall amendment extends unduly the study by DOE. It does not in any way give further protection to the establishment of an MRS than does the present bill, which adequately protects this Congress and the American people in regard to the environmental concerns that we all share in the disposition of nuclear wastes.

Extending the study by 3 years simply means we are not going to have an MRS. We are, instead, going to be faced with the hard question of where do we permanently store nuclear wastes without having all the answers. Therefore, I think this amendment ought to be defeated.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) for the concluding 5 minutes of debate.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to make a couple of points.

Neither our amendment nor the original bill mandates 5 years. It says "not more than 5 years." The most vigorous proponent of the legislation for getting something done has been the Department of Energy, and that Department will be in charge of this 2-year or 3-year or 4-year or 5-year study, whatever it is.

Mr. Chairman, I want to emphasize that in voting for my amendment, Members are for the MRS, they are for it as a backup system. What we are saying is: Let us get going on a decision framework for the main deep-geologic repository, but in the event it does not work out, in the event conditions occur that make it required, we will have a backup system such as the MRS under study and hopefully under construction at some point.

So I would urge the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the unanimous-consent request, all further debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) is suspended.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. LUJAN

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is the amendment permitted under the rule?

Mr. LUJAN. Yes, Mr. Chairman, it is.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. LUJAN:

Page 79, beginning on line 21, strike out section 135(f)(3) in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(3)(A) If any notice of disapproval is submitted to the Congress under paragraph (2), the proposed provision of 300 or more metric tons of storage capacity at the site involved shall be approved unless, during the first period of 90 calendar days of the Congress following the date of the receipt by the Congress of such notice of disapproval, either House of Congress passes a resolution in accordance with this subsection disapproving such proposed provision of storage capacity in accordance with the procedures established in this paragraph. For purposes of this paragraph, the term "resolution" means a resolution of either House of the Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That there hereby is approved the notice of disapproval regarding the disapproval of the provision of 300 or more metric tons of spent nuclear fuel storage capacity at the site located at _____, with respect to which a notice of disapproval was submitted by _____ on _____. The first blank space in such resolution shall be filled with the geographic location of the site involved; the second blank space in such resolution shall be filled with the designation of the State Governor and legislature or Indian tribe governing body submitting the notice of disapproval involved; and the last blank space in such resolution shall be filled with the date of submission of such notice of disapproval.

(B)(i) The provisions of this subparagraph are enacted by the Congress—

(I) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate, and as such they are deemed a part of the rules of the Senate, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in the Senate in the case of resolutions under this paragraph, and such provisions supersede other rules of the Senate only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such other rules; and

(II) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the Senate to change the rules (so far as relating to the procedure of the Senate) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of the Senate.

(ii)(I) Not later than the first day of session following the day on which any notice of disapproval under paragraph (2) is submitted to the Congress, a resolution under this paragraph shall be introduced (by request) in the Senate by the chairman of the committee to which such notice of disapproval is referred, or by a Member or Members of the Senate designated by such chairman.

(II) Upon introduction, a resolution under this paragraph shall be referred to the appropriate committee or committees of the Senate by the President of the Senate, and all such resolutions with respect to the same storage capacity shall be referred to the same committee or committees. Upon the expiration of 45 calendar days of continuous session after the introduction of the first resolution under this section with respect to any site, each committee to which such resolution was referred shall make its recommendations to the Senate.

(iii) If any committee to which is referred a resolution introduced under this paragraph, or, in the absence of such a resolution, any other resolution under this paragraph introduced with respect to the capacity involved, has not reported such resolution at the end of 45 days of continuous session of Congress after introduction of such resolution, such committee shall be deemed to be discharged from further consideration of such resolution, and such resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the Senate.

(iv)(I) When each committee to which a resolution under this paragraph has been referred has reported, or has been deemed to be discharged from further consideration of, a resolution described in clause (III), it shall at any time thereafter be in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) for any Member of the Senate to move to proceed to the consideration of such resolution. Such motion shall be highly privileged and shall not be debatable. Such motion shall not be subject to amendment, to a motion to postpone, or to a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business. A motion to reconsider the vote by which such motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order. If a motion to proceed to the consideration of such resolution is agreed to, such resolution shall remain the unfinished business of the Senate until disposed of.

(II) Debate on a resolution under this paragraph and on all debatable motions and appeals in connection with such resolution, shall be limited to not more than 10 hours, which shall be divided equally between Members favoring and Members opposing such resolution. A motion further to limit debate shall be in order and shall not be debatable. Such motion shall not be subject to amendment, to a motion to postpone, or to a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business, and a motion to recommit such resolution shall not be in order. A motion to reconsider the vote by which such resolution is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order.

(III) Immediately following the conclusion of the debate on a resolution under this paragraph and a single quorum call at the conclusion of such debate if requested in accordance with the rules of the Senate, the vote on final approval of such resolution shall occur.

(IV) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate to the procedure relating to a resolution under this paragraph shall be decided without debate.

(C)(i) The provisions of this subparagraph are enacted by the Congress—

(I) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the House of Representatives, and as such they are deemed a part of the rules of the House, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in the House in the case of resolutions under this paragraph and such provisions supersede other rules of the House only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such other rules; and

(II) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the House to change the rules (so far as relating to the procedure of the House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of the House.

(ii) Resolutions under this paragraph shall, upon introduction, be immediately referred by the Speaker of the House to the appropriate committee or committees of the House. Any such resolution received from the Senate shall be held at the Speaker's table.

(iii) Upon the expiration of 45 days of continuous session after the introduction of the first resolution under this paragraph with respect to any site, each committee to which such resolution was referred shall be discharged from further consideration of such resolution, and such resolution shall be referred to the appropriate calendar, unless such resolution or an identical resolution was previously reported by each committee to which it was referred.

(iv) It shall be in order for the Speaker to recognize a Member favoring a resolution to call up a resolution under this section after it has been on the appropriate calendar for 5 legislative days. When any such resolution is called up, the House shall proceed to its immediate consideration and the Speaker shall recognize the Member calling up such resolution and a Member opposed to such resolution for 2 hours of debate in the House, to be equally divided and controlled by such Members. When such time has expired, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution without intervening motion. No amendment to any such resolution shall be in order, nor shall it be in order to move to reconsider the vote by which such resolution is agreed to or disagreed to.

(D) For purposes of this paragraph—

(i) continuity of session of Congress is broken only by an adjournment sine die; and

(ii) the days on which either House is not in session because of an adjournment of more than 3 days to a day certain are excluded in the computation of the 90-day period referred to in this paragraph and the 45 day period referred to in this paragraph.

Mr. LUJAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Mexico?

There was no objection.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment which I am offering deals with section 135 in subtitle B of this act, specifically with the process which the States will have, to object to siting of interim storage facilities within their boundaries.

Let me briefly summarize and then contrast the act's existing language with my proposed amendment on this process. As currently proposed in this act, once the Secretary of Energy has decided to provide for 300 or more metric tons of interim storage for spent nuclear fuel at an existing Federal facility, he must first notify the affected State's Governor and legislature of his decision. The Governor and legislature may then, if they so choose, jointly submit a notice of disapproval to the Congress, a disapproval which becomes effective unless a majority of both Houses of Congress pass a resolution overturning the objection. My amendment changes the last step of this process. Instead of requiring a two-House congressional override of a State's objection, my amendment requires that a State's notice of disapproval be sustained by a majority vote of one House of Congress before it can become effective. This is not applicable to the permanent repository—only to the last resort interim storage facility.

Mr. Chairman, let me now present my supporting arguments for this amendment. This Congress, by passing a high level nuclear waste act, will be mandating a major Federal program for the ultimate solution of this Nation's growing radioactive waste problem. The last resort, interim storage facilities provided for in this act are an integral part of a relatively small, but essential, subprogram which contributes to the comprehensive solution. It makes no sense for this Congress to now pass legislation for a major Federal program, one whose ultimate purpose is clearly in the overriding national interest, but then require that a subsequent Congress enact another separate law in order for subprograms established within this act to take effect. But that is exactly what the currently existing two-House override provision in this act requires. I agree that it is essential that we provide processes within this act by which the States can participate in decisions which impact them. The difference between the existing two-House override provision and my proposed one-House sustain provision is that my amendment effectively requires that a State submit, along with its notice of disapproval, the basis for its objections. If the State's rationale is determined to be sound after congressional review, then the State should have little trouble in convincing a majority in one House of Congress to vote to sustain its notice of disapproval.

Realistically we can expect some States to be reluctant partners in hosting last resort, interim storage facilities. Unfortunately, this reluctance will not necessarily arise from sound technical arguments, or for reasons affecting the public health, safety, and the environment. Rather, in some cases, this reluctance will appear simply because it is politically expedient in these times for a State to adopt such a position. In crafting this legislation we certainly must be careful where we choose to preempt or redefine the State's authority. However, we must be equally careful not to allow summary or frivolous actions on the part of any State to unnecessarily impede the progress of a major Federal program whose ultimate purpose is clearly in the overriding national interest.

Let me present some additional reasons which support my amendment. I ask my colleagues to remember that what we are talking about are last resort, interim storage facilities with limited capacity. This act authorizes the Department of Energy to provide a maximum of 1,900 metric tons of interim storage capacity. This is estimated to represent less than 3 percent of the utilities' spent fuel storage needs through the year 2000. This interim storage is to be provided at existing Federal facilities, so we are not talking about acquiring additional land. And most importantly, this storage is only temporary. Once a permanent deep geologic facility has been constructed and licensed to operate, as is provided for in other sections of this bill, the radioactive waste stored at these interim storage facilities will be transferred to the permanent disposal site. Thus these interim storage facilities do not represent a permanent burden to the individual States in which they are sited. While it can be argued that the permanent disposal sites, ultimately holding materials which will remain radioactive for thousands of years, require stronger States participation in their siting, these interim storage facilities will have no long-term and relatively little short-term impact on their host States.

Mr. Chairman, before closing let me briefly address one last reservation which some of my colleagues may have with my proposed one-House sustain provision. The constitutionality of the one-House sustain provision as a form of legislative veto is currently under review by the courts. My feeling is that the one-House sustain provision which I am proposing for this act is not a direct legislative veto of an Executive order, but rather an action related to a State objection. Historically, a large number of pieces of legislation have been passed containing forms of congressional vetoes, and the courts have accorded to Congress broad discretion to draft necessary institutional arrangements. In any case, I do not feel that we as the legislative branch of the Government should allow the possible actions of the judicial branch to predetermine our course of action in this matter. To do so would be to improperly tip the constitutionally mandated balance of power.

Mr. Chairman, in closing let me just reiterate that we must assure that this legislation clearly establishes a democratic process by which legitimate concerns of the affected States will be heard and resolved by the Federal Government prior to siting of interim storage facilities within their boundaries. I know from the ongoing experience of my State of New Mexico with the Department of Energy's waste isolation pilot plant program that failure to do so can cause substantial problems, delays, and bad feelings between the Federal and State governments. I feel that my amendment will establish an interfacing process between the States and Federal Government which will achieve a proper balance between States rights and the national need to move forward toward the solution of this Nation's radioactive waste problem. I ask my colleagues to support passage of this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. LUJAN) has expired.

(On request of Mr. UDALL and by unanimous consent, Mr. LUJAN was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LUJAN. I will be glad to yield.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, let me say that I am going to support the gentleman's amendment personally, and give just a couple of reasons why.

I have always been in favor of a State veto on these major nuclear facilities. I think rather than running over the States, we ought to bring them into the process. We ought to require at some point that a State, after having been selected for the site, can say, "No thanks" and veto it.

But, there has to be a mechanism so that the Federal Government, in the national interest, the national welfare, can act as we have to do in wartime when we need a military base of some kind, simply override the State in the national interest. We have machinery to do that.

The question in this amendment, this issue here, is how tough should it be. Should we load the dice so that it is fairly easy for the State to veto and get away with it and make it stick, or should we make it tougher for them?

With regard to the away-from-reactor (AFR) spent fuel storage facility that is in the gentleman's amendment, it seems to me that if the State can convince one House of the Congress to agree with it, it ought to be able to avoid the honor of having this AFR facility.

With regard to the deep geologic storage, I take a different view, and I think I am consistent in doing so, but I think the gentleman's approach is the correct one and I would personally support the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. LUJAN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LUJAN. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I am just curious here about why the gentleman wants to weaken the States' position. Under the current bill we treat AFR's like we do permanent repositories. Now, the gentleman is coming along and treating AFR's differently, and is weakening the States' power.

Why should AFR's be treated any differently than a permanent repository? They are just as dangerous to the public, are they not?

Mr. LUJAN. Well, there are two different types of facility. The permanent repository will last for thousands of years. This one, the gentleman must remember, is simply an interim storage facility.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New Mexico has again expired.

(At the request of Mr. MARRIOTT and by unanimous consent, Mr. LUJAN was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. LUJAN. This, the gentleman must agree, is simply a temporary, interim storage facility so that as soon as the permanent repository is completed these will be taken out of there and there will be no permanent damage done.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I understand that, but from the State's point of view, it seems to me the States should be just as concerned about nuclear waste material coming in on a temporary basis as they are on a permanent basis. In fact, they might have more security if they knew we had a permanent Federal repository. I am wondering why it is you want to weaken the States' position. Why not leave it like it is?

Mr. LUJAN. The gentleman must understand what we are doing here. We are just hedging our bet a little bit if the repository is not ready yet. It is limited to 1,900 metric tons, a infinitesimal amount of what is needed, so it is just for a very short time that these materials will be there before they are moved to the permanent repository.

Mr. MARRIOTT. But if there is any doubt that this is in the national interest, does it not make sense that both Houses will override the veto anyway?

Mr. LUJAN. Well, under the present provisions of the bill, I might just tell the gentleman there is another point that must be considered. The State might say, "We do not want it," and give absolutely no reason, and then it must take the two Houses to override. Under this, they must give their reasons why they do not want it, to say if there is some technical problem or some public health problem—not just because it is politically popular to say that they do not want it. We are going to get that from everyone of the 50 States, so we make some additional provisions to strengthen it.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. There were very few areas on which we were unable to reach agreement when push finally came to shove at the 11th hour on this bill, but this was one of the areas. There are a great many of us who felt that there was no need for the AFR provided by the Federal Government at all, and indeed an amendment in our committee which would have knocked out the AFR provisions lost by only a few votes.

The fact of the matter is that the utilities have done nothing to expand their spent fuel storage, waiting for the Federal Government to act. That is not entirely their fault, since at various times various administrations have indicated that the administration would in fact act first by supporting reprocessing, and then, as under the Carter administration, by supplying an AFR. But, the process of getting approval to add to a spent fuel storage facility is so simple—these things are essentially swimming pools—but no utility has requested permission from NRC for this very simple thing. Once the utilities understand that the Federal Government is not going to pick up this ball for them, then I think they will be able to act readily.

It was the structure of the compromise and the bill we put through that we would have last resort storage capacity just in case, for some unforeseen reason, utilities could not expand existing onsite storage, or by installing dry storage. The NRC testified before our committee that dry storage technologies could be approved within 1 year, and that it was some 5 or 6 years before any utility would need this AFR capacity.

But, just in case something fouled it up, we decided to establish a last resort AFR, but put as many obstacles to creating a Federal AFR as possible to put pressure on the utilities to provide for spent fuel storage themselves. We provided, for example, that the NRC would have to make a determination that in fact there would be no AFR facility unless a utility could show to the NRC in an on-the-record hearing that failure to provide such storage would interfere with the orderly operation of the reactor; that in fact a reactor would have to close down if AFR facilities were not created.

One of the other things we provided was a two-House veto so that if a State objected to the siting of an AFR, the State would have an enforceable means to exclude an AFR it felt to be unnecessary. Certainly, the State is going to be very much concerned. If the State feels that a utility in that State is going to have to close down and therefore buy higher cost replacement power, the State is not going to seek to veto that application. But, if the State feels that the utility is acting arbitrarily or operating in such a way as to increase spent fuel transportation to an AFR or increase the danger to its residents it ought to have an effective means to veto that decision.

The second argument of the gentleman from New Mexico is the constitutional question; that is to say, that there is a recent Federal court case that has declared the one House veto unconstitutional, and if the Supreme Court concurs, this provision could be eliminated. That means that under the separability clause as provided in this legislation, there would be no State protection whatsoever. This is a precursor to an argument that will be made for an amendment offered by my good friend from North Carolina sometime following this amendment, that there should be a one-House veto with respect to a permanent repository. Clearly, what my friends are seeking to do is take the easier case with the AFR section. If they can get a one-House veto here, they can say, "You have already done it here, why not do it on the other."

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OTTINGER. I yield.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is completely incorrect. As a matter of fact, in the Interior Committee I have always supported the two-House override for permanent repositories. I just thought in this particular case, as a last resort, interim storage facilities, the one-House approval was better.

Let me also raise one additional point. We do consider it, as the gentleman has said, a last resort, interim storage facility. As the gentleman knows, we have done everything we can in the bill to encourage the utilities to expand at the prime site to the maximum that they possibly can, and only—and only in the case where it is found that they cannot do that, then we have to have a place to put it as an alternative to closing down the powerplant.

Mr. OTTINGER. Well, I felt that an AFR was not needed. I still feel it, but I was willing to go along with the last resort storage since there was so much pressure and so much interest in it by so many Members, but I do think it really ought to be a last resort. Part of that making it a really last resort is to give the States an effective right. That is the reason I am differing from my colleague from New Mexico and feel that a two-House veto is warranted in this case particularly, in view of the fact that if the one-House veto is declared unconstitutional, the State would have no protection at all.

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I want to make it clear that the section of the bill which we are addressing at this time is that section which provides for a last resort temporary interim storage facility at present Federal sites for spent fuel. I might point out, of course, that this last resort spent fuel program does include, of course, a number of environmental protections as well as State participation guarantees.

It has already been pointed out by the gentleman from New Mexico that this program is limited to only 1,900 metric tons. In other words, only 1,900 metric tons can be stored in these last resort fuel storage facilities. That is less than 3 percent of the total spent fuel that was projected to be generated by nuclear powerplants by the year 2000.

We are not sure as to when the permanent repository is going to be in place or be available. What concerns us is that there may be a window in the later 1980's or early 1990's where some utility in some part of the country is going to have a problem.

They will not be able to pull the used spent fuel and to have any place to put it. The bill, of course, requires the utilities to make every effort to provide for themselves. In fact, the NRC has to make that determination as to whether or not they have met and done everything they can to provide the storage space for themselves, but having done that, there may be some emergency and for that reason we feel there should be some place that could be used as a temporary storage facility.

As I pointed out, this only provides for 1,900 metric tons in a last resort interim spent fuel storage facility. Now, one of the concerns that was brought up in the debate, as well as in all of the negotiations that occurred on this bill, was as to where these 1,900 tons are going to end up, and it was never the intent of the sponsors of this AFR amendment that those 1,900 tons end up in one particular State, region or one particular area. It was always the intent that the spent fuel be scattered around the country, and it was for that reason that we provided the State veto of more than 300 or more metric tons of storage at any one Federal facility. We feel that will have the practical effect of assuring that these materials will be scattered at Federal facilities that are presently storing or presently handling nuclear spent fuel so that that will be scattered around the country.

Mr. Chairman, I urge the adoption of this amendment. This amendment provides that if the Governor does veto it, he would have to come to the Congress and get one House to sustain his action. It seems to me that this is entirely reasonable, but I suspect that it will not be needed inasmuch as our intent is to try to scatter these materials around the country, and I doubt that the State veto would even come up under those circumstances.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

I rise in opposition to the amendment because it sets the precedent for saying that the States ought not to have full participation in decisions which will affect them for perhaps generations and perhaps a lot longer than that. We cannot have any guarantees as to what the timeframe will be for the construction of a permanent repository in this country. We can guarantee a meaningful State role.

We have heard arguments that interim storage, really, is not as serious a problem as the permanent repository. Therefore, we can have a one-House veto for interim storage rather than a two-House veto. We hear that State role is not a serious problem? We hear that it is for only—and I repeat only—1,900 or 2,000 metric tons of high level nuclear waste.

Only? Only 2,000 metric tons, that is all. They tell us that is a minor problem; we do not need a two-House veto on something like that; we can just select any State and dump it in that State and we do not have to give them the full rights of participation.

My belief is that the State ought to have the strongest possible role. It is ironic that here in the House we hear those most ardent supporters of States rights come down on the opposite side of that issue when issues which most seriously and dramatically affect the long-term environments in their State are at issue. Here, for some reason or other, many Members are willing to argue that the States ought not to have a strong role. They argue that States should yield to the Federal Government. It ought to be "Big Daddy" that decides to select any site in America it wants. The Washington bureaucrat should decide that they will plunk down a facility in the middle of your State and give you 2,000 tons of nuclear waste, severely constraining the ability of the State to fully participate in that decisionmaking process.

As much as it might seem to be contradictory, those of us who believe that the States ought to have a full role in decisionmaking come from States that are not ordinarily identified with that issue. But we believe that on issues of this nature it makes a lot of sense to give our States that full role.

Now, why is this State role amendment a problem? It is a problem for a number of reasons. It gives the States which will eventually just be swept out of the way by an administration, which is fully committed to those States' right to raise questions as to how much transportation of nuclear waste will be increased within their borders, and what will be the routes, and what will be the nature of the facility, and what kind of conditional environmental safeguards we build in it. It gives each State the leverage in negotiations with the Federal Government that each State is going to need to insure that it has the strongest possible set of protections are built into any facility.

Now, we are also running into another very serious problem. A Federal district court of the District of Columbia has ruled recently that the one-House veto is most likely unconstitutional. Therefore, what we might be talking about here is whether we should adopt a provision of this bill that is likely to be struck down as unconstitutional. And with the severability clause of this legislation, we are debating whether we will allow no State role in the bill because we have not included in it the strongest possible protection for the States.

What have the courts said? The courts have said—and it is being interpreted now in its broadest possible terms—that not only is a one-House veto considered unconstitutional, but a two-House veto is unconstitutional. It is only a two-House action with the President's signature. A joint resolution is within the scope of the law, according to a full reading of the Federal district court decision.

So what we are talking about is not something that just runs contrary to commonsense; it also runs contrary to law, to the constitutional protections which are built into a Presidential decision.

So what we need to have is commonsense reign. We are talking about the most serious environmental problem any State could possibly encounter as soon as a State is designated for an away-from-reactor facility. If we establish the precedent here that we do not recognize State role for the away-from-reactor storage, then we would be hard pressed to argue that there ought not to be an exception made for the permanent repository. We are going to have to be intellectually consistent here. The extent of the problem is relatively the same whether we talk about permanent or interim storage of these materials. And, I would argue that it is not going to do anyone any good to try to include a provision which ultimately is going to be struck down by the Supreme Court. We should not offer the States an empty role in the decisionmaking process.

So, Mr. Chairman, I would hope that the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. LUJAN) is rejected as an attempt to undermine the full role which the States should have in considering the placement of nuclear waste repositories within their boundaries.

The CHAIRMAN. If there is no further debate, the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. LUJAN).

The question was taken, and the chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. HUCKABY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 181, noes 194, not voting 58, as follows:

Messrs. VOLKMER, WIRTH, CRAIG, and HANSEN of Idaho changed their votes from "aye" to "no."

Messrs. WILSON, BADHAM, and GEJDENSON changed their votes from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

REQUEST FOR CONSIDERATION OF AMENDMENT

Mr. HUCKABY. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. BIAGGI). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like to inquire of the author of the amendment the nature of the amendment which he is seeking unanimous consent to offer.

Mr. HUCKABY. Mr. Chairman, I think, as most Members of the House realize, this is a unique bill. In fact, both the Commerce Committee and the Interior Committee had joint jurisdiction over this legislation.

When Members were invited to testify before the Rules Committee, Mr. Chairman, there was not a printed bill that is before the Members today. The staffs were in the process of merging the Interior Committee bill with the Commerce Committee bill when the Members testified before the Rules Committee, Mr. Chairman.

I assumed, as I think many Members assumed, that provisions that were identical in the two bills would emerge as identical in the bill that is before the Members of the House. And hence,

Mr. Chairman, I did not ask for a rule that would reinstate a section of the bill that was passed in the same language by both the Commerce Committee and the Interior Committee. That is why I find myself in the unique position of having to come before the House to ask unanimous consent to present an amendment that has been voted on and has been approved by both the Commerce Committee and by the Interior Committee.

Mr. Chairman, I think that the integrity of the House is at stake here, and the fact that we as the Members may not have an opportunity to vote on this provision that was passed identically by both committees.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like one additional question answered by the author of the amendment.

As a relatively new Member of this body, I am taken by surprise by the action that has occurred here. Is the gentleman saying that the Rules Committee has reported out a bill that is different from the language that was adopted in both the Energy and Commerce Committee and the Interior Committee?

Mr. HUCKABY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, that is exactly right. If I might refer to the nature of the amendment. The Interior bill directs the Department of Energy to go henceforth and select three sites, narrow down this selection process to three sites in three different geological media. The Commerce bill also has directed them to pick three sites, but in at least two media. But both said they must pick three sites.

Today we have before us a bill that says you must now go out and pick five sites in two media. What does this do, Mr. Chairman? The Department of Energy has estimated it will cost at least an additional $100 million, which they consider wasted money. Plus it puts us into a possible scenario of the fact that since they only have to have two different media the Department of Energy could possibly not pick their second choice now.

An amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Mississippi will eliminate the third choice, the State of Mississippi. The Department of Energy has an agreement with the State of Louisiana at the very highest levels to exclude that State which is their fourth choice.

So this legislation could very well mandate that if we have problems with the first choice, you have to jump all the way down to the fifth choice in the order of priorities of which site should be chosen.

I think there are numerous flaws. I do not know exactly how these numbers were changed in the committee process, but I would urge the chairman and the ranking minority members to at least give the Members of the House of Representatives the opportunity to hear the debate and consider what both committees have already passed and what we thought would be reported to the floor of the House of Representatives.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. ROEMER).

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Chairman, as I understand it the point that the gentleman from Louisiana makes is that his amendment would adhere to what has come out of both the Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs in regard to number of sites selected, and that would be three.

Am I correct in that?

Mr. TAUZIN. That is the explanation I just received. What appalls me, however, is that having served on the Committee on Energy and Commerce, having voted with that committee to report a bill that provided for the selection of three sites, having seen the Interior bill providing for the selection of three sites, I cannot yet understand by what procedure are we looking at a bill that now provides for five sites. I do not understand that.

Perhaps the gentleman could answer that question.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TAUZIN. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. I think I can clarify this situation somewhat. The representation from the gentleman from Louisiana is not wholly accurate. The Commerce bill in fact provides for the selection of six sites, and the Interior bill provides for five sites. The substitute before us provides for the selection of five sites with one additional site at a later date. Only the dates for site selection have been changed, not the number of sites to be selected.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order. I object.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Chair will inquire, what is the gentleman's point of order?

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, I object. Does that not bring to a halt the reservations?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Objection is heard. The unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. HUCKABY) is denied.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. STRATTON

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment which is in order under the rule.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STRATTON: On page 10, after line 25, insert the following new section:

APPLICABILITY

SEC. 8. (a) ATOMIC ENERGY DEFENSE ACTIVITIES.—Subject to the provisions of subsection (c), the provisions of this Act shall not apply with respect to any atomic energy defense activity or to any facility used in connection with any such activity.

(b) EVALUATION BY PRESIDENT.—(1) Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall evaluate the use of disposal capacity at one or more repositories to be developed under subtitle A of title I for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste resulting from atomic energy defense activities. Such evaluation shall take into consideration factors relating to cost, efficiency, health and safety, regulation, transportation, public acceptability, and national security.

(2) Unless the President finds, after conducting the evaluation required in paragraph (1), that the development of a repository for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste resulting from atomic energy defense activities only is required, taking into account all of the factors described in such subsection, the Secretary shall proceed promptly with arrangement for the use of one or more of the repositories to be developed under subtitle A of title I for the disposal of such waste.

(3) Any repository for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste resulting from atomic energy defense activities only shall (A) be subject to licensing under section 202 of the Energy Reorganization Act of 1973 (42 U.S.C. 5842); and (B) comply with all requirements of the Commission for the siting, development, construction, and operation of a repository.

(c) APPLICABILITY TO CERTAIN REPOSITORIES.—The provisions of this Act shall apply with respect to any repository not used exclusively for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste or spent nuclear fuel resulting from atomic energy defense activities, research and development activities of the Secretary, or both.

On page 11, strike out line 5 and all that follows through line 15 on page 12 (and redesignate the following section accordingly).

On page 12, line 20, strike out "section 101" and insert in lieu thereof "section 8".

On page 72, beginning on line 2, strike out "section 102" and insert in lieu thereof "section 8".

On page 98, strike out lines 22 through 25 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

SEC. 212. The provisions of this title are subject to section 8 and shall not apply to facilities that are used for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste, low-level radioactive waste, transuranic waste, or spent nuclear fuel resulting from atomic energy defense activities.

On page 137, beginning on line 8, strike out "section 102" and insert in lieu thereof "section 8".

Conform the table of contents on page 2 accordingly.

Mr. STRATTON (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, I hesitate to interrupt the enlightening discussion that was going on just a moment ago. But the Rules Committee, on considering this highly complex bill, did provide for the consideration of a number of specific amendments; and those individuals who had other amendments, which the Rules Committee in their wisdom did not consider as important to the legislation, had to request unanimous consent. I think in pursuit of orderly procedure we ought to deal first with those matters which the Rules Committee had felt were of primary importance.

At this particular point, Mr. Chairman, there is a good deal of confusion as to exactly what is going on. This amendment, which I offer on behalf of the Armed Services Committee, is a very simple one and one on which I do not believe there is a great deal of controversy, either on the part of the chairman of the committee or the ranking member on the other side.

It would simply exclude from the provisions of the bill, not merely in title I and in title III, but in all three titles—the nuclear defense activities of the Department of Energy.

I would yield at this point to the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL).

Mr. UDALL. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

He and I have one major difference on this whole nuclear waste business, and that is I would hope that we would have a repository for both defense and commercial nuclear material.

The Armed Services Committee and the distinguished gentleman from New York have resisted this very strongly. I suspect some day the military is going to be up there knocking on the door, when we get it all built, and asking us to put in the civilian repository, the military waste.

But that is not involved in this fight today, and it is not involved in the bill coming before us.

As I understand the gentleman's amendment, he is simply trying to nail down that the exemption of military waste from the Commerce and Interior titles of the bill and also from the title of subcommittee of the Committee on Science and Technology chaired by the gentlewoman from Tennessee (Mrs. BOUQUARD) turned out, that that exemption continues in full force and effect. I agree with that, and I see no objection to the amendment because I think it carries out what we intended to carry out anyway.

Mr. STRATTON. I appreciate the chairman's comment and let me just say that I also share the view of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL). In fact, at some future date I am sure there will be a common repository for defense wastes, as well as for civilian wastes, but that will be many years down the road, as I see it.

The point is that today, in the defense activities of the Department of Energy, we have a number of specific kinds of waste facilities, and we do not believe that it is in the national interest to have those comingled with the various facilities that are contemplated in the other titles of this bill.

Mrs. BOUQUARD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STRATTON. I would be glad to yield to my friend, the gentlewoman from Tennessee.

Mrs. BOUQUARD. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the gentleman's amendment. It is merely a technical amendment to clarify several provisions of the bill dealing with the atomic energy defense activities. I do not think it changes the substance of the bill. I do support the amendment.

Mr. STRATTON. I thank the gentlewoman for her support.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STRATTON. I would be glad to yield to my friend, the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to the gentleman's amendment. My understanding is that it just applies to the science title of the bill, those provisions with respect to atomic energy defense activities that already exist with respect to the other titles of the bill. That being the case, while I agree with the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL), I would rather have provided for a comingling at this point, the provisions of the bill provide for that eventually if the President so decides.

I have no objection to the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, I wonder if I could have the attention of the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL).

Since these other leaders in the nuclear energy legislation have indicated their willingness to support this House Armed Services Committee amendment, I am just wondering whether the gentleman might want to add his accolades as well.

Mr. BROYHILL. Yes. The amendment is acceptable on this side.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STRATTON. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from New Mexico.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, I have consulted with my colleagues over here on this side. We have absolutely no objection to the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, the issue whether or not defense wastes ought to be included in any permanent waste solution that we put together for this country this week is a central concern. Ninety percent of all nuclear wastes in this country by volume is military nuclear waste. Ordinary citizens cannot differentiate between civilian waste and military waste as it is stored near population centers.

As we establish the rules and regulations by which any facility will be constructed it is critical that we do so on a uniform basis. We cannot establish arbitrarily two classes of nuclear waste, when in fact conceptually they are indivisible in the minds of people who have been clamoring for a permanent waste repository for the past generation.

What we see in this amendment is an attempt to undermine the process by which a test and evaluation facility could be used to determine the feasibility of a potential permanent military or civilian nuclear waste facility.

What I am asking for, and because I will later make an amendment to include military waste in this legislation, is for us to leave the bill as it is because it is critical—it is critical if we want to gain the respect of the people in this country who are asking us to put together a permanent nuclear waste bill. We cannot exclude 90 percent of the problem and give a public relations victory for the nuclear utility industry at the expense of the people in this country who so desperately want us to deal with the full realm of nuclear waste in this country.

So I would ask that the amendment by the gentleman from New York be defeated. We must understand that this is a permanent facility for all nuclear waste; that it is impossible to differentiate between military and civilian waste; and that if we are going to be serious about this problem, we cannot allow the sacred cow of defense security to be able in any way to mitigate our efforts to deal with this problem in a comprehensive way. That is what has to be the critical word in any negotiations or any deliberations today: comprehensive.

We are talking about all the nuclear waste which has been generated over the past generations and all that will be generated in the years to come. Otherwise, what we have put together here is nothing but a bailout for the private nuclear utility industry and we will not have dealt with the problem of all the nuclear wastes generated in this country.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MARKEY. I would be glad to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. I am sure the gentleman is aware of it, because he has been working so hard on this bill, but I would like for the sake of the committee to point out where we stand on this.

The science and technology section of the bill, title II, already has a military exclusion in it.

The other titles to the bill have the following provisions: First of all, that if there is a separate military facility, and there is no mandate that there be a separate military facility, but if a separate military only repository is created, then it will be subject to the State participation provisions of this act, but not to the other provisions of the act. This very important provision was included through the leadership of the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. MONTGOMERY).

A comingled repository is subject to all provisions of the act.

Lastly, we provide that there will be comingling unless the President finds after a 2-year study that is mandated in the act that there are national security and other important reasons for not providing that comingling. That is the best we could get in our negotiations. It goes a long way toward the position that the gentleman desires. I am sorry that we could not go all the way, but so far as this amendment is concerned, it really has very little to do with the ultimate question which the gentleman so ably addressed.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, if I might reclaim my time, I would argue that from beginning to end there ought to be no distinction between civilian and military wastes. As long as we can provide for the security purposes of the disguising of the military nuclear wastes, then that ought to be the only limitation upon its being treated identically to any civilian wastes.

We have been assured by Department of Energy and by Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials that that is the case. That being the case, I see no reason why we should set up two separate tracks that will engage in different procedures and different safeguards in terms of the construction of any facility for the treatment of any nuclear wastes.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts has expired.

(At the request of Mr. SANTINI, and by unanimous consent, Mr. MARKEY was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. SANTINI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MARKEY. I am happy to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SANTINI. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman makes an extremely valuable point that should be emphasized time and time again in the course of the deliberations on this legislation, and that is essentially that this legislation is addressing approximately 20 percent of the problem, the civilian waste. It ignores or postpones any meaningful decision response to 80 percent of the problem, and that is the military waste.

Now, whether it is in the context of this particular amendment or 2 years hence, we cannot ignore the reality of the fact that 80 percent of the problem solving is being postponed. That is being done for political expediency purposes of the moment, but that chicken will come home to roost in various Members' nests long after certain lameducks have quacked off into the sunset.

I think the gentleman's point should be understood and appreciated. We are beginning the debate on the disposition of nuclear wastes. We are not resolving the question.

Mr. MARKEY. I thank the gentleman for his point.

I would argue once again that to remove military waste is arbitrary. We have to put together a comprehensive bill. To not do so would be dangerous to the environment and to the people of this country. I argue for rejection of the amendment of the gentleman from New York.

Mrs. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I urge acceptance of the Stratton amendment. It is simply technical in nature.

□ 1540

The gentleman from Massachusetts is wrong. This is included in one title of the bill, and all we are asking is that it be included in three titles of the bill. It is purely a technical shifting of the applicability provisions regarding the defense activities from section 101 of title I to a new section 8.

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mrs. HOLT. I will be happy to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. STRATTON. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, as the ranking Republican member of the subcommittee, the gentlewoman from Maryland is an extremely able participant in these discussions. She is well aware that the allegation that has just been made by the gentleman from Massachusetts that this somehow does not apply to nuclear waste provided by defense activities of the DOE is completely wrong. In fact, 98 percent of the substitute bill would not apply to a DOE defense program in any case.

The purpose of the substitute legislation is that it deals with repositories of permanent high-level waste and the interim storage of spent power reactor fuels.

The fact of the matter is that it will be 10 years before defense high-level wastes are even in an appropriate form for disposal, if we assume that all of the bureaucratic State and regulatory hurdles have been crossed by that time.

As I referred in my colloquy earlier with the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL), at that time we anticipate that the defense and civilian fuels will very likely be commingled in those repositories.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. STRATTON).

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MARRIOTT

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. OTTINGER) reserves a point of order.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman if his amendment is made in order by the rule.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Yes, it is, Mr. Chairman. I have three amendments, and all three of them have been made in order.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, may I ask the gentleman which amendment this is?

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, we will be issuing amendment No. 1, printed in the Record on page H7739, having to do with the transportation of nuclear waste.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MARRIOTT: Page 16, line 24, insert after the period the following new sentence: "Such guidelines shall take into consideration the proximity to sites where high-level radioactive waste is generated or temporarily stored and the transportation and safety factors involved in moving such waste to a repository."

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, currently under section 112A, the Secretary must take into account certain guidelines in selecting a repository. He has to take into account the proximity to the water supplies, national parks, the effect on population and natural resources.

What my amendment does is simply require the Secretary, in establishing guidelines for a permanent repository, to consider the proximity to nuclear reactors and the transportation factors when recommending sites for characterization.

This would minimize the danger to public health and safety by carefully considering the distance this material will be shipped.

More than 3,000 metric tons of high-level radioactive waste will be shipped by rail or truck annually through highly populated areas, and all we are doing here is asking the Secretary to make, as part of his guidelines, the transportation safety issues as well as some of the others.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. UDALL. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to the amendment. I think what we are doing here will be followed by a number of other amendments where we are saying to the Secretary that as he develops the guidelines for this facility, consider so-and-so.

Here the gentleman from Utah focuses on transportation. Obviously, that is a key consideration that ought to be looked at.

Mr. Chairman, I have no objection to the amendment.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, we focus on transportation and the distance between the reactor and the repository site.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman's amendment makes a good deal of sense, and we should try to locate these repositories as close as possible to the reactors and, therefore, we have no objection to the amendment.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield to the gentleman from New Mexico.

Mr. LUJAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, as I understand the amendment, it just adds transportation as one of the factors to be considered in the selection of a site. Is that correct?

Mr. MARRIOTT. Also proximity to the reactor.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, we have no objection to the amendment.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, with all that support, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MARRIOTT).

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MARRIOTT

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I offer a second amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MARRIOTT: Page 23, beginning on line 1, strike out "at not less than 3 candidate sites approved under section 112" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "beginning with 3 candidate sites that have been approved under section 112 and are located in at least 2 different geologic media".

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, this amendment requires the Secretary to carry out characterization activities of at least three sites in two different geologic media. The original intent of this bill reported out of committee was that three sites should be recommended for characterization in the first phase, and three sites would actually be characterized.

All these, however, could be characterized in one medium. It was the intent of the committee that we use three different media—salt, basalt, and tuff—to be evaluated.

During the drafting of the final compromise, changes made to require five sites to be recommended by DOE with at least three to be characterized, and all sites could be characterized in one medium, clearly not the intent of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, the Committee on Energy and Commerce, or the Department of Energy.

Therefore, what this amendment does is to restore us to the original intent of the committees.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. OTTINGER. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, this was actually what had been provided by, I think, both of the committees. It is the intent of our committee that two geologic media be included and, therefore, I support the amendment.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. UDALL. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, this does, as the gentleman suggests, correct a drafting error. This is what was intended.

Mr. Chairman, I have no objection.

Mr. LUJAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield to the gentleman from New Mexico.

Mr. LUJAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman to clarify something for me.

The amendment says "not less than three candidate sites approved under section 112," and further, "in at least two different geologic media."

Let us assume that we get to the point where we decided that one particular medium is the one where it should be. It is the gentleman's feeling that we still ought to characterize that medium that we think is the best or the probable one, and then another that we may have found that we are not going to use at all?

Mr. MARRIOTT. No. It is the intent of the author of this amendment to say that we need to evaluate all of the various media, salts, basalt, and tuff.

Right now, as I read the way the bill was written, it really would say that we could do all of our characterization in one medium, say salt only, and not be concerned with evaluating either basalt or tuff. This amendment requires at least evaluation of two different media.

Mr. LUJAN. I thank the gentleman for his explanation.

Mr. Chairman, we have no objection to the gentleman's amendment.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MARRIOTT).

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. MARRIOTT

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. MARRIOTT: Page 24, line 7, insert "and for the mitigation of any significant adverse environmental impacts caused by site characterization activities" after "candidate site".

(4) If a site is determined to be unsuitable for application for a construction authorization for a repository, the Secretary shall take reasonable and necessary steps to reclaim the site and to mitigate any significant adverse environmental impacts caused by site characterization activities.

□ 1550

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, the Secretary under the current bill is required only to minimize environmental impact during characterization activities. Plans for site characterization contain no plan for mitigation, only those activities which are permanently terminated. This amendment requires the site characterization plan for a candidate site to include a plan of mitigation. It also requires the Secretary to reclaim the land and mitigate significant environmental impacts once a candidate site is determined unsuitable for a repository.

It provides front-end assurance to States that these concerns have been looked at and addressed at the Federal level. It is logical to assume that the DOE will go ahead and remove the evidence of this work and restore the land. The concrete assurance is absent from the bill.

Potential impacts of these studies requiring mitigation would be the removal of surface facilities, revegetation, and most important, the disposal of the quantity of material removed from the exploratory shaft. The quantity of material from inside the shaft to be disposed of is staggering. DOE estimates moving as much as 40,000 to 50,000 cubic yards of salt during its study of that medium. The amendment will not leave the fate of the restoration of this land in the air.

What the amendment does in layman's language, is say that when the Federal Government has completed its studies, it will in fact mitigate any damages caused if the site is unacceptable.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MARRIOTT. I yield.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to tell the gentleman that this amendment is so good that I wish that I had thought of it myself. We enthusiastically support the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. MARRIOTT. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I am in favor of the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, with this overwhelming support I will take my seat.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. BIAGGI). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MARRIOTT).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. LOTT

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows: The sentence beginning on page 16, line 24, and ending on page 17, line 4, is amended to read as follows: "Such guidelines shall specify population factors that will disqualify any site from development as a repository if any such site would be located (1) in a highly populated area; or (2) adjacent to an area 1 mile by 1 mile having a population of not less than 1,000 individuals."

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to offer an amendment which makes certain that the people of our country are not the losers when a decision is made on where to locate a nuclear waste repository.

It is incredible to me that the paramount issue of the health and safety of our citizens is not assured in this bill. Health and safety are not even given one fraction of the protection which the Congress afforded the snail darter in that landmark legislation of the last Congress.

That is why I am offering my amendment which states simply that a nuclear waste repository cannot be located adjacent to a 1 mile by 1 mile area containing at least 1,000 individuals.

This is not a parochial question. This square mile area could be a section of the city of Cleveland, Ohio, or a town within the State of Mississippi. My amendment is not intended to make distinctions among regions of the country. What it does is to make a universal statement that the rights of people are primary in deciding where to locate nuclear waste facilities, just as they have been in deciding where to locate atomic reactors.

The population language in the bill before us falls short of providing that safeguard by focusing on the "surface facility" on a repository site, instead of the buried highly radioactive waste itself.

The population language in H.R. 7187 states that a site will be disqualified from development as a repository if its "surface facility" is located adjacent to a square mile area of 1,000 persons or more. First, you must understand that a "surface facility" is the above-ground structure—a plywood shack will do—which sits atop a vertical ground shaft leading to the underground area where nuclear waste will be stored.

You must understand as well that no nuclear waste will be enclosed in that surface facility, that shack from which this bill professes to protect the public. Nuclear waste, however, will be stored in horizontal tunnels extending out from that vertical shaft—underground tunnels that will extend laterally in all directions.

As a result, radioactive material could end up, not 1 or 2 miles away from a populated area, but directly underneath the residents of a city.

Clearly this is not Congress legislative intent, and I am offering my amendment to clarify that the final resting place of these contaminated materials—not a benign surface facility—is the focus of concern.

The Senate companion to the legislation we are considering today, S. 1662, which was approved earlier, contains no population density standard, leaving DOE to decide questions of safety. I urge you not to leave this decision to others.

Since the development of nuclear power during World War II, population has been the primary consideration in deciding where to locate atomic facilities. In fact, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has declined to license several powerplants because of their proximity to populated areas. Now, when we come to the question of where to discard our highly radioactive nuclear wastes, are we going to abandon 40 years of prudent practice and say that population does not count?

Within the past year, the Office of Technology Assessment released a widely respected study which concluded that the most difficult aspect of the whole repository program is the fact that the public has lost confidence in the Federal Government's ability to effectively manage the nuclear waste disposal program. What do you think will be the effect on this matter of public confidence if the population question is ignored in this legislation?

The vote before you is on the question of protecting the rights of citizens in all communities and cities as an integral part of setting national policy for nuclear waste disposal.

Under this legislation, five candidate sites will be recommended to the President by DOE in 1984 for selection as a repository.

If you have not already had the opportunity to do so, I strongly urge you to study the maps which are available off the floor which show the locations where nuclear waste may one day be buried.

If your communities are not now targeted, you may be next. You will be prudent to vote cautiously on this basic safety standard for protecting the public.

Members might say that this does not affect them, but I urge them to take a look at that map showing different geological formations. I think they will see that probably as many as 30 of the States could have an area that could be touched, and some of these formations are in the Northeast, running into Pennsylvania and New York and the Midwest; some of them are out West, and some of them are in the South.

All I am saying here is that we should pay attention to population density, and we should say clearly what the general area and the population level is that should be considered. This is not a regional question.

Mr. MORRISON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LOTT. I would be glad to yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. MORRISON. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. This amendment does represent a population density compromise, and my district has a direct interest in this matter. I find the amendment satisfactory to us in the West.

Mr. LOTT. I appreciate the gentleman's comment.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I wish I could share that enthusiasm for the amendment, but apparently there are about five States now being considered for these repositories.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Mississippi has expired.

(At the request of Mr. MARRIOTT and by unanimous consent, Mr. LOTT was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. MARRIOTT. What this amendment does is really exclude Mississippi from being one of the plans, does it not?

Mr. LOTT. It does not. I am glad the gentleman raised that question, because even in my own congressional district it would only affect one of the two sites being considered. As a matter of fact, two of the top three in the Nation are in my district.

All I intend to say is where we have people in the immediate area, that factor should be a major consideration.

Mr. MARRIOTT. We do not want to increase the odds of having this in Utah by excluding Mississippi. I mean, that is what the bottom line is.

Mr. LOTT. I want to emphasize again that my State still will have one of the major sites.

Mr. MARRIOTT. We would like all sites to be looked at equally. In the guidelines, does it now require the Secretary to look at the population issue? If that is already in there, then I am wondering exactly what purpose this amendment serves.

□ 1600

Mr. LOTT. What guidelines is the gentleman referring to, the existing guidelines?

Mr. MARRIOTT. No.

Mr. LOTT. We do not know what those will be.

Mr. MARRIOTT. In the bill we established guidelines the Secretary must adhere to in selecting a repository. One of those was a proximity to national parks, one was population density, and one was the effect on water.

I just put the amendment in now that dealt with transportation agencies. Now, if that is in the bill, then it looks to me like what the gentleman is doing is going beyond that now and excluding a certain region of the country.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will allow me to make this comment, there will be efforts, I presume, later to knock even that reference out. There are those Members here who are going to be saying that we should give more consideration to maintaining pristine areas then to the consideration of human beings in making these determinations.

So I want to reemphasize that there are areas all over the country that may be affected by this population question, maybe not this year or next year, but they do exist as possible sites in the future. It is not a question that would affect population in just the East or the Midwest, but it would also affect the West.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Does this amendment, then, exclude specifically an area in Mississippi?

Mr. LOTT. It would have the effect of excluding one, but not both of the ones that are now under consideration.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, I urge a favorable vote on this amendment.

Mr. JOHN L. BURTON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I have listened to the debate here for some time, and I believe everybody has a theory about nuclear waste, that it ought to be stored here or there but not in their own backyards, and I can appreciate that.

I think in the spirit of compromise maybe the chairman of the committee should offer an amendment that says we do not produce any more nuclear waste, and then we would not have this problem.

I wonder if the distinguished Republican whip would support that type of approach?

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JOHN L. BURTON. I am happy to yield to my good friend, the Republican whip.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, I do not think I would support that approach. I have confidence that all the various committees that have worked on this legislation and the House will be able to come up with a finished product that will help us deal with the materials involved and still allow us to have the benefit of nuclear power.

Mr. JOHN L. BURTON. As long as it is not in Mississippi?

Mr. LOTT. I want to reemphasize that there is still at least one site in Mississippi that would be qualified under my amendment, and there could be others.

Mr. JOHN L. BURTON. Is that in SONNY MONTGOMERY's district?

Mr. LOTT. No.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I have great admiration for the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. LOTT). He is one of the outstanding Members of this House. He fights very hard for his people and his district, and I suspect that most of us, given his situation, would be doing what he is doing here today.

But one of the most depressing things in public life is to find paralysis, to find that you cannot make a decision because you have paralysis. We are going to be tested on this amendment and a half a dozen more like it before we are through here, where we have a little old amendment that says this in effect: They usually do not come right out and say it, but they say in effect, "you can't put this in my district or in my State."

We already have guidelines in the bill. We came out of the committee with a bill with a number of guidelines, and I think it is fair and I think it is right, when the Secretary of Energy is trying to decide where this thing goes and make recommendations to us, that we mandate that you consider transportation, that we mandate that you consider population, and we do not put this in Central Park in New York City, other things being equal.

We are now going beyond that. In the bill we have all kinds of guidelines, and my friend, the gentleman from Mississippi, is talking about population areas, and so on. His amendment would transfer what are sensible guidelines, which we have accepted in the mandate results, and I do not think we should take that step.

It was kind of interesting to me when we were at the committee stage and in the Rules Committee that the gentleman from Mississippi came in and said that he wants an amendment saying we cannot have these repositories where there are a lot of people, and within a very few days the folks in Utah were upon us—not the gentleman from Utah who is on our committee and has been a statesman and very fairminded in voting on this. People were coming in, some of them, and saying, "well, you can't have Mississippi because there are too many people in Congressman LOTT's district," and they were saying, "you can't have it in Utah because there aren't any people." They were proposing to put it out near the Canyonlands National Park. That is a desolate beautiful place, and you do not mess up a beautiful desolate place with some kind of nuclear repository.

So the answer is to reject amendments of this kind to have guidelines. We will have the final say here in the Congress when we come back with the suggested way to handle this, and that is the way to do it. But we are going to open the door if we pass this amendment. We are going to open the door and will consistently have to support a lot of other amendments that will have the net result of canceling out every one of the potential sites.

I remember an old story of my father's that he told about the guy going into a restaurant to eat. He hung up his coat and began to dine, and he saw a thief come in and pick up his coat and put it on and go out the door. He chased him down the street. He would not stop, and he enlisted a cop or policeman, and the policeman, after the fellow with the coat would not stop, raised his gun to fire, and the owner of the coat yelled, "shoot him in the pants."

Well, let me tell you something. We cannot do that as national policy. We cannot sit here in this consideration and, one by one, exclude the sites where this thing ought to go. We want fair consideration. We provided a strong State veto. We have set it up so the final decision would be made by the Congress, and before any studies are made, before any conclusions are drawn, and before any of the myriad protections are set up here, it is wrong for us in this debate now to rule out one of the prime sites, even though it happens to be in the district of my good friend, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. LOTT). As I say, I suspect I would be doing the same thing if it were in my district.

This amendment really ought to be defeated. It is a test of whether we are going to have a workable bill or not. If we are going to have a repository, believe me, it will be in one of the 50 States. It will be in one of the 50 States, and we would be excluded a great State, one of the 50 States, or at least most of it, that part that is in the gentleman's district, if we adopt this amendment.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman acknowledge that there is still one site that is not excluded in my own State by this language?

Mr. UDALL. The gentleman is correct. I wonder if the gentleman from Mississippi, Mr. MONTGOMERY or some other Member would claim parentage of that other site.

Mr. LOTT. No, it is in my district too.

Mr. UDALL. Why should we pick out one of two sites? Why should the Congress decide now that this one is no good and the other one might be considered?

Mr. LOTT. Because of the population, because of the people that are located on top of this particular area. And is it not a fact, I ask the committee chairman, that exemptions have already been given to such things as territories and possessions, which would exclude the Pacific Trust Territories; to ocean disposal, which would exclude the Atlantic and Pacific coastal areas; and defense waste repositories, which would exclude some States that already may have defense wastes? Is there not, as a matter of fact, even broader population density language that would exclude Cleveland, Ohio, and New York City?

Is it not a fact, then, that in this bill there are already several similar exemptions that have been established?

Mr. UDALL. If there are several, I hope the gentleman will help me get them out of there. There are a lot of guidelines, and the difference in this proposal from that of the gentleman from Utah, Mr. MARRIOTT, is that it says we must consider and in any report we must talk about transportation and weigh that.

Mr. LOTT. I have a list of 20 specific exemptions that I would be glad to present to the gentleman so he could go over them. I just mentioned five or six.

Let me say to the committee chairman that I understand his position. He has done a great job with a tough bill that has been evolving over several years, but I am just trying to emphasize that population density should be considered.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. UDALL was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I do not have any prejudgment on this, but I am told by the experts that the site the gentleman excludes is one of the choice sites, that it is one of the very likely sites. If we had to pick out seven, if we got a bunch of scientists to say, "give us seven sites," it would be considered clearly that this is one of the seven that would be picked.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Utah.

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I do have great regard for the gentleman from Mississippi, the minority whip, but I would like to indicate this: That we have been led to believe by Dr. Kaufman and others in the last several months that every site will be evaluated fairly and evenly, that there is no hanky-panky going on, that no deals have been cut underneath the table, and that every site will be looked upon and we will then evaluate them based upon the criteria.

I would think, since we now have this bill—and the committee chairman will correct me if I am wrong—that the concerns of the gentleman from Mississippi have been addressed. They will look at population density among other things, and I would think that is the only way to come out with a bill.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is correct, and he has shown real statesmanship on this because one of the choice sites is in Utah.

I want to make a commitment to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. LOTT) that I made in Salt Lake City to the gentleman's Governor and others there, that if the choice should come down to Utah as one of the sites or if the choice should come down to Mississippi and I am still around and have anything to do with it, there are going to be hearings on the ground by congressional committees. I think we owe that to the people in Utah and in Mississippi, to go down and take a look and see if they have a real case for prohibiting that site from construction or from serious consideration.

Mr. KINDNESS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. KINDNESS. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

The statement has been made two or three times here that among the guidelines is one which provides for the consideration of population. Would someone elucidate on just how population is to be considered? Do the guidelines specify the manner in which it is to be considered?

Mr. UDALL. We have several pages of guidelines and suggestions and that is what they are.

I think what we are saying with population is that, other things being equal, you put it in a lightly populated area. That is what it means to me.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield so I may quote the language?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) has expired.

(At the request of Mr. OTTINGER and by unanimous consent Mr. UDALL was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. OTTINGER. The bill, on page 16, line 24, after specifying the Secretary's ability to set guidelines for consideration in selecting a site says:

Such guidelines shall specify population factors that will disqualify any site from development as a repository if any surface facility of such repository would be located (1) in a highly populated area; or (2) adjacent to an area one mile by one mile having a population of not less than 1,000 individuals.

Mr. UDALL. Bear in mind that this will come back to Congress. We are not deciding this today. We are saying get some site characterization done and eventually the President and the Department of Energy will say to the Congress, "We pick this one here."

Mr. KINDNESS. Will the gentleman yield further on that point?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. KINDNESS. On the point about population the consideration seems to be only with respect to the surface, not where the nuclear waste is stored or located.

Mr. UDALL. The gentleman makes a very good point. What this thing will look like when we get through is you are going to have a very large underground cavern. It may go a mile or two. You go down 4,000 or 5,000 feet, then you go out into the underground a good distance. On top you have a few buildings where they process this stuff, and they have the machinery to operate the mine shaft and all of the rest. But this is not going to be some huge facility. It is probably going to occupy a few dozen acres at best.

Mr. KINDNESS. If it conforms to that prescription then what would be the objection to this amendment? I do not understand.

Mr. UDALL. I cannot see it myself. But I have never met a State Governor or been to a State where the State Governor has any enthusiasm about going into the dark for the next 250,000 years. I am joking.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) has again expired.

(At the request of Ms. OAKAR and by unanimous consent Mr. UDALL was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. UDALL. Nobody is enthused about that. But one of our colleagues I saw here a little earlier said his State and his district would be glad to have it. But I got a quick message from the Senator from that State very shortly thereafter that not all of the people were in favor of having it in their State.

I frankly do not think it is going to be as bad as people think. One can go out in almost any one of our States where it has been suggested and find grave concern. I suppose the politicians reflect it. I suppose I would, too, in that situation.

Mr. KINDNESS. If the gentleman will yield further, if the guideline with respect to surface structures is appropriate, then what is wrong with this amendment? I have completely lost track.

Mr. UDALL. The thing that is wrong with the amendment is that there are five, six, or seven prime sites. In all likelihood if I wrote a list on the back of an envelope of seven places, it is probably going to be in one of those seven places, and what is wrong with this amendment is that it cuts it down to six.

You are simply saying, without any information, any study, that we are going to eliminate this because he is a nice guy, he comes from a nice State, and we are going to eliminate one of the prime areas.

Mr. KINDNESS. The gentleman is surely suggesting, because the guidelines already indicate for surface structures that you want to avoid such population.

Mr. UDALL. These are guidelines and they are not mandatory. They say, all other things being equal, let us take the low population place and not the high population place.

Mr. KINDNESS. Now I understand.

Ms. OAKAR. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Ms. OAKAR. I want the gentleman to know that I certainly respect him and I believe him, but I have never believed the Department of Energy. I think that is the problem that I have with the situation.

For some time in the previous administration and in this administration they have tried to do nuclear testing in the city of Cleveland, right below downtown Cleveland, with the view of burying that nuclear waste underneath the most densely populated area in Ohio. That is why I am reluctant.

If the gentleman were the head of the Department of Energy I would believe it. But I know all of the tricks and the games that they have tried to pull.

Mr. UDALL. Let me say to my friend from Ohio, trust me.

Ms. OAKAR. I do trust you. That is the problem.

Mr. UDALL. This thing will have to come back to the Congress or there will not be a repository anywhere. In about 1985, or 1986, when this whole study is completed, they will say this is the place and they will bring it back to the Congress and we have to make the final decision.

Ms. OAKAR. If I could just add one more thing. This administration is so pro nuclear in its attitude instead of alternative sources of energy that we have more and more wastes and I understand obviously the problem. I just do not trust that they will not plant it in densely populated areas.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) has again expired.

(By unanimous consent Mr. UDALL was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mrs. BYRON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mrs. BYRON. I rise in agreement with the gentleman from Arizona.

What I would like to say to the gentleman from Mississippi is that if the issues he has brought forward today are valid ones then the Select Committee that is going to make that decision between the seven sites will take that into consideration. I think the gentleman has little faith in that committee.

I have to agree with our chairman.

Mr. SANTINI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Nevada.

Mr. SANTINI. The chairman, as usual, is overwhelming in his logic and persuasion, and I am leaning very strongly to go with my chairman on this issue.

However, if my good friend, the imaginative author of this amendment, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. LOTT), would consider by unanimous consent some minor language modifications of his amendment perhaps I could be persuaded to join him in support.

Mr. UDALL. Would those modifications include the exclusion of sites in Nevada?

Mr. SANTINI. No, no, much more objective than that, Mr. Chairman. Any site located within a radius of 112 miles of a major tourism, travel, recreation center in the United States of America that is visited by over 1 million people on an annual basis.

I can see by the gentleman's acquiescence that unanimous consent is agreed to, and I thank him very much.

Mr. LOTT. If the gentleman would yield, may I respond to that?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. LOTT. As the Representative of that beautiful tourist area of Biloxi, Miss., I think we might well qualify under that criteria.

Mr. SANTINI. I hope the gentleman does, and I know we do.

Has unanimous consent been agreed to, Mr. Chairman?

Mr. UDALL. I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UDALL. I yield to my friend from Mississippi.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. I will be very brief with the gentleman in the well.

As I understand the amendment, it says the nuclear waste site cannot be put within a mile of where 1,000 individuals live. That does not seem too unreasonable to this gentleman.

What are we going to do with the 1,000 people? Do they move out, do they stay there, or what?

Mr. UDALL. No; I think there is a misconception my friend has about what we are talking about. There will be a shaft which is 10, 15 feet wide, and they will drill down like they do for a mine and have some equipment to bring things up at the bottom of the shaft.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) has again expired.

(At the request of Mr. MONTGOMERY and by unanimous consent, Mr. UDALL was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. UDALL. They will have a couple of buildings to process this stuff and to house the personnel that are concerned with it. We are not talking about a big military base or hundreds of buildings. It is a relatively small operation.

I think we can and we ought to go along with it.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. You will not move the people out? It will go underground and people will live on top of this nuclear waste.

Mr. UDALL. During construction there will be some of this but no one is going down permanently underneath the ground.

We hope these will be permanent things. They will put the wastes in there and they will backfill it and they will store it and they will block it up and it is going to be there forever, 5,000 feet underground. It is not going to bother anybody on the top of the ground.

Mr. MONTGOMERY. I rise in support of the Lott amendment and even though this is not in my district I certainly would not want these people to get hurt or feel uncomfortable even though the site under consideration is not in my district.

I thank the gentleman.

Mr. SANTINI. Will the gentleman yield again?

Mr. UDALL. Would the gentleman like the shaft I am talking about in his district?

Mr. SANTINI. I was concerned with precisely where that shaft was going, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. UDALL. I urge the defeat of the amendment.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words and rise in opposition to the amendment.

There is very little I can add to the fine words of my friend from Arizona as augmented very ably by my colleague on our committee from Nevada, Mr. SANTINI, who is on both committees.

□ 1620

The fact is that there is a real difference in the language of the bill as it presently stands and the language of the amendment. The language of the amendment would have the effect of absolutely excluding the site of Richton, Miss., the only site in the country that would be excluded. I think that kind of a provision—which would be requested for each area that was under consideration—is a tremendous mistake. I think that language specifying 1 mile from a population of 1,000 individuals is arbitrary. It was originally included because of the tremendous power and prestige and influence of the gentleman from Mississippi. I do not think it belongs in the bill. I think we ought to have a general population criteria, then have the Secretary come back with a specific standard. I understand the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. WIRTH) will offer such an amendment. It seems to me that that is the correct way to go. That would leave all of the areas of the country at equal jeopardy, with an objective look-see at which are the best sites and then take a look at the particular objections of an individual State when one site is tentatively selected and is going to be characterized.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OTTINGER. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. LOTT. I take it that the gentleman does think that population density is a factor that should have major consideration in deciding where a repository should go.

Mr. OTTINGER. Absolutely. It ought to be a very important consideration.

Mr. LOTT. And the gentleman does acknowledge that the two words "surface facility" significantly alter the population density language now included in the bill?

Mr. OTTINGER. It does indeed.

I understand it was intended to take care of the situation which the gentleman is now trying to address. It does not. That is why I would like to see that language out of there altogether. The language as it presently exists would not exclude the gentleman's site, which is why he is offering the amendment. If we took this 1 mile by 1 mile area and population of not less than 1,000 individuals out altogether, then we would have the most objective look at it. And that is what I would support at the appropriate time.

Mr. LOTT. I know the gentleman cannot see this map, but I think he will understand the question. The gentleman would acknowledge that, even with this language that I proposed, it is possible that a repository site could actually still be put in the so-called Richton dome which is beyond the 1-mile radius of where you have 1,000 people. Would the gentleman acknowledge that?

Mr. OTTINGER. No; my information is that the language that the gentleman now has included would effectively preclude the Richton site. But I do not think that whether it is effective or whether it is not effective in achieving that result really ought to be governing. The fact is that we ought not to be setting these parameters in the legislation in such a way as to exclude important sites. There is that chance, and I think we are best off not having that provision in the bill.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Briefly, Mr. Chairman, we have twin obstacles that we are trying to overcome in putting together a permanent repository that will bury as deeply and as long as is possible the nuclear waste that we are generating in this country.

We have, on the one hand, the problem of special interests, that is, people who are interested in finding a temporary solution to the problem. These special interests include the utilities who have a problem with referendum passing in State after State around this country and who would like to see some kind of bill passed that just gets this stuff off their facilities and into interim facilities. We will then let future generations worry about it.

We have got the other problem of parochialism, that is, people who do not want it buried in their State at all. And this amendment is very much indicative of that problem.

For those who are very interested in seeing a permanent waste repository, neither of those obstacles ought to be allowed to get in the way of a good, solid bill. This is the objective of all people who have looked at this problem over the past years.

So you might get people who are going to get up and say, "Well, we do not want a repository here because it affects a lot of people."

Or you might get people, like the gentleman from Mississippi, who say, "Do not put it in my district because it affects the people of Lott."

But in either situation you are going to wind up with somebody who is trying to protect a very, very narrow interest, because this is a very politically volatile issue. It is why you want to have a good strong States' right protection. But building in those protections is what is critical to insuring that when you reach issues of population density, issues of environmental protection, and issues of public health and safety, that there is a good remedy which is available to States to insure that they have had a complete vindication of all of the issues to which they are concerned.

I think in this instance that it makes no sense for us to allow a site specific amendment to be included in this legislation, because it would set a precedent which would, like dominoes, allow legislator after legislator to get up here and to exempt through very narrow wording of an amendment all of the potential sites in this country. I think it would set a bad precedent, and I hope that the amendment is defeated.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. LOTT).

The question was taken; and the chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. LOTT. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 81, noes 296, not voting 56, as follows:

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BROYHILL

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will inquire, is the amendment in order under the rule?

Mr. BROYHILL. Yes, Mr. Chairman. It has been printed.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BROYHILL: Page 35, beginning on line 19, strike out section 115 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

REVIEW OF REPOSITORY SITE SELECTION

SEC. 115. (a) IN GENERAL.—The designation of a site as suitable for application for a construction authorization for a repository shall be effective at the end of the 60-day period beginning on the date that the President recommends such site to the Congress under section 114, unless the Governor of the State in which such site is located, or the governing body of an Indian tribe on whose reservation such site is located, as the case may be, submits to the Congress a notice of disapproval under section 116 or 118. If any such notice of disapproval is submitted, the designation of such site shall not be effective except as provided under subsection (b).

(b) CONGRESSIONAL REVIEW OF SITES.—If any notice of disapproval of a repository site designation is submitted to the Congress under section 116 or 118 after a recommendation for approval of such site is made by the President under section 114, the designation of such site as suitable for license application as a repository shall be effective upon the expiration of the first period of 90 calendar days of continuous session of the Congress following the date of the receipt by the Congress of such notice of disapproval unless, during such period, either House of the Congress passes a resolution in accordance with this subsection disapproving such site designation.

(c) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term "resolution under this section" means a resolution of either House of the Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the _____ hereby approves the notice of disapproval submitted by _____ regarding the disapproval of the site at _____ for a repository for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel." The first blank space in such resolution shall be filled with the designation of the appropriate House of the Congress; the second blank space in such resolution shall be filled with the designation of the State Governor or Indian tribe governing body submitting the notice of disapproval involved; and the last blank space in such resolution shall be filled with the geographic location of the proposed repository site involved.

(d) PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO THE SENATE.—(1) The provisions of this subsection are enacted by the Congress—

(A) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate, and as such they are deemed a part of the rules of the Senate, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in the Senate in the case of resolutions under this section, and such provisions supersede other rules of the Senate only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such other rules; and

(B) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the Senate to change the rules (so far as relating to the procedure of the Senate) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of the Senate.

(2)(A) Not later than the first day of session following the day on which any notice of disapproval of a repository site selection is submitted to the Congress under section 116 or 118, a resolution under this section shall be introduced (by request) in the Senate by the chairman of the committee to which such notice of disapproval is referred, or by a Member or Members of the Senate designated by such chairman.

(B) Upon introduction, a resolution under this section shall be referred to the appropriate committee or committees of the Senate by the President of the Senate, and all such resolutions with respect to the same repository site shall be referred to the same committee or committees. Upon the expiration of 60 calendar days of continuous session after the introduction of the first resolution under this section with respect to any site, each committee to which such resolution was referred shall make its recommendations to the Senate.

(3) If any committee to which is referred a resolution introduced under paragraph (2)(A), or, in the absence of such a resolution, any other resolution under this section introduced with respect to the site involved, has not reported such resolution at the end of 45 days of continuous session of Congress after introduction of such resolution, such committee shall be deemed to be discharged from further consideration of such resolution, and such resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the Senate.

(4)(A) When each committee to which a resolution under this section has been referred has reported, or has been deemed to be discharged from further consideration of, a resolution described in paragraph (3), it shall at any time thereafter be in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) for any Member of the Senate to move to proceed to the consideration of such resolution. Such motion shall be highly privileged and shall not be debatable. Such motion shall not be subject to amendment, to a motion to postpone, or to a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business. A motion to reconsider the vote by which such motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order. If a motion to proceed to the consideration of such resolution is agreed to, such resolution shall remain the unfinished business of the Senate until disposed of.

(B) Debate on a resolution under this section and on all debatable motions and appeals in connection with such resolution, shall be limited to not more than 10 hours, which shall be divided equally between Members favoring and Members opposing such resolution. A motion further to limit debate shall be in order and shall not be debatable. Such motion shall not be subject to amendment, to a motion to postpone, or to a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business, and a motion to recommit such resolution shall not be in order. A motion to reconsider the vote by which such resolution is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order.

(C) Immediately following the conclusion of the debate on a resolution under this section and a single quorum call at the conclusion of such debate if requested in accordance with the rules of the Senate, the vote on final approval of such resolution shall occur.

(D) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate to the procedure relating to a resolution under this section shall be decided without debate.

(e) PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—(1) The provisions of this section are enacted by the Congress—

(A) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the House of Representatives, and as such they are deemed a part of the rules of the House, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in the House in the case of resolutions under this section and such provisions supersede other rules of the House only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such other rules; and

(B) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the House to change the rules (so far as relating to the procedure of the House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of the House.

(2) Resolutions of repository siting approval shall, upon introduction, be immediately referred by the Speaker of the House to the appropriate committee or committees of the House. Any such resolution received from the Senate shall be held at the Speaker's table.

(3) Upon the expiration of 45 days of continuous session after the introduction of the first resolution under this section with respect to any site, each committee to which such resolution was referred shall be discharged from further consideration of such resolution, and such resolution shall be referred to the appropriate calendar, unless such resolution or an identical resolution was previously reported by each committee to which it was referred.

(4) It shall be in order for the Speaker to recognize a Member favoring a resolution to call up a resolution under this section after it has been on the appropriate calendar for 5 legislative days. When any such resolution is called up, the House shall proceed to its immediate consideration and the Speaker shall recognize the Member calling up such resolution and a Member opposed to such resolution for 2 hours of debate in the House, to be equally divided and controlled by such Members. When such time has expired, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution without intervening motion. No amendment to any such resolution shall be in order, nor shall it be in order to move to reconsider the vote by which such resolution is agreed to or disagreed to.

(f) COMPUTATION OF DAYS.—For purposes of this section—

(1) continuity of session of Congress is broken only by an adjournment sine die; and

(2) the days on which either House is not in session because of an adjournment of more than 3 days to a day certain are excluded in the computation of the 90-day period referred to in subsection (c) and the 45-day period referred to in subsections (d) and (e).

(g) INFORMATION PROVIDED TO CONGRESS.—In considering any notice of disapproval submitted to the Congress under section 116 or 118, the Congress may obtain any comments of the Commission with respect to such notice of disapproval. The provision of such comments by the Commission shall not be construed as binding the Commission with respect to any licensing or authorization action concerning the repository involved.

Mr. BROYHILL (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

Mr. OTTINGER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, I shall not object, but I make this reservation to ascertain from the gentleman which one of the two rather long and similar amendments he is offering. One is a one-House sustained and the other is a two-House sustained.

Mr. BROYHILL. The one I called up was the one-House sustained. I hope that is the one that the Clerk read.

The CHAIRMAN. Is that on page 35?

Mr. BROYHILL. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. That is the one-House.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman, and I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

□ 1650

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, apparently much of the controversy that we have had over this bill up to this time, and this, of course, has come out in the debate today, is what role the Governor will have at the time that a final repository is selected.

We also discussed, an hour or so ago, an amendment offered by the gentleman from New Mexico (Mr. LUJAN) the role that the Governor would have in the placement of more than 300 tons of spent fuel on a temporary basis in a particular State.

My amendment provides for the so-called one-House sustain State veto.

Let me explain to my colleagues why we are asking you to vote for this amendment and why we feel that it is imperative that this language go into the final bill that is approved by this House.

This bill provides for a very detailed road map that the Department of Energy and the President and the other agencies that are involved must follow in the selection of a final repository for spent nuclear fuel.

All through this bill there are ample environmental protections. The repository is subject to NEPA, an environmental impact statement is required and, of course, the DOE must, before they even set foot on a site, start that procedure.

Environmental assessments are all through this bill. Also, if my colleagues will consult the text of the bill, they will find that the Governors and Indian tribes are consulted all during the process and the procedure as it goes forward.

Now, the main sponsors of this bill, the gentleman from Arizona and others, have put a provision in here, though, that gives the Governor, after going through that entire process, an absolute veto over what had been done. In other words, we could spend several years, 7 or 8 years, up until 1987 or beyond, and several hundred million dollars, in making the selection and then have a Governor veto the project, overriding the decision of this Congress, overriding the decision that had been made by the President, on the advice and counsel of a major department and other agencies of the Government.

I think that is going too far. I do not think that is the way we ought to go.

My amendment calls for a one-House sustain; that is, if the Governor objects, and one House sustains that objection, then that objection shall stand.

It seems to me that that is a fair compromise between those who would say that a Governor could have absolute veto over these projects as opposed to those who might say, "Well, the Governor should have no say whatsoever in this decision once it is finally made."

I think that the Governors and the States should be consulted not just at the final end, but all during the process. That is why we have added amendments in this bill to assure Governors are consulted, the States are consulted, all during the procedure, all during the process.

But once that decision has been made as to where the final repository is to be, it seems to me that that decision should stand unless we find that one House of the Congress should go along with the Governor and vote to sustain that Governor's veto.

Mr. Chairman, I might point out as a matter of legislative history that this House, the full House, back in 1980, by a substantial vote, refused to allow a State to veto a President's final selection of a repository. This one-House sustain veto was contained in the 1980 bill that passed this House. It was also included in the Senate-passed bill this past year, and also in the Committee on Energy and Commerce reported bill as well as the Committee on Science and Technology reported bill.

The one-House sustain veto is fair, it is balanced. Clearly to me it is the middle ground between the extreme two-House override in the bill now, and no State veto at all.

Mr. Chairman, I would urge the adoption of this middle ground amendment.

Mr. CORCORAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROYHILL. I would be glad to yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL) has expired.

(On request of Mr. CORCORAN and by unanimous consent, Mr. BROYHILL was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. CORCORAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, my question to the gentleman from North Carolina is in connection with the procedure that he has described here. Is he talking about the final repository or is he talking about the last-resort, interim, away-from-reactor storage program?

Mr. BROYHILL. We are talking about the final repository. This amendment has nothing to do with the temporary away-from-reactor storage facility. We have already passed that part in the bill, and the House voted not to go along with that, but we are talking now about an entirely different part of the bill. We are talking about the final repository that will be selected and should be selected under the terms of this bill by 1987.

Mr. CORCORAN. If the gentleman will yield further, in view of the fact that the gentleman is talking about Federal power and the preemption of that power with respect to the final repository, I would urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

Mr. BROYHILL. I thank the gentleman for his support.

Mr. FUQUA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina and I helps make this a much more workable bill. We have spent considerable time in bringing forth from three committees, I think, a very, very good bill.

This is the one flaw that I find in this bill, even though two of the three committees involved opt for this type of language. However, in the final version that was meshed together as a result of the rule, this part was left as it came out of the Committee on the Interior, but what we are proposing, and the gentleman from North Carolina has outlined it very clearly, I think, is that there will be participation by the Governors of the several States, but instead of Congress putting itself with the States in a confrontational type atmosphere, one House would sustain the veto should a Governor so exercise that prerogative.

As the gentleman from North Carolina also pointed out, this is not new. On December 3, 1980, on rollcall 662, the House took a position rather overwhelmingly to support this position of the one-House sustained veto.

I think it makes it a very workable bill. It recognizes the rights of the States, and yet on the other hand does not put the Congress in a confrontational-type position. The House as well as the Senate on previous occasions has taken this position, and I think it would help make this a more workable bill, so that we could achieve a meaningful waste disposal that this bill envisions rather than having the two Houses having to override a veto of a governor.

I think it gives all the rights that we need. It has been done in the House. I think it is constitutional. Questions have been raised that it may or may not be constitutional. There is a separability clause in the bill, and I do not see that this item that has been not only used in previous Congresses, but I do not see this being a matter for making the entire bill unconstitutional.

So, I think all of the provisions have been met, as was mentioned by the previous speaker, such as environmental impact. All of the factors that must be considered, and the Governor has that right to make this objection, but we put the Congress acting in a positive rather than in a negative fashion in the sustained veto. So, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment that was offered by the gentleman from North Carolina and which I have cosponsored with him.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this compromise amendment to provide that one House of Congress must sustain a State veto of a repository site.

Between the position or requiring either two Houses to sustain or two Houses to override a State veto, there is a clear and compelling compromise provision that would require only one House of Congress to sustain such veto. This is the middle ground found irresistible by the House in 1980, the Senate in 1982, and by both the Energy and Commerce Committee and the Science and Technology Committee during their consideration of this legislation this session.

It is my understanding that the only reason a one-House sustain provision was not included in H.R. 3809 was because of concern about the constitutionality of a one-House legislative veto. Clearly such concern is unfounded.

We are not dealing with what has been traditionally called a legislative veto in our amendment. We are not requesting that one House of Congress be allowed to veto an action of the executive branch of the Federal Government.

We are only providing that Congress can exert some influence on a State veto of a Federal project. We give the State the opportunity to have its veto sustained by either House of Congress. It is this Federal legislation which grants the State the right to a veto in the first place—and I submit that there is absolutely no constitutional problem whatsoever in requiring that such State veto be sustained by one House of Congress prior to it becoming effective. For over 150 years, the courts have permitted Congress broad discretion to effectuate the powers delegated to it under the necessary and proper clause (article I, sec. 8, cl. 18) of the Constitution. H.R. 3809 clearly provides that the Federal Government has the responsibility to provide for the permanent disposal of nuclear waste—it provides that this is a national problem demanding a national solution. There is, of course, no constitutional requirement that a single State have any veto whatsoever over Congress solution to this national problem—and there is certainly no constitutional requirement that Congress cannot limit such a State veto by requiring one House to sustain that veto before it becomes effective.

Nuclear power issues have always been under the province of the Federal Government because of the valid concerns about the national welfare and public health and safety. Just because Congress has seen fit in this legislation to grant to the States a strong role in the approval of a nuclear waste repository site does not mean that the Federal Government can only override that role by passing new legislation. This is what H.R. 3809 currently requires.

The proper balance of State and Federal power on such a critical issue should be as follows:

Yes—allow the States to disapprove of a repository site in their territory—but simply require that one House of Congress must sustain that veto before it takes effect.

Make no mistake, I have been a strong advocate of the States' role in the selection of a nuclear waste repository site. H.R. 3809 contains extensive opportunities for the States to participate in the siting process through a strong Federal-State agreement covering virtually every aspect of the repository siting and development that might affect the health and safety of the States' residents, or that might affect the environment of the State. Our bill provides for total compensation for any costs incurred by the States during this participation in this process. From beginning to end, the State has been made a close partner with the Federal agencies responsible for this project.

All we seek through this amendment is the opportunity to restore balance to this partnership. I urge you to vote yes on this amendment requiring one House of Congress to sustain a State if it chooses to veto this desperately needed Federal project.

Mr. OTTINGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, it may strike many as being ironic that the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL), the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FUQUA), and the gentleman from California (Mr. MOORHEAD) are arguing against States rights, and here I am arguing for them. But, this is about as drastic a thing as one can do to a State. Members saw how drastic it is. We just went through an hour's debate on whether we ought to exclude a particular site in Mississippi from having this repository. The State of Louisiana went so far as to get a commitment from the previous administration that a repository would not be put in the State of Louisiana. There are strong feelings and fears about putting a repository in any particular State.

What we are talking about in this amendment is how effective protection we will give, and to require full congressional deliberation of a State's objections. Under the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina, the State would have to actively pursue support in the two Houses, because if neither House did anything, the objection would never be effective.

I think that the States deserve better protection than that. Further there is a very serious constitutional problem with the "one House sustain" formula that the gentleman from North Carolina puts forward. In a District of Columbia Court of Appeals decision on January 29 of this year, in the case of Consumer Energy Council of America et al. against the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Court ruled that a one-House congressional veto is unconstitutional, now quoting from the opinion:

Both by preventing the President from exercising his veto power and by permitting legislative action by only one House of the Congress.

The formula provided in the bill provides for consideration by both Houses of Congress and signature by the President, so it clearly is constitutional.

The gentleman from Florida, who is my good chairman, and I love him very deeply, says yes, but there is a separability clause. But, the separability clause here causes untold damage because if this provision is found to be unconstitutional, then the State will have no protection whatsoever, and the Secretary of Energy would not have to pay attention to the State whatsoever.

With an action that is this drastic and of this much concern to the people of the State, certainly the State ought to have a voice.

I tried in committee to get an agreement from the minority on a provision that says if this provision is deemed unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, then the two-House veto provision would take effect. I said then I agreed to the Broyhill language under those conditions. There was no willingness to agree.

For effective protection of our States against these drastic actions, to at least have the full Congress and the President of the United States consider the States' objections, you should vote against this amendment.

Mr. SWIFT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OTTINGER. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. SWIFT. It is true, is it not, that this House voted just a few minutes ago on a one-House veto for AFR?

Mr. OTTINGER. Against a one-House veto.

Mr. SWIFT. To retain its two-House veto for AFR?

Mr. OTTINGER. That is correct.

Mr. SWIFT. If we were to pass this amendment we would then have an outrageous inconsistency. We will have had the more strict two-House veto for the AFR but only a one-House veto for the final repository site and have given the more stringent State veto for, if you will, the lesser problem than for the final one where we are going to be living with it for thousands of years and we would have for that but a one-House veto if in fact the House does not vote consistently as it did before and vote down the one-House veto, vote down this amendment. Is that correct?

Mr. OTTINGER. The gentleman is absolutely correct. It would be an ironic situation to have the more stringent review for temporary storage and have no effective State protection with respect to a permanent repository that is going to store high level wastes for hundreds of thousands of years.

Mr. BROYHILL. Will the gentleman yield on that point?

Mr. OTTINGER. Surely.

Mr. BROYHILL. I do not want to take much of the gentleman's time. But I certainly can understand why people would have some concern about the presence of temporary storage of nuclear spent fuel materials in their State. But we are talking about something entirely different. We are talking about a selection of a permanent repository which everybody wants and wants to expedite.

Mr. OTTINGER. I have the greatest respect for the gentleman from North Carolina and would like to say the compromise that is before us is due largely to his flexibility and statesmanship. But I think this is one area on which we could not agree. I just do not think adequate protection is provided under the formula which he advances.

Mrs. BOUQUARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words and rise in support of the amendment.

I think it is important we realize in the last session of Congress that both the other body and the House passed comprehensive nuclear waste legislation which contained the requirement that a State objection can be sustained by a majority vote of one House of Congress.

It is also relevant that the other body has recently passed such legislation as well.

Referring to the one-House provision and its constitutionality, I think it is worthwhile to point out that a one-House concurrence with the State should be constitutionally permissible because we are not dealing with decisions on individual rights. We are talking about a regulation proposed to be promulgated pursuant to an Act of Congress. We are dealing with a proposal to locate a Federal facility at a particular site.

If the Congress can give the final decision to the State under the current provision then constitutionally it is consistent for Congress to be permitted to retain part of the override authority.

If a two-House override is required by the Constitution, then the Congress cannot give away more authority than it has by allowing a State to override the President.

The only permissible State veto would then be one where both Houses must agree with the State in order for the veto to become effective.

I ask that we do support this amendment and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SANTINI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

I ask my colleagues to consider and weigh carefully the formula that is being offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL) and the formula that is contained in the bill as it was sent to this House by the Rules Committee.

The Department of Energy, the President of the United States makes a decision about the permanent repository. The Department of Energy and the President select State X. State X objects.

Question: What happens under the bill as it is being considered by this committee at this time; what happens under the proposed amendment?

Under the bill as sent to us by the Rules Committee there is a 90-day timeframe. Within that 90-day time frame the objection would stand unless the House and the other body overrode that objection.

What in essence this creates is an affirmative burden of proof and persuasion in the Department of Energy to come to the committees of jurisdiction and say here is the reason and basis that we selected State X. Within 90 days then to have the House and the other body support that position of the Department of Energy and the President of the United States.

Conversely, under the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina, the State veto or objections would be tubed unless one House of the U.S. Congress supported State X.

I plead and appeal to you as individual Members with sensitivity within your own districts and within your own congressional concerns, understand in practical terms what we are looking at here this afternoon.

We are considering in practical, realistic, real world terms whether or not State X, whether it is Louisiana, South Carolina, Utah, Nevada, Texas, whether State X is going to have any chance to have its cares and its concerns enunciated, heard and understood.

The State of Washington may not have any concerns and may be receptive to the location. But in practical terms if you were a legislator representing the district in which the permanent repository had been selected you would be virtually and in practical terms under the gentleman from North Carolina's amendment precluded, foreclosed, foreclosed from having your opportunity within 90 days to express your own concerns to this body and the similar body in the U.S. Senate.

In essence, you would be denied your day or opportunity to present your issues and your concerns of your State and your congressional district because the gentleman from North Carolina in all sincerity offers to this body a State participation which is in essence a fraud and a sham.

There is no conceivable way that State X is going to come before the House of Representatives or the U.S. Senate and persuade a majority of its Members to support its position, however meritorious, however valid its concerns, however justified those complaints.

You see the sophisticated but very important difference between the amendment being proposed and the language in the committee bill is the Department of Energy, the Government agency that made the decision to locate the permanent repository has the burden of proof and persuasion to you as Members of this body, to the U.S. Senate. It is a decision that will last 1,000 years, 100,000 years, in terms of impact on that State, on that congressional district and on this Nation, and it is a decision that deserves a fair and honest and open and aired hearings before this body and the U.S. Senate. It is a decision that will never receive a fair, honest, or open hearing under the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL).

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SANTINI. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. BROYHILL. The gentleman is giving the Members the impression that there is no consultation with the States in this whole procedure and the gentleman knows that is not true.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. SANTINI) has expired.

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. SANTINI) be given 2 additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I am trying to keep my commitment to the leadership to wind this thing up at 5:30 and also get a vote on this amendment.

I hope there will be no further requests for additional time.

Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

□ 1720

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL)?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Nevada (Mr. SANTINI) is recognized for 2 additional minutes.

Mr. BROYHILL. If the gentleman will yield further, the gentleman would agree that before even sinking any sites in the shaft in the characterization stage the DOE must consult with the States, and they must also perform environmental assessments and that these assessments are judicially reviewable.

Mr. SANTINI. If the gentleman will permit me to reclaim my time, the precious 2 minutes that have been allocated to us, if my good friend on the Commerce and Energy Committee would honestly recognize that those who have been ecstatic and enthusiastic about the cooperative communications from the Department of Energy in the past to individual States and congressional districts, they should be ecstatic and consoled with the language in that bill.

But there is nothing that protects the individual State unless it is the largesse and the good will of the Department of Energy reaching out to State X and saying, "We will bring you in for a consultation." If my good friend could only understand those of us who have dealt with Federal agencies in the past and have found ourselves perhaps not the beneficiaries of an extension of good will—"Hi, we are from the Federal Government, we are here to help you today"—we are concerned about the fact that in practical terms the gentleman's amendment wipes out any meaningful State role, because what you do by shifting the burden of proof from the Department of Energy over to the State is to require the State to come in and prove that it was wrong, instead of the Department of Energy to come in and prove it is right. That is a significant and substantial difference that will produce in the Department of Energy a sense of arrogance, a sense of indifference, and all of the consultation language in the world will not protect that State if that kind of language such as you propose goes in here.

Mr. BROYHILL. If the gentleman will yield, the gentleman is not giving any credit whatsoever to the amendments that we put in here at his request, the request of the Governors, requiring timely response from the DOE to a request from the Governors, and if those requests are not made in a timely way, the DOE must halt all progress in the program.

Mr. SANTINI. I do not have any faith in the bureaucracy when it comes to arbitrary decisionmaking. No, I do not.

Mr. BROYHILL. All of this is judicially reviewable.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment close at 5:35 p.m.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

Mr. DANNEMEYER. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment close at 5:40 p.m.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Members standing at the time the unanimous consent request was granted will be recognized for 1½ minutes each.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. MONTGOMERY).

Mr. MONTGOMERY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The gentleman from Nevada is totally right that this amendment by Mr. BROYHILL totally weakens the States rights under the bill reported by the committees. It totally wipes out the two-House override and basically says that if Congress is quiet, then the Governors' veto is ignored. It is just not fair.

I serve on the House Armed Services Committee. We amended the bill for the two-House override in the House Armed Services Committee. It was adopted 25 to 6. You are eliminating what we did in the three committees.

Now, I think the strongest point is when a State site has been picked, that State is going to have a tough time. Forty-nine other States are going to be ganged up against it. So what is wrong with giving that State Governor as much chance as possible under the House and let him have the two-House override? And if this is such a good amendment that Mr. BROYHILL has offered, I really cannot understand why three committees which handled this bill did not vote up this amendment. I certainly hope that Members will defeat the amendment. It is a bad amendment and it should be defeated.

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield on that point? I would like to correct what the gentleman has said.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. MONTGOMERY) has expired.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland (Mrs. BYRON).

Mrs. BYRON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment to substitute new language for existing section 115. The provision allows States de facto veto authority over the siting of a high level radioactive waste repository. I believe that the amendment will improve the high level waste bill, which I am pleased to cosponsor and support.

Under existing law, the authority of States and Indian tribes to participate in the decisionmaking process leading to the siting of high level waste repositories is quite limited. This is a reflection of the fundamentally Federal character of our atomic energy program and the important national purpose to develop atomic energy technology which underlies that program.

While I firmly believe in appropriate participation by States and by Indian tribes in decisions relating to the siting of high level radioactive waste repositories, I similarly believe that such participation must be in agreement with the fundamental national interests involved.

The current section 115 of the waste bill does not reflect the proper balance in State and Federal interests. The section essentially permits a State to veto a siting decision lawfully made by the Department of Energy and the President, even after the Department and the President have reviewed and taken into account all legitimate concerns raised by the State and all other interested members of the public. The only way that this State veto could be overridden would be for Congress to pass a law within 90 days of learning of the State action.

Mr. Chairman, the failure of the proposed section 115 to reflect important national interests is especially troubling in view of the applicability of the section to defense wastes under other provisions of the bill. It is a questionable and potentially dangerous policy to confer veto authority upon States and Indian tribes over any aspect of our atomic energy defense activities.

The substitute for section 115 addresses these concerns and yet amply recognizes the legitimate interests of States and Indian tribes in this area. The amendment authorizes States and Indian tribes to submit notices of disapproval to Congress. The State disapprovals will be effective, however, only if sustained by at least one House of Congress within a specified period. This provision allows States and Indian tribes to call upon Congress to review a siting decision, yet does not require us to pass yet another law to resolve the high level waste issue.

This is essentially the mechanism provided in the bills reported by two of the three major committees in the House and is closer in nature to the mechanism for State participation provided in the bill adopted by the Senate. It allows the Federal Government to select an optimal repository location without the roadblock of an unwarranted and unsupported veto by a State or Indian tribe.

I believe that the substitute will facilitate the siting, construction, and operation of the very best high level waste repositories which we can reasonably expect to achieve. In addition, it will do this without inflicting unreasonable additional costs and delays on ratepayers, taxpayers, our national defense, and the power companies. I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. DANNEMEYER).

Mr. DANNEMEYER. Mr. Chairman, the French have shown the world how to dispose of high-level nuclear waste in a safe manner. For the last 3 years they have been operating a facility in the south part of their country that stores high-level nuclear waste, and it is about the size of a basketball court, I am told. It consists of concrete about 30-feet deep, and in this concrete they have drilled cylinders about a foot in diameter, and in these cylinders they placed two 6-foot heights of vitrified high-level nuclear waste at the bottom, a total of 12 feet, and at the top of that they put a 12-foot cork of concrete.

Now, that is sufficient shielding for people in that region—this representation has been made to me—that 100 people working on that site walk around the top of that facility. Now think of that. Now, if the French can build that kind of facility in the premier—one of the premier—wine-growing regions of the country, which obviously makes it a premier tourist attraction for France, are we really doing anything constructive here in this great Chamber backing and filling? There is an underlying fear, I think, in the Members that if we place this waste disposal site in any of our 50 States, we are going to expose the citizens of that State to perilous danger. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The gut issue on this amendment is whether we in this country who run the political affairs want to have a means of disposing of high-level nuclear waste. That is the issue. Because if we turn down this amendment, there is not any elected Member of this body who really believes—

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. DANNEMEYER) has expired.

The CHAIR recognizes the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SWIFT).

Mr. SWIFT. Mr. Chairman, I would suggest that the gentleman who just spoke misses the point entirely. What we are deciding here today is whether or not the State in which the Nation decides they are going to place the waste has any say-so about it and what is the nature of that say-so.

The information that the gentleman shared with us and all of the Members in the Chamber is information that is also available to the States. I am surprised, serving on the committee with the gentleman as I am, and knowing his concern for States rights, and that people in Washington, D.C., do not dictate the fate of the people out in the local communities, that he would not see that it clearly is an issue not of our making a decision based on the lack of information, but his not having faith that the States are able to use that same information in making wise judgments.

Mr. DANNEMEYER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SWIFT. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DANNEMEYER. I am a firm proponent of States rights. But let us face it: This is an issue of national significance. It transcends States interests and rights.

Mr. SWIFT. I ask the gentleman if he believes the States ought to have a significant right of say-so of what the Federal Government puts in their back yard.

Mr. DANNEMEYER. I agree the States should have that input. But somebody has to decide.

Mr. SWIFT. They should have it, but not meaningful enough so that in fact their say-so has any effect at all, is that what the gentleman is saying?

Mr. DANNEMEYER. It is in the bill so that States can have an input. They will stay there even if we adopt the Broyhill amendment.

Mr. SWIFT. They can have input as long as they cannot affect the decision.

Mr. DANNEMEYER. And the States will have input and their input will be evaluated and given the dignity to which they are entitled.

□ 1530

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. STRATTON).

Mr. STRATTON. Mr. Chairman, this is really a question of whether the Federal system under which we have been operating for over 200 years will prevail in a field as important to our national security and to our economic development as is nuclear energy.

As the gentleman who is offering the amendment, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL), pointed out a moment ago, everybody says that we have got to solve the problem of nuclear waste. This is precisely what this bill is designed to do. And yet here we are undercutting that effort by imposing impossible conditions on getting any kind of design or decision approved.

What the amendment of the gentleman from North Carolina would do is simply permit any one State that does not want the repository to come before either House of Congress and make its case. And certainly one House is as good as the other for making that decision. What better court could they have? If they cannot get one House to support them, then they are really in trouble.

But what the committee bill does, what it says that they have got to undertake, the Government itself has got to get two Houses of Congress to oppose the State and then to get the President to disagree. That is a formula for doing nothing whatsoever; and as the gentleman from California has indicated, we are going to be way behind our French colleagues if this is the way we run our atomic railroad.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY).

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, the railroad would be run through States that did not have that much political clout to begin with.

Let us take a State like Nevada. This is a State that obviously will not be able to put a big roadblock in the path of the nuclear railroad: One Congressman and two Senators against the President of the United States, the Secretary of Energy, and most likely every other State that was not unlucky enough to get the nuclear repository all lined up against it. One Congressman and two Senators saying, Please, Congress, will you just listen to our case. There are a few criteria that should have been looked at. We wanted to know whether or not the NRC reviews have been an integral part of the site selection process; if sufficient study has been done to determine suitable geologic media; if public comments and criticisms have been responsibly assessed by DOE. And then, if there is no reason to give any credence to any of the objections of the Representatives from Nevada, then override them.

And most likely it would be 434 to 1 with a great sigh of relief from all of the nonwinners of this Congress who avoided becoming the nuclear garbage can of the United States for the next 20,000 years. This is all we are trying to build into this law: An opportunity by the Senators and the Congressmen of the least densely populated States to come before their respective bodies and make a case that a little bit more caution ought to be put into the siting of the Nation's permanent high-level nuclear waste facility.

Most likely some modest change will be made and the facility will be built in any circumstance. But that does not seem like too high a concession to make to a State as it is being asked to become the nuclear garbage can of this country for eternity.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MARRIOTT).

Mr. MARRIOTT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Broyhill amendment and support a two-House override. The Governors are coming to me and saying they do not believe they have enough authority in this area, and here we are now trying to weaken the bill evermore.

This two-House override really gives the States some teeth, it gives them some attention, and I think it is a necessary step.

Putting a repository in any State is not a simple matter. It is a very serious proposition. If a Presidential selected site is really in the national interest, then I believe we will override that State veto. But until that happens, I think we ought to give the States the benefit of the doubt.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. OTTINGER yielded his time to Mr. UDALL).

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL).

Mrs. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROYHILL. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mrs. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the substitute.

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, there seems to be the implication here in this debate from the other side that there is nothing in this bill that protects any rights of the States during this whole procedure of selection of the final repository.

I just hope that Members will take time to read the bill. All through it it states notification, consultation, three sets of public hearings, all through this bill, consultation on site characterization, a timely response from States who request information or cooperation and have the power to halt the procedures and the process if they do not get that.

Environmental assessment of each one of the candidate sites which is judicially reviewable. And also a final environmental impact statement which also is reviewable. Also environmental assessment all through this legislation.

All we are talking about here after going through these years and years of consideration, then a Governor can come up and just halt the thing in its tracks.

We are saying that the Governor under our amendment will have his say and if he comes to the Congress and gets one House to go along with it, then his veto will stand. But we do not think it is right that a Governor's veto would just halt the project in its tracks. We think that that is the wrong approach.

We think that the Members should consider very carefully the impact that this language, which is presently in the bill, is going to have on the delicate balance that we do have in this legislation.

If the repository is delayed, we only have ourselves to blame. If the only alternative is temporary solutions for the next decade or two, such as away-from-reactor facilities, we do not think that is a solution. Let us have a final, permanent solution.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. UDALL) for 3 minutes to conclude debate.

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, we have built a consensus as we went through about five different committees in consideration of this bill, and I think a commonsense consensus on most major points. I do not see the differences here as being all that cosmic or all that vital.

This consensus has been reached with all of the committees that we have worked with. We are all agreed that the States ought to have a veto. If you are going to put something as important as this in a State, then the State through its Governor or legislature ought to be able to say no thanks.

We are also agreed that once the State has made that veto, that there ought to be a mechanism so that, in the national interest, it could be overridden as we do in war when we need an air base or at other times when we need Federal eminent domain.

The questions here really surround how tough it should be to override the State's veto, where should the burden of proof lie, and so on.

I prefer the language now in the bill. I prefer that and oppose the amendment. What the language now in the bill says is that you must get both the House and the Senate to override a Governor or the State's decision stands. That means there is a presumption that the State's veto of that site will stand and it takes both the House and Senate to override the Governor's decision.

The Broyhill amendment says that unless one of the Houses votes to sustain the State Governor, then the State loses. The presumption stands against the State veto.

As I say, I do not see great cosmic differences between them. We do have a possible conflict problem, a constitutional problem with the one House veto, and for these and the reasons I have stated I prefer the language now in the bill to the language offered by my good friend from North Carolina.

Mr. BROYHILL. Mr. Chairman, I must point out this is a considerable switch from where the gentleman was a couple of years ago when he appealed to everybody to vote down the Kostmayer amendment. At that time he was saying that the bill before us gives us a road map for a solution to the problem and urged everybody to vote down that amendment.

So I hate to see that we are on different sides here. But it seems to me that he is not arguing very vehemently against my amendment. So perhaps I ought to be quiet.

Mr. UDALL. Well, if I have a moment left at the end of the day, I can tell one of my favorite stories about old Senator Ashurst from Arizona, chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

President Roosevelt did not like the Supreme Court decisions and he introduced a bill to add six members to the nine-member Court so that he could get a better quality decision. Senator

Ashurst introduced that bill and got it out of the Judiciary Committee and caught so much hell from Arizona that he turned around and led the fight on the Senate floor to defeat his own bill.

He used to tell about a telegram from a lady in Phoenix who sent a telegram saying, "Thank God for your courageous stand on that Supreme Court bill."

And he wired back, "Which one?"

So I guess I have not been all that consistent, but I think here the amendment ought to be defeated.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BROYHILL).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Messrs. CROCKETT, MURPHY, DENARDIS, and BEARD changed their votes from "aye" to "no."

Mr. LUNGREN and Mr. FINDLEY changed their votes from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

□ 1800

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PANETTA, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3809) to provide for repositories for the disposal of high-level radioactive waste, transuranic waste, and spent nuclear fuel, to amend provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 relating to low-level waste, to modify the Price-Anderson provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 and certain other provisions pertaining to facility licensing and safety, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

MAKING JOBS—AND SAVING THEM

(Mr. MAZZOLI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks, and to include extraneous material.)

Mr. MAZZOLI. Mr. Speaker, the Congress is laboring to find job creation bills, job mechanisms to put Americans back to work.

One bill which I think would very aptly fill that definition and, therefore, should be part of the agenda for the lame-duck session of Congress is H.R. 6514, which is the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1982.

Depending on whose estimate one would use, as many as 1 million to 2 million jobs, and certainly no fewer than half a million jobs, would become available to Americans, those jobs now being held by people in this country without the proper documentation.

I think all of us who campaigned over the last 2 months know that the people back home, the grassroots, want H.R. 6514 passed so that jobs in America are held by Americans.

I would ask the leadership of the House to schedule, during this lame-duck session, the bill, H.R. 6514, and make jobs for Americans and put Americans back to work.

Mr. Speaker, I include an article from the New York Times of November 25, 1982, entitled "Making Jobs—and Saving Them."

The article follows:

MAKING JOBS—AND SAVING THEM

"Our first priority," says House Speaker O'Neill, "must be to put the millions of unemployed back to work." The Speaker has his social priorities straight; he's willing to act urgently to make jobs. But is he equally willing to act urgently to save them? Doing that is within his grasp, and that of the lame-duck Congress starting next week—by passing the nearly finished legislation to reform the immigration laws.

One need not be an economic scholar to see the connection between unemployment and illegal immigration. Undocumented aliens pour across the borders in search of jobs. True, many of those jobs are so menial that Americans won't take them, or might be automated if there were no illegals willing to do them for low pay. Nevertheless, the Labor Department estimates that for every five jobs taken by illegal immigrants, one American is deprived of a job.

How many jobs are lost that way? The facts are spongy. No one knows how many illegals come in each year, or how many leave. But the United States Ambassador to Mexico recently reported that if the immigration laws were strengthened, "Probably between one and two million Mexicans would be forced to return to Mexico." And Mexico supplies only half the illegal entrants.

It seems reasonable to guess that some 500,000 illegal immigrants a year are added to the work force, displacing at least 100,000 American workers. That leads to an obvious question. The Speaker—and the President—want quick action on a $33 billion infrastructure program that would make 320,000 jobs. Why not equally quick action on an immensely cheaper immigration bill that could save 100,000 or more jobs?

Quick does not mean hasty. On the contrary. The Simpson-Mazzoli immigration reform bill is the painstaking, balanced result of years of study, adjustment and compromise. It would do much more than save jobs. Without being nativist, racist or mean, it would put the country back in charge of its own borders, while bringing humane status to illegal immigrants already here.

The Administration supports the bill enthusiastically; so do leading Democrats, which explains why it passed the Senate in August by a lopsided 80-to-19 margin. The bill would probably pass the House, too, if it were brought to the floor during the lame-duck session starting next week. If not, it will die and have to run the whole Congressional gauntlet again next year.

That's where Speaker O'Neill comes in. Making jobs is on his priority list for the session; saving jobs is on his "possible" list. If Mr. O'Neill is truly concerned about unemployment, not to mention fairness and humanity, he will give immigration reform the priority it deserves.

SATURDAY'S SHAME

(Mr. WOLF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.)

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call to the attention of my colleagues an editorial in this morning's edition of the Washington Post entitled, "Saturday's Shame." The violence which rocked the streets of our Nation's Capital on Saturday was indeed shameful, just as shameful as the prejudicial attitudes of the Klan in this country.

We should not concentrate on criticizing groups at this time but rather emphasize that Washington, D.C., is supposed to reflect the best of this Nation. The frightening, ugly display on our city's streets did not do justice to the city or what it represents.

I wholeheartedly agree with the Post editorial in calling for vigorous prosecution of those involved in the acts of violence and destruction which rocked the downtown area. We must let these lawbreakers know that their action will not be tolerated.

I want to especially mention the police of this city, many of whom sustained injury in the line of duty on Saturday. They responded with professionalism in quelling the disturbance and protecting the citizens and property of the city and they deserve special commendation.

Now we must go forward. If anything, Saturday's demonstration has focused on the need to solve our problems, not through hatred and violence, but through love and reconciliation. Just think of the good which could have come if those in this city on Saturday had concentrated their energies in the direction of groups such as the Greater Washington Board of Trade, which was holding a jobs conference, or the churches of the area which were feeding the needy on that day.

[From the Washington Post, Nov. 29, 1982]

SATURDAY'S SHAME

Please, no excuses for the rampage of Saturday. Even to grace those mindless rock-and-bottle-throwers and looters with the label of "anti-Klan protesters" gives them a status they don't deserve to enjoy. It is equally bubble-headed to explain the violence and destruction as an outburst in reaction to unemployment, the Reagan administration, Israel, South Africa or any of the other named objects of complaint. All it took was a handful of practiced delinquents and trouble-hungry instigators to stir things up.

There are some episodes that have no handy, built-in insights or great moral lessons to impart—but only self-evident truths to be understood. Foremost among such truths this weekend is that the Ku Klux Klan is no less despicable because a crowd of vandals behaved so recklessly. If the Klan members' bid for attention and trouble was an objective, consider it accomplished. But they were still bit players in the action, their message no less ugly than it ever has been.

Who got hurt? Not the Klan; all it may have gotten is the last laugh, and that's a shame, too. Bystanders were physically hurt, police officers were injured, people with messages of tolerance and words of peace were knocked around. Worst of all, the people of Washington—those whom the Klan would like to hurt the most—ended up with wounds that will be long in healing.

Police Chief Maurice Turner, as much as anyone, had his hands full and responded professionally to the pressures. So did the rank and file, who were stretched beyond instant-response capabilities in many instances but who did what they could to arrest as many suspects as possible. Prosecution, we expect, will be vigorous. This may not calm the understandably furious merchants whose downtown stores and offices were destroyed, but everyone deserves assurances that the laws of the city are being enforced as effectively as possible.

Washington has been, and will continue to be, host city to demonstrators with messages that run the full range, from the bigotry of the Klan to what many would consider to be significant and important petitions to their government. In the past, this city has reacted as well as any in ensuring the rights of peaceful protest while protecting all people from violence. That was the assignment of the authorities on Saturday, and it will remain so.

REPORT ON COMMISSION ON SOCIAL SECURITY REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York (Mr. CONABLE) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I take this time—and I doubt that I will use my entire hour—for the purpose of advising the Members of the House of the deliberations and accomplishments, if such they be, of the Commission on Social Security Reform which was appointed some time ago and which has been meeting throughout this year, having a 3-day meeting beginning on the 11th of November for the purpose of putting together its thoughts on the difficulties the social security system is facing.

This came, Mr. Speaker, after the very difficult election in which social security was a major issue for many candidates, and I must say that many of the people who spoke on the subject knew comparatively little about it. The fact is that the Commission, meeting almost monthly throughout the year, had to gather together a considerable body of information, and there was some hope that the 3-day meeting in November would bring about substantial agreement on the subject for the consideration of the lameduck session. Unfortunately, leaders in the House have made clear that the lameduck session will not consider social security, saying that instead the issue is to be left for another time, and presumably for another Congress.

Mr. Speaker, initially I opposed the appointment of this Commission. It seemed to me that the appropriate time to deal with the social security problem was last fall, and for a while there was a serious bipartisan effort to bring a reform bill to the floor. Leadership opposition, however, on the majority side made impossible any action at that time. The inflammatory rhetoric which was addressed to earlier proposals put out by the President led him to seek, through the Commission, to reduce the polarization.

The Commission was appointed with five members selected by the President, five by the Speaker, and five by the majority leader of the Senate. It included seven Members of the Congress, two former Members of the Congress, and six private citizens who were appointed variously, some of them by the Speaker, some of them by the Senate and some by the President.

The chairman of the Commission was Alan Greenspan, a distinguished economist. The other public members were Alexander Trowbridge, the former Democratic Secretary of Commerce, now the head of the NAM; Robert Ball the long-time Commissioner of Social Security; Lane Kirkland, head of the AFL-CIO; Mary Falvey Fuller, a well-known business woman from the west coast who was previously experienced in social security; and Robert Beck, the chairman of the board of Prudential Insurance Co.

□ 1810

Together with the Members of Congress and the former Members of Congress, this considerable Commission formed a bulwark behind which the Congress could retreat if it wished, or behind which it could advance if it wished. It could shield us, in short, if we wished to use it as a shield.

The Commission was, in its November meeting, a disappointment to some because it did not come out with a strong majority report. However, it did make some accomplishments.

For instance, there was close to a consensus as to the dimension of the problem. Many have been saying, "There's nothing wrong; don't touch it." The Commission decided that between now and 1990 there would be a shortfall in social security funds of between $150 and $200 billion.

That shortfall was not based on the most pessimistic of economic scenarios. It was based on the so-called middle course of economic assumptions; and, therefore, taking that middle course it was assumed that we would need some sort of fail-safe proposal, a contingency which would protect the further erosion of the fund in the event the most pessimistic economic scenario proved to be the actual one.

There was at least a strong majority agreement of the Commission that we should extend the coverage of social security to new civilian Federal hires; that we should move toward universal coverage. This proposal is controversial to Federal employees only. There is very strong support for it among the public at large.

Provided we do not get into the difficulty of transition rules for existing Federal employees who, as you know, do not have vested pension benefits under the civil service retirement system for the first 5 years they work—provided we avoid this pitfall—it seems entirely appropriate to try to work out some sort of an integrated system for the civil service retirement program and social security, not a merger by an integrated system. This would ultimately be in the best interests of all, and current employees would not be disadvantaged in any way.

There was agreement also in the Commission that we should have a balanced program, that we should not put the total burden of reform on one element of those involved with the social security system the social security payroll taxpayers or the beneficiaries, those who in many cases are dependent on social security for their sustenance.

It was agreed in short that we should come up with a proposal that would have a number of people unhappy but nobody unfairly or exclusively burdened by the solution.

At the end of our deliberations, the end of the 3-day meeting, we agreed that also it was necessary if we were to play an effective role that the principals in this action; namely, the Speaker and the President, must be involved and must be willing to let the Commission serve as a negotiating element in trying to arrive at a balanced reform package.

The problem otherwise would be this: We would find one side or the other making concessions which the other side would put in its pocket and it would become the starting point for negotiations which ultimately must be consummated here in the Congress and between Congress and the President.

Thus it was felt that any strong majority report of the Commission to be effective must have the understanding and the support of the Speaker and the President.

Having failed to go beyond that, the Commission is now meeting again on December 10 to prepare its final report. If we have not been able to get any substantial areas of agreement between the White House and the Congress, obviously, our final report will simply list a series of options and urge that they be put together in some sort of a balanced form.

Those are the alternatives that face us, either a majority report with the agreement of the President and the Speaker behind it or a list of options left to the next Congress. It is still not too late to do something in this Congress.

I would like to talk the politics of social security a little at this point because we are now in a different condition than we were at the time of the election when this so inflamed the rhetoric of the campaign trail.

First of all I think it is apparent the Commission can be a useful tool. It is willing, but it knows the final solution lies in the Congress and not in its majority report.

It is a useful tool because it is a commission that should not be ignored. Congress can simply duplicate its effort by going through a whole series of hearings similar to those already held by the Commission and can ignore its findings and the body of knowledge about the social security system that it has built up. This would be wasteful and duplicative.

Obviously the members of the Commission are happy to appear before congressional committees. But if we were to act in this lameduck session on social security the Commission could provide a bulwark against public opinion and provide an alternative rather than the purely political forum that the Congress is likely to be on a subject which has been so recently the matter of intense debate.

A second point I want to make about the politics of this is that if we do not do it in the lameduck session we are going to be considering it in a budget context. What do I mean by that?

On February 1 the President is going to have to submit the budget for fiscal year 1984. We all know there is going to be very disturbing deficits in whatever proposal the President makes. We know the deficit for fiscal year 1983 is burgeoning. Budgets are going to be a major concern following the February 1 submission by the President of his budget to the Congress. It is going to be almost inevitable then that during the deliberation about social security early next year, if we put it off until then, the budget people are going to be talking about how nice it would be if we could just cap entitlements or if we could just save some money in the social security system.

Mr. Speaker, one thing I am sure of after this election campaign we have just come through is that the American people will not let you reduce the deficit or balance the budget on the backs of pensioners. It is not a budget issue. It should not be a budget issue.

What we do to social security should be designed to save the system and not to cure our fiscal disorders.

Yet well intentioned people in the budget area, looking at the large amount of moneys involved in social security, are inevitably going to talk wistfully about the necessity of capping entitlements, to many people a code word for social security.

Thus it is my impression that politically we would be much better off trying to deal with this issue now when budget matters do not predominate. Yet, as I hear the leadership, there is talk of starting hearings in Ways and Means early in January and having a bill on the floor by the middle of March when the budget process will be in full bloom. This timetable will add greatly to the difficulty of resolving the social security issue. People will inevitably be confused and suspicious about why we are raising taxes or suppressing the growth of benefits.

A third political point, Mr. Speaker, is that dealing with social security early next year, and it must be dealt with early next year, is going to be a very tough vote for our new Members to cut their teeth on. They, after all, many of them are coming here because they have made a big issue of social security. It was one of the critical issues of this past election and they are not going to be free agents, certainly not in the minds of most of them, to do what may be necessary in order to save the system. No one can blame an eager candidate from making incorrect assumptions about the necessity of our action, but it is embarrassing and difficult to change one's tune so soon after a first election.

We have, I think, a clear indication that the system is badly out of balance. Every indication, also, leads us to believe that sometime between April and July of next year, if further steps are not taken, we will have at least the temporary embarrassment of not being able to send the checks out. And so we do not have the option of postponing reform any longer. That is the fourth point I want to make politically. This is not an issue that can be temporized any longer. We have run out of bailing wire. Social security is in a crisis that must be met, and if it is not met in the lameduck session, it must be made early, at the beginning of the next session, with new Members, with many people who are not informed about it and will not have the opportunity to use the Commission's work to the same degree that it could be used in this lameduck session. The Members of the new Congress would be grateful for our action now. It is not too late, Mr. Speaker.

I remain optimistic. I believe that ultimately the Congress does what it must do. I acknowledge it does what is necessary at the last possible moment; but I do believe that it is important that the Members understand that now is the last possible moment to deal effectively with social security.

I deeply regret that the leadership has decided that we are not going to use the Commission as a shield but are going to try to duplicate its work. I deeply regret that they have decided that we are not going to deal with it now, when it will be clear that we are dealing with it in order to save the system, rather than in order to reduce our budget deficit that will be such a looming presence when we do take it up next year. I deeply regret that we are not using the lameduck session and the low political sensitivity that always attends a period of congressional session immediately following an election, but instead are going to take this subject up during a period of rising political interest again as the new Congress starts out on its new programs.

It is the last moment, Mr. Speaker. It is my sincere hope that the Members will speak to our leadership and urge them to try to work out, using the Commission as a bargaining agent, some kind of a majority report, a balanced report, that would permit us to certify to the beneficiaries that they are going to get next month's check, and to certify to those young people who are going to have to pay for the rest of their working lives that, by the time they retire, they will still have a system that will be of substantial benefit to them. It remains to be seen if we have the wisdom to do that. I would like to predict, however, that if we do not take this course and try to resolve it now, it will be all the harder to resolve with the imminence of the crisis facing us next year in a budget context.

Mr. Speaker, that is all the time I wish to take at this point. I have accomplished my purpose. If any Member has any questions, I would be happy to answer them.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order on today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

SENSE OF HOUSE RESOLUTION INTRODUCED URGING HOUSE LEADERSHIP TO ACT ON DRAMATIC RISE IN PRICE OF NATURAL AND PROPANE GAS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. WINN) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. WINN. Mr. Speaker, I have introduced today a sense of the House resolution urging the House leadership as well as the appropriate committee chairmen having jurisdiction to act on the dramatic rise in the price of natural and propane gas. We can talk endlessly about the problem of higher gas bills for our constituents, but actions speak louder than words and it is essential that the House put this dilemma at the top of the legislative calendar in this lameduck session.

A flood of bills have been introduced this year and certainly many have merit. At last count, there are some 50 pieces of legislation in the hopper dealing with the sharp rise in natural gas prices. It is vital that we create a clear consensus on this issue which affects the daily lives of people who will deal with one of the coldest winters in recent history. My challenge to the leadership is to consolidate the good ideas put forth in current proposed legislation and lead the concerted action we must have. My challenge to committee chairmen is to move the necessary legislation along so it can reach the floor of the House where it can be acted upon during this lame-duck session.

This resolution does not advocate any one bill or solution but is intended to impress upon Congress, and particularly the leadership and the appropriate committees, that the thousands and thousands of natural gas customers who have written to their Representatives and Senators demand decisive action by the Congress as a whole. It is our responsibility to act on behalf of our constituents.

The impact of natural gas price increases has had the most devastating impact on residential users. Depending on the locality, gas rates have increased anywhere from 15 percent to near 60 percent. But the commercial sector is also feeling the pinch of higher energy costs which are ultimately passed on to the consumer. In a recent updated energy analysis study, reported by the American Gas Association, educational, health service such as hospitals and nonresidential apartments or building represent almost 40 percent of the U.S. commercial sales volume. And notwithstanding the application of energy efficiency measures to reduce consumption, overall costs have continued to rise.

I recently received data from Rockhurst College in my area showing that despite a considerable effort and expense to successfully achieve a 25-percent reduction in energy use over a 4-year period from 1979 through 1982, total MCF usage has decreased from 47,517 to 36,457.06 while total costs have increased from $82,277.82 to $151,816.45.

In my district, as perhaps in yours, coordinated efforts are underway to assist individuals and families with their gas bill. Numerous private, church, and social service agencies, as well as cities and counties, are actively involved in raising funds. While most of these projects are voluntarily financed, I can tell you also of both city and county endeavors which have earmarked a portion of their respective budgets to help people pay high utility bills. The city of Overland Park, Kans., for example, has committed $15,000 to a special mayor's fund with a final goal set at $30,000. The Johnson County Commission is contributing $50,000 for needy households. The cities of Kansas City, Kans.; Olathe; Mission; and Lenexa have all begun relief programs. KCMO television has raised money for needy households, through call-in pledges—and the newspapers, the Kansas City Star, Kansas City Kansan have highly publicized the problem.

I have been gratified at the amount of monetary support that has been generated by churches, social service agencies, and cities and counties in my district, but the funds passed on to people struggling to pay their gas bills is just a beginning in tackling the sometimes complicated task of limiting natural gas price increases. Congress did not intend for the Natural Gas Price Act of 1978 to cause this sort of hardship in the natural gas market.

I am sure many of you have received the enormous volume of mail, just as I have. The people we represent are sending us a clear message and are asking for our help. We can help them—even if it is in the short term—by taking action in this lame-duck session of Congress. Many of the people who write me are wondering how they are going to keep warm, and at the same time, feed their families. It is a desperate situation.

Talking and debating the causes of this price hardship will not make life easier for the people. Only quick and decisive action can relieve gas consumers besieged with the highest gas bills in history. In large part, it is the NGPA and contractual problems which created this situation—legislation I did not support—and I believe a legislative remedy can at least partially undo the injustices of the past.

Let us show our resolve as well as our compassion and move ahead with substantive legislation to lessen the burden on people who put us here.

INTERNATIONAL SALES AND SERVICES CORPORATIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. FRENZEL) is recognized for 20 minutes.

● Mr. FRENZEL. Mr. Speaker, I am today, for myself and Mr. GIBBONS of Florida, introducing legislation that is designed to offer a meaningful, substantive, and inexpensive solution to our mounting trade deficit problems. Our bill, the International Sales and Services Corporation Act of 1982, is designated to further the debate as to a possible replacement for the current Domestic International Sales Corporation (DISC) legislation, and is intended as an update replacement for a bill we introduced last year, H.R. 5179.

Over the past year, it has become evident that the DISC is doomed to extinction. DISC, which was originally enacted in 1971 as a means of partially offsetting the export incentives offered by the European tax systems, has been under attack for the past several years as a subsidy that does not conform to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). Earlier this year, the U.S. Treasury finally acquiesced to the GATT, and agreed that the meager benefits provided by the DISC were not in conformity with GATT rules. The problems with the GATT were discussed fully in my RECORD Statement of December 11, 1981, on page H9410.

In admitting that the DISC was not in conformity with the GATT, the Secretary of the Treasury indicated that the Treasury would seek legislative changes in the DISC program in order to bring it in line with the GATT's requirements. Several proposals have been developed by various Members of Congress, the Treasury Department, and several business organizations whose members would be adversely effected by the repeal of the DISC. All of the proposals represent a serious attempt to resolve the current difficulties DISC is facing.

Our bill, the International Sales and Services Corporation Act of 1982 is similar to several of the proposals that are being circulated in that it attempts to address the GATT's domestic tax subsidy argument by requiring ISSC's to be incorporated outside of the United States. The bill also, however, attempts to respond to other GATT concerns by requiring some substance in the foreign corporation, making modifications in the arms-length pricing rules, and altering the method by which the ISSC is taxed.

In general, as stated earlier, our bill would require an ISSC to be incorporated outside of the United States including Puerto Rico. The ISSC would generally not be permitted to have a U.S. office, although rules have been provided to significantly ease the harshness of this rule. The shareholders of the ISSC will be deemed to have received 60 percent of the ISSC's earnings as a taxable dividend. The shareholders would also receive a pro rata portion of any foreign tax credits earned by the ISSC on the taxable deemed distribution. Forty percent of the earnings of the ISSC would be required to be invested in a qualified export asset for a period of no less than 1 year. After the 1-year period, the 40 percent would be considered to be previously taxed income. The shareholders of the ISSC would not have any U.S. tax liability for the dividends they receive out of previously taxed income.

In order to facilitate the use of ISSC's by smaller exporters, those exporters with less than $200,000 in qualified export receipts would be relieved of the requirement in the bill that the ISSC not have a U.S. office. In addition, no limit has been placed on the number of shareholders in an ISSC, thereby opening the door to multiple company ISSC's.

The bill also expands the definition of services in the bill to include virtually all exportable services. However, due to the revenue loss to the Treasury of such a proposal, services will not be considered qualified export receipts until 3 years after the effective date of the bill.

Our bill represents a substantive attempt to address the problems with the DISC in the GATT. It does not attempt to make DISC GATT-conforming by making minor, cosmetic changes. Rather it is an attempt to provide a workable, beneficial, GATT conforming export incentive. In my judgment, the Congress must enact a substantive proposal if it is going to make a serious effort to convince the GATT that the new proposal is GATT conforming. A cosmetic solution, such as one that merely moves DISC off-shore without making any other changes in the program, and maintains current DISC for smaller exporters would, I believe, be a serious mistake. A nonsubstantive change would not show the GATT that we are serious about conforming to GATT guidelines, but rather, could be perceived as a perpetuation of our admittedly current non-GATT conforming policies. In addition, a cosmetic solution such as moving DISC off-shore intact could be seen by our major trading partners as generally bad-faith bargaining, and could set back our negotiations with the GATT several years, not only on the DISC issue, but on other issues as well.

This bill is not intended to be the final solution to the DISC problem, but rather is intended as a means of furthering the discussion as to a GATT conforming, substantive export program. The bill represents the end products of the hundreds of suggestions for changes I have received from various business groups, and the suggestions transmitted to me by my colleagues. There are still flaws with the bill, especially with the definition and mechanics of the U.S. office. On this issue, and on any other of the provisions in the bill, I would welcome additional comment. On the whole, however, we think that this bill is a step in the right direction to developing a useful, GATT conforming, export incentive for U.S. businesses. A more detailed explanation of the bill follows.●

PAST, PRESENT, AND THE FUTURE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. COLLINS) is recognized for 30 minutes.

● Mr. COLLINS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, learn from the past. Live in the present. Build for the future. That has been the code that I determined for my own life. And it is a good way to live.

There is so much we can learn from past history.

We ought to live in the present, yet we see so many people that live in memories. You see some people that borrow too much money and overspend.

But what makes for success is to build for the future. When I was in business, we used to keep our expenses to the minimum, we used to save all we could and as we built up reserves, we plowed this back to buy land, buildings, machinery, inventory for a better future for the business.

I think about my code as I lived my eight terms in Congress. The more I see of the American public, the more I believe that they are mainly interested in the present. Too many people do not seem to learn from the past. And many people today certainly do not want to wait for the future. They want to know what is in it for them right now.

If we are going to build a great country; if we are going to build a greater America, we would do well to learn from past experiences. In the first 5 years of this Republic, the country spent more money. The continental dollar in the first 5 years of this Republic dropped from a dollar to 1 penny. We had an expression, "It is not worth a continental dollar." Today in Congress we hear that America should borrow more money, print more money and that will take care of the present.

As to the future, experience proves the best way that you can build for the future is by saving. We hear people constantly who say Congress should spend and spend, because as we spend we will make the country rich. They do not realize that you can no more spend yourself rich than you can drink yourself sober.

There is one answer for America, and that is for Congress to pass the balanced budget constitutional amendment. When Congress starts balancing our budget, the American people will have some of their salary left to save. This will provide a lower prime interest rate under 7 percent. A balanced budget will provide the momentum on which this country can grow.

There is too much emphasis on what each person can get out of things today. People want to know how short the work week would be. They want to know how many days vacation there are. How much cost of living can they get. This is living in the present, but we do not hear much about building for the future. When you are working in a business, do employees talk about quality control, do they talk about putting out a good product so you will have repeat customers come back in 3 years? Do they talk about saving money, so that the company can buy new machinery? Do they talk about reducing costs and making more profits for retained cash so the company will not need to borrow money at high interest rates.

America needs a return to religion. We need to live by the Golden Rule. Read the good book every day, and we will have more love and happiness.

It is a good code to live by. Learn from the past. Live in the present. Build for the future.●

SOCIAL SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER) is recognized for 10 minutes.

● Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, this lameduck session of Congress is the best opportunity we will have to act in a nonpartisan climate on the serious question of social security financing.

All of us in this Chamber know the trust funds will be insolvent in a few short months. We know we must act before that occurs so that current beneficiaries will not be denied any portion of their earned benefits. We know the options that are available. We know there are no painless, easy solutions. The question is whether we will act now, without political bias, to make those tough decisions in a responsible fashion.

Two years ago, at the start of the 97th Congress, the Social Security Subcommittee on which I serve began the difficult task of shaping a bipartisan solution to the problem. After months of work under the able leadership of our chairman, JAKE PICKLE, we were making significant progress on such a plan. Democrats and Republicans alike on the subcommittee were working toward a common goal—to forge a bipartisan bill to present to the House.

We were stopped dead in our tracks when you, Mr. Speaker, told the subcommittee to halt its work. We then were forced to stand idle while the Democratic National Committee sent out its series of election year mailings playing on the fears of the Nation's elderly. Governmental responsibility took a back seat to political opportunism. Congress could have acted then. It should have acted then. It did not because you refused to permit it.

The elections are over now and whatever political gain may have been derived from the delaying tactic has already been realized. It is time now to put partisanship behind us and to consider social security in a calm, rational climate.

There are 36 million people out there receiving benefits today who want our final assurance that their benefits will be continued. There are 117 million people in America who are paying the taxes to support those benefits. They, too, want to know for certain that social security will be there when they retire—and what the cost to them will be during the remainder of their working lives.

We owe it to those people to avoid any further delays in making our difficult decisions.

No, there are not any easy, painless solutions we can pull out of a hat. But we were not elected to make only those decisions which are easy. When each of us ran for office we willingly chose to accept the responsibility for the difficult decisions as well.

Mr. Speaker, I implore you again, as I did a year ago, to permit this House of Representatives to meet its responsibility on the issue of social security financing. As before, you have the power, by virtue of the office you hold, to let this House proceed with its work. I urge you to use that power to help us enact a responsible, bipartisan solution to social security before final adjournment of this Congress. ●

MARY OBERSTAR: A TRIBUTE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, my grandmother, Mary Oberstar, was born in the small rural village of Sodražica, in what is today the Republic of Slovenia, Yugoslavia, on March 16, 1891. She died this past Tuesday, November 23, 1982, in Chisholm, Minn. Between those two milestones was lived a life both simple in its manner and extraordinary in its impact on us members of the family and on others whose lives she touched. A beautiful moving funeral mass was celebrated Saturday, November 27 at St. Joseph's Church by our pastor, Father Cornelius Kelleher, and Father Frank Perkovich, a lifelong family friend. Grandma Oberstar, as everyone affectionately called her, was the central force in our family, a magnet drawing all of us to her and, through her, to each other—a very special woman.

It was my privilege at that mass to offer a eulogy on behalf of the family. I would like to include those remarks at this point in the RECORD.

GRANDMA OBERSTAR

Every great work of art needs a frame. Life, the greatest work of all art, is framed by birth and death.

The final line has now been drawn around Grandma's great work of art, framing her life. But a part of her lives on in each of us members of the Oberstar family, and in others whose lives have been touched by her.

If we look closely, we can learn much from this life, this great work of art. We can learn about love, persistence, strength, and courage.

We can learn about the courage it took to leave a familiar home on a long journey across Europe and the Atlantic to an unfamiliar land and an uncertain future.

There were no TV cameras, no photographers or reporters on hand to record her arrival in America or to chronicle her innermost thoughts.

She might have been thinking something like this: "With hopeful hearts we arrived in New York harbor. After nine days of stormy voyage on the Atlantic, I recall how all my friends had sea sickness. On passing the Statue of Liberty, we greeted her: 'Pozdravljena Amerika! Bodi nam dobra' ('Greetings to you, America! Be good to us.')."

And there, on landing, standing in line to see the immigration inspector: "The word spread that everybody must have $5 in cash or be deported. I was frantic. I had only $3 left. I begged the woman ahead of me to pass me her $5 behind her back after she had seen the inspector. I proudly showed my $8 and the inspector didn't as much as look at my money."

Those impressions of her arrival here were recorded by Marie Prisland, founder of ZVEZA (The Slovenian Women's National Union), of which Grandma was one of Chisholm's earliest members—but they were undoubtedly similar to the experience of most immigrants of that time—and not much different from Grandma's experience, as I recall her telling it recently.

We don't know what emotions Grandma felt when she left her beloved Slovenia where, from sunrise to sunset, hard labor earned you 15¢ and a meal—probably zhgonce; where a dress cost two weeks' work; where ocean liner passage took two years' earnings. But we can imagine how demoralizing it must have been in her first encounter with the new world, when this inexperienced teenager was cheated out of the first class ocean liner passage her family had paid for her.

But, typically, Grandma overcame the adversity, found friends aboard ship and made the best of it.

Next came New York harbor, Ellis Island, a long train ride to Minnesota. Here she found, not a land flowing with milk and honey, as many had been led to expect, but hard work and unforeseen hardship: serving rough-hewn miners in the boarding house, carrying buckets of water through harsh, sub-zero winters, losing her husband in the prime of life, raising eight children on a meager income, one good leg and a crutch.

A lesser person would have succumbed. Many do today, in the face of less imposing obstacles.

There is a Yiddish proverb that says: "God gave us burdens, but he also gave us shoulders." Grandma has been "shoulders" to all of us. A pillar of strength, an inspiring example of ironwilled persistence and determination to overcome.

We can also learn about independence from a spirit fiercely independent to the last.

We can learn about the wit and good humor that characterized her life and which she imparted to each of us. I vividly recall returning home in January 1975 shortly after I had been sworn in to my first term in Congress. Dad and I walked through a light snow fall to Grandma's for a visit—my first opportunity to see her after being sworn in to office.

Her first words were not: "Congratulations on being a Member of Congress," or "How nice of you to come visit," but: "Jimmy, where are your rubbers. You are going to catch cold."

Dad quickly said: "Ma, you can't talk to him like that anymore. He is a Member of Congress." Grandma responded very softly but firmly with that twinkle in her eye: "He is still my grandson. I still have to worry about him." And so it went with each of us; the care and concern expressed with a touch of wit and good humor.

We can learn about concern for the well-being of others. Who can measure the impact of her remarks to us as children: "You such good boy!" (Said with her gentle Slovenian accent.) It made you want to do better.

Or her mini-sermons: "You have to obey father and mother." It made you want to head for the nearest confessional for breaking the 4th Commandment, or go home and do some good deed.

Who can forget her words of praise that lightened the heart and lasted a lifetime within us, as a recurring inspiration of confidence.

We can learn about love—for our family—the way she always seemed to find something good to say about each one of us—that made us feel very special, and much loved.

Most of all, we can learn faith—simple, open, uncomplicated, unquestioning faith. The kind that moves mountains; that keeps a family together on one good leg and a crutch; that conquered life's most formidable obstacles; that now has conquered death itself and earned life everlasting. Her unshakable faith was the deep well from which she drew her extraordinary strength.

Irving Howe, a noted contemporary thinker, philosopher, writer, in a recent book wondered: what if we have gone through all this existence of ours and find there is nothing after life. It was an awesome dilemma for him.

I doubt if such a thought ever occurred to Grandma. Her faith told her that life is eternal.

Death is not defeat. We read about so many heroic efforts in medicine; about doctors who begin thinking they've failed when the patient dies.

Spiritually, for the Christian, death is a triumph—the entry to eternal life. That, I'm sure, is how Grandma saw it—in a way uncomplicated by a philosophy or theology; for her, it was a reality, it was truth.

More than 2,000 years ago, the great Roman Senator and orator Cicero said: "Gratitude is not only the greatest virtue; it is the parent of all others."

We are gathered here in gratitude to Grandma—for the sharing, the caring, the sacrifice, the love, that she showered upon each of us.

The finest testimonial, the finest expression of gratitude we can offer to her is for each of us to bear proudly within us the indelible lessons of her life, and to live our lives as a tribute to her.

THE SITUATION IN EL SALVADOR AND CENTRAL AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GONZALEZ) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, I am impelled to rise at this point because of the extremely growing concern and apprehension that I have expressed before with respect to the quagmire that is building up now in Mexico. The last time I spoke out was with respect to Central America. And I will remind my colleagues very seldom have I addressed myself to this subject matter, and for the first time did so on April 1, 1980, at which time I addressed myself to then President Carter, because I had been unable to reach anybody on the State Department or the White House decisionmaking-process level.

And again I was motivated to do so because if one will only go back and dig a little bit into history, by April 1, 1980, the situation was reported to me to be very much deteriorating in El Salvador. I pointed out to the President that the United States would have at the most, if we were lucky, 90 days at the most, 3 months, in which it could exercise some of the last remaining leverage of leadership that our country still had at the time.

And when I talk about leadership, I am talking about suasion, not pressure. And unfortunately, I failed, and I think the rest is history.

I also forewarned that I did not think we would get the 90 days, but if we did, and we let it go by without exerting that leadership, American leadership, that then no matter what the United States would do, and it would have to, it would be wrong, that is would be reacting in meager fashion. And we did.

I predicted at the time that it was far better to anticipate, even if it meant that we would have to amend some sections of the Assistance Act, rather than to later find ourselves having to invest our boys in the jungles of South and Central America.

Well, we have our boys and they have been there, and ironically some have been my constituents, and some are still serving in El Salvador. And some in Honduras. And the situation is very precarious. In fact, it has deteriorated to the point where I saw now on the eve of the President's departure to South America, Central America, that I only wish I had had my letter written to him in anticipation of this trip, and dated November 6 when I first read that he was planning definitely to go.

Of course, if Jimmy Carter was inaccessible in 1980, let me tell my colleagues that this President is the most inaccessible I have worked with in 21 years, with six different Presidents. This is the first President who does not even answer a Congressman's letter, but rather delegates the acknowledgement of the letter to some assistant in the White House.

So that I rise only because, Mr. Speaker, the United States will be lucky now if Mexico—now, forget about Central America. At the time I was speaking last, Mexico had not deteriorated, though I had spoken out on the matter and had said in my reports back home on television and radio, in English and Spanish, that Mexico was in a terrible crisis. But nobody would report it. Nobody wanted to see it. In fact, I got heavily criticized and vilified in Mexico, in fact if I had gone to Mexico I would have probably been shot, because it was interpreted down there by the controlled press that I was anti-Mexican. Here a man whose ancestry goes back to northern Mexico, to 1561, and who's members of that family are still in that area.

So that it shows you, though, the situation now.

The United States, I say at this time, we will be lucky, the United States will be lucky if Mexico turns out to be our Poland. But I am afraid that I must be pessimistic and say that it is more likely that Mexico is going to turn out to be our Afghanistan.

Now, this sounds again very, very flamboyant, and I only hope and pray that I am dead wrong.

In the bitter days of the Vietnam war, the conflict and our policy toward Vietnam generally were often described as being in an endless swamp, a quagmire. A wise and prudent policy it was said would have avoided a miserable and tragic conflict, too costly in life, limb, and treasure for any conceivable gain. History will be the judge of those bitterly argued issues. But in the meanwhile, we are faced here and now with new challenges and new choices.

Now the field is much closer to home. Now the challenges in Latin America beginning immediately south of us in Mexico and parts of which the President departs today to visit.

I regret to say that after my experience in speaking out on El Salvador generally, and related subject matters later, that I find the same obtuseness that I discovered all during the process of what turned out to be the Vietnam war.

Latin America is plagued by poverty, it is a poverty compounded by the general recession in the world today.

Matters that we notice but little in our own great economy have catastrophic effects in Latin America. A drop in the demand or price for tin has enormous consequences in Bolivia. Chile reels when copper sales are off. Aluminum-dependent economies in other countries feel tremendous disruption if the use of their product declines or the price drops.

□ 1840

Latin America has been something of history's orphan. Well, let me say that it is the U.S. history's orphan; but the accumulated grief of centuries is ready to burst. We see the warning signs everywhere.

The so-called Sandinista revolution, the brutality that is a fact of life, not only in Salvador now, but in Guatemala and on the border along with Mexico.

I visited just last week with a high religious dignitary, a church official who serves in the Diocese of Chiapas, which is a Mexican State bordering with Guatemala. That visit with him has been one of the most devastating and sad and tragic stories I have ever heard, with the United States deeply involved and yet not one report in our press have I seen.

As I am speaking here today, babies of the peasants in northern Guatemala are having their stomachs ripped out by soldiers' bayonets, bayonets made in the USA.

We are having all the brutality that some of us have read about in wars generally and specifically in these wars that have been marking the development of history since 1945.

The atrocities being perpetrated now in Guatemala, with a growing danger of conflict between Mexico and Guatemala because of old feuds and disputes that exist there, that our media does not either report or reflect in the least. I have yet to see any story written on that and yet right now the situation is tense along the Mexican-Guatemalan border.

Now I know why. When I reported to this House and exposed the secret deal between our Government and Mexico in 1980 whereby we provided Mexico with about a dozen F-5-E's and then I was the one who reported earlier this year on this floor the so-called sale of two of our destroyers from our active duty destroyer list as scrap to Mexico, and I raised the question, why? This is a radical departure from Mexican policy since the revolution, since 1910.

All Mexican leaders have prided themselves in not advocating anything that would be consistent with what any other country would define as a large standing army. Their proudful boast has been, "We are not an aggressor nation and never will be. We are the preachers of the doctrine of 'auto determinacion,' self-determination, no intervention." And proudly, all of a sudden, here is a President who finds it necessary to arm Mexico in a big way.

Also as I have brought out, and I have not seen it reported in the press, our deal to give about 14 F-16's to Venezuela. Why?

The F-16 is a big issue with Israel—but Venezuela? What is the purpose behind all this. Well, at the time of the Mexican deal I did not know, but now that the shapes are developing, I can say that it was that mistaken erroneous Haig-Reagan policy of sowing dragon's teeth along the Caribbean and south of us and now we are going to see those dragon teeth sprouting horrible and calamitous consequences for us and our boys.

What I am saying here today, even if we were to have acted on some suggestions that I have written the President about, I have not been so closed minded that I am not willing to risk the debate of exposure of my ideas and recommendations, but I do think that they deserve at least some attention, but they have not, either in the Congress or in the White House.

I have written letters to the proper committee chairmen. At least I have had them acknowledged, which is more than I have had from President Reagan; but what I am saying right now, and I repeat and I hope I am dead wrong, but if I felt that the odds were even 50-50, I would not be wasting anybody's time here today, but we are going to have our Poland, if we are lucky; Afghanistan, if we jog along the way we are.

Mexico is a great and proud nation. It is ravaged by economic misfortune, monstrous human suffering, and lamentably terrible corruption—terrible corruption. Yet we have no real program to help overcome the misfortune or to alleviate the suffering. Mexico is our poor cousin, as I said, our Poland.

In Central America also we have too little idea of what the realities and the possibilities are. We have wasted too much time in declining to confront the issues, the realities, and in deciding what to do. Even now there is no clear policy.

Just look. Haig in this general arms pushing and selling, twisted Argentina's leaders to send a military component to help us "destabilize" the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

Is it surprising that Argentina then felt that at least we had a moral obligation when they got into a war with England?

The American press reports nothing that I have seen in any of our great organs or in the electronic media about what that feeling is now in Latin America, even though most of those countries have had no use for the Argentinian regime.

A great friend of America, the present leader in Peru, refused—refused any kind of courtesy visit or reception to protest America abandoning the Pact of Rio when we went in and sided with England in an active way.

Why should not the Argentinians have felt we were in communication with them when they let us have their soldiers on our insistence?

What press has reported that we have got a thousand Colombians in the Sinai with our so-called peace keeping troops there, and we have over 1,200 of our military from the 81st Airborne right there in the Sinai. Do you read about it? You read about the Marines in Beirut. What about the others? And what about the thousand Colombians who are there because we simply told the Colombian leaders, "If you want to keep on receiving any aid from us, you better let us have some soldiers over here. We need some country to join us in this"—what I consider to be a misbegotten venture, which incidentally the Congress is responsible for. We debated this almost a year ago next month the first time, an unprecedented resolution passed by this Congress mandating military. This has never happened since the First Congress and we got those men there and we got 1,000 Colombians. Has that been reported in the press?

Let me assure you, maybe we have not, maybe our Americans are not informed, but the Europeans are, the Latin Americans are, the Russians are.

We cannot make any mistake now. We have vital interests in Latin America. We do have a positive role to play and we have no time to waste.

I have twice written President Reagan asking that he establish a clear national commitment for long-range progress, but asserting his leadership and the U.S. leadership with our sister nations through the OAS, a program of hope in place of repression.

□ 1850

We, right now, as were the soldiers ripping open the bellies of infants in Guatemala, right now, are identified with the rippers. We are everywhere else. In El Salvador, it is our arms that are killing from both sides. Our CIA, cheek by jowl with the assassins of the archbishop, four nuns and two American labor consultants that were murdered; nothing done about it, and it is not being done.

How long can America continue the luxury of being identified with those forces of oppression, of tyranny, of murder, and of injustice, and still say that we are going to avoid a confrontation, except that the way they will put it is that we have got to put down communism or Castroism or intervention by either of them.

I am certain, of course, that Reagan has not seen any of my letters. I can only hope that whatever desk they have been shuffled to will be seen by somebody who can at least—at least—have the policymakers in the State Department evaluate.

His trip now, for instance, where he will stop, is inciting very heavy criticism from some of the neighboring countries he is going to skip over. His trip is not to announce a grand purpose, as I have suggested, but it is a traveling sales circus, and that is no substitute for a seriously and progressively humane policy.

If we wait for the crisis to burst—and at this point I do not see how it is being avoided—we have waited too long. If we do nothing until the gunfire starts or the banks shut down for good all over, we have waited too long.

Time is not on our side, as I warned. I repeat, on April 1, 1980. There are steps that we can take, immediate actions that we could initiate. I outlined such a program in my letters to the President. I have offered and offer now a repeat of those letters for the RECORD in the hope and in the trust that they will draw some attention toward an area of the world that has sadly lacked our genuine interest much less our priority.

The letters referred to follow:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D.C., October 27, 1982.

HON. RONALD REAGAN,
President of the United States,
The White House, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: Between 1975 and this year, the foreign indebtedness of Latin American countries quadrupled. During that same time, American bank lending in Latin America doubled. U.S. bank loans to Argentina increased sixfold in that period, while loans to Mexico increased fourfold. Neither Argentina nor Mexico is able to repay its debt. Brazil is also in great difficulty.

The extraordinary problems in Mexico caused the United States to take emergency action to stave off an outright collapse of the Mexican economy. There is still considerable question about Mexico's future. The future course of Mexico and other hard-pressed nations is very much an open question. These are not matters that trouble only the affected countries; economic crises do not respect national borders, they affect us all.

The problems of Mexico, for example, have caused U.S. citizens to take large losses on debts owed to them by Mexico. One constituent of mine is owed almost $200,000 for goods sold in Mexico. He has been told that he can be paid only in pesos, at a rate that would cause him to lose forty per cent of the amount due. The result will be ruinous. Another individual, a wholesaler, has found his business wiped out because his Mexican customers can no longer obtain currency to deal with him. Dozens of others who had a large Mexican retail trade now find their businesses in grave difficulty. Thousands of U.S. citizens with dollar deposits in Mexico are unable to recover their deposits. Hundreds of businesses throughout the border region are near collapse, unemployment is up, and there is no prospect for relief. At the same time, massive unemployment, rapid inflation, and growing desperation is sure to cause a large increase in illegal immigration from Mexico. These are matters that affect Americans, and as such they are of real and immediate concern to our country.

You know, I am certain, that economic disintegration soon leads to social unrest and political disorder. The threat facing Mexico is real. There is no question that disorder in Mexico would create enormous problems in our country, and pose serious challenges to our policy.

The United States cannot ignore the problems of Mexico. Your clear recognition of this fact is evidenced by the emergency action that you took earlier this year. But more than emergency action is needed. It is necessary now for the United States to work with Mexico and other Latin American nations to forge a blueprint for the future. United States leadership and cooperation is essential if the economic problems of Latin America are to be resolved. Failure to address these problems will only complicate our already difficult domestic situation.

I know that you are planning a trip to Latin America at the end of November. Before that time, I believe that the United States should propose a mini-Bretton Woods Conference, to devise workable programs to deal with the debt crisis facing Latin America, to devise programs for recovery, and to establish mechanisms for cooperation. The problems that exist are too complex to be dealt with on an ad hoc, bilateral basis. They are too difficult to be resolved with emergency actions. They require a genuine program, and a genuine commitment of United States leadership. It was just such a program, just such leadership, and just such commitment at Bretton Woods that enabled the world to recover from the chaos and destruction of World War II, and to benefit from the longest and greatest economic growth of all time.

As matters now stand, the world is threatened with trade warfare, more so than at any time in the past five decades. We know, from long and bitter experience, that beggar-thy-neighbor actions not only fail to resolve domestic problems, but lead down the road to universal tragedy. This need not happen. We can best help ourselves, and our neighbors, by positive and responsive leadership. I urge that you act at once to establish a Western Hemisphere Conference on economic recovery, stabilization and cooperation. This type of conference, like Bretton Woods, offers the best hope of exerting the leadership that is essential to resolving the very great problems that our country and neighbors must face together.

Respectfully yours,

HENRY B. GONZALEZ,
Member of Congress.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D.C., November 6, 1982.
HON. RONALD REAGAN,
President of the United States,
The White House, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: Though for the past two years national attention has been concentrated on domestic economic issues, these are momentous times in the realm of foreign policy. Your planned meetings with heads of state in Washington, and your forthcoming journey to Latin America, clearly evidence the scope and depth of urgent problems.

I am, as you know, gravely concerned about the economic and social problems of our neighboring countries—problems that are reflected in grave political events. It was this concern that led me to suggest earlier a hemispheric version of the Bretton Woods talks. Concentrating on economic problems, these talks produced the framework of economic growth, international cooperation, and political stability that blessed the industrial world in postwar times. Since President Nixon ended the Bretton Woods monetary policy in 1971, there has been nothing to replace it. During the intervening years, we have seen an explosive growth in debt, a rapid erosion in trade terms for developing countries, and a steady march toward protectionism and similar beggar-thy-neighbor policies.

It is no secret that the prospect for world economic growth is not very bright today, nor that country after country is finding itself unable to repay debt, resist the drift toward trade warfare (for example, the threat only this week by Secretary Block to dump U.S. dairy products on the world market; Japan's deliberate cheapening of the yen; unwarranted European and Japanese export subsidies), or maintain political stability. More and more, it seems, there is a drift toward radical schemes that promise something different—though the radical is not often something that works. All of this, I think, reflects a growing kind of anarchy. This trend can be stopped, and must be. It can only be done if the world finds within itself the leadership and discipline to agree on sensible programs for the benefit of all—which is what Bretton Woods was all about. If ever there was a time when new arrangements were needed, it is now. If ever there was an opportunity for American leadership, it is now. Opportunity is at hand, and you can grasp it by the forelock, and I urge that you do.

Not only do I think that you should propose a hemispheric conference, on the order of Bretton Woods, I believe you should reassert American commitment to democracy and human rights. This could be done by revising the Haig policy of vast arms sales. It could be done by maintaining insistence (for example) that the Government of El Salvador make genuine progress toward redressing the grievances of that country's people. Violence is no substitute for honest government, and no substitute for necessary reform. The flight of hundreds of thousands of political refugees to our country signifies but one thing: that ours is a land of honest government, a land of open voices, a land where peaceful change is possible.

Our country is frequently blamed for all the problems of neighboring nations. Mexican politicians, no less than Fidel Castro, are prone to blame their ills on the United States. Yet everywhere, the great mass of people look to the United States as the hope for reform, for progress, for a better world. To the extent that our policy nourishes those hopes, helps to realize them, we remain true to our Revolution, our national principles. But if we merely peddle arms, ignore abuse and grievance, and stand silent in the face of overwhelming abuse, we not only fail to live up to our own ideals, we promote enmity elsewhere. Therefore, I hope that you will use your forthcoming journey to revise the Haig arms sales drive, call for a Hemispheric Conference on economic and human progress, and hold high the American dream of freedom for all people.

With all good wishes, I am,

Respectfully yours,

HENRY B. GONZALEZ,
Member of Congress.

SOVIETS CONTINUE TO DENY HUMAN RIGHTS TO VIKTOR AND BATISHEVA YELISTRATOV

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. ANNUNZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

● Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to call to the attention of my colleagues the unfortunate plight of Viktor and Batsheva Yelistratov, who have been repeatedly denied permission to leave the Soviet Union. Their tragic story is representative of Soviet treatment of Jews and the numerous human rights violations committed against them by the Communists.

The Yelistratovs first applied for an exit visa in 1972, and because of this application, Viktor was fired from his job as a translator of foreign publications. Ever since that time, Viktor has moved from menial job to menial job, and the Soviets have subjected Viktor and his wife, Batsheva, to continued harassment and persecution.

Although over the last decade the Communists have tried to prohibit the Yelistratovs from practicing their religion and from helping other refuseniks, with actions including arrests, imprisonments, beatings, wiretaps, and threats of sending them to the East, the Soviets have been unable to crush their spirit, their determination to emigrate to Israel, and their selfless and fearless assistance to others who are also harassed by the Communists. Their dedication is a source of strength and inspiration for all refusenik families living in the Soviet Union, and all freedom-loving people throughout the world.

The Communists have consistently denied the Yelistratovs permission to emigrate to Israel on the false grounds that Viktor held a job with a secret classification and had access to military secrets. Viktor's closest access to any military secrets was his 2 years of service in the Soviet Army as a radio engineer from 1968 to 1970. This was over 12 years ago, so such a reason given by the Soviets is clearly a poor excuse for prohibiting the Yelistratovs from leaving the country.

Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, the tragic case of Viktor and Batsheva Yelistratov is not unique. Thousands of Soviet Jews daily must face a dismal life of tyranny and oppression under Communist rule, and harassment of Jews seeking to leave the country has increased in recent months. In addition, the rate of Soviet Jewish emigration has significantly declined from a monthly average of approximately 4,000 in 1979 to about 200 at present.

We must protest these human rights violations by the Soviets in the strongest possible terms, and make clear that we will not tolerate such conduct which is inconsistent with the Helsinki Agreement on Human Rights, signed by the Soviets in 1975. I encourage my colleagues in the Congress, and all freedom-loving people throughout the world, to write the Soviet leaders, on behalf of the Yelistratovs, demanding that they be granted freedom to emigrate to Israel, and that persecution of all Soviet Jews must cease, so human rights of Soviet Jews are not trampled on by the Communists.●

REMARKS OF ROBERT L. HARDESTY, CHAIRMAN, BOARD OF GOVERNORS, U.S. POSTAL SERVICE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Ford) is recognized for 15 minutes.

● Mr. FORD of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, published reports during the past few weeks indicate that the Reagan administration is preparing to launch an effort aimed at undermining the foundation of the traditional American postal system: The Private Express Statutes. This body of law—which has existed in one form or another since 1775—gives the U.S. Postal Service a partial monopoly over the delivery of letter mail, thereby giving the Postal Service the financial underpinning it needs to carry out its mandate to provide reliable service at reasonable rates in every corner of the Nation.

In anticipation of the coming debate over this vital public policy issue, I want to share with the Members of the House a speech made during the recess by the Chairman of the Postal Service Board of Governors, Robert L. Hardesty. Although admittedly a party at interest in this case, Mr. Hardesty, who is also president of Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, Tex., presents an objective, lucid, and comprehensive defense of the private express statutes—and of the national postal system which they make possible. I commend Mr. Hardesty on an outstanding presentation and I urge Members to consider his remarks most carefully.

ADDRESS BY ROBERT L. HARDESTY, CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS, U.S. POSTAL SERVICE, BEFORE THE CONVENTION OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF POSTMASTERS, BILOXI, MISS., OCTOBER 6, 1982

I bring you greetings from the Board of Governors of the U.S. Postal Service.

It's a real privilege to be here with you today. You are the front-line managers who deserve so much of the credit for the progress of the Postal Service since postal reorganization. Your skillful management has been essential to the productivity gains of the past decade. Your continued commitment is critical as we work to improve what is already the finest postal operation in the world.

I am proud to be associated with you as we face the challenges and opportunities of the 1980's. To meet those challenges and make the most of those opportunities, the Postal Service, as an institution, must be strong and healthy.

Today, I would like to talk with you about a threat to the strength and health of the Postal Service—a threat that could subvert its fundamental mission to serve all Americans. I refer to the current round of proposals to abolish the private express statutes. As you know, these statutes grant the Postal Service a partial monopoly over the delivery of letter mail, to assure the American people of mail delivery throughout the Nation at uniform rates.

A great debate is beginning in America about the future of these private express laws. This debate is erupting in the Congress, in the executive branch, among mailing groups, in the press, on university campuses. The debate is one the Postal Service must join with deadly earnest. As the key officials on the front line of the Postal Service, you must bring home to every community in America the significance of the postal monopoly to our citizens—and the frightening ramifications of eliminating it.

The past few years have seen numerous calls from influential sources to abolish the private express statutes.

In a 1977 report, the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice claimed that private express statutes could no longer be justified and that they should be repealed

"absent very compelling public policy reasons."

In 1981, the Heritage Foundation stated: "The postal monopoly is based upon 19th century concepts which are almost completely inappropriate to today's methods of communication. The postal monopoly . . . should probably be abolished entirely. . . . The long term future of the Postal Service should be reexamined. In a competitive age in which the telephone, not the post, provides essential communications, it is unclear why there should be a publicly owned and supported national document delivery company."

In this Congress, four bills to abolish the private express statutes have been introduced.

A few weeks ago, in testimony before the Joint Economic Committee of the Congress, James Miller, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, challenged the Postal Service to demonstrate that it still deserved the postal monopoly.

I am here today to accept that challenge.

After years of association with the Postal Service—both before and after postal reorganization in 1971—it is my firm conviction that the private express statutes are essential to the public interest as a whole. Those statutes are critical if the Postal Service is to continue to provide universal letter delivery at uniform rates. As the chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, William Ford, has stated, the private express statutes are "the financial underpinning [that the Postal Service] needs to provide reliable service at reasonable rates to every corner of the nation."

The private express statutes do not exist to protect the Postal Service. They exist to protect the mailing public. Their abolition would be costly to our taxpayers, chaotic to our systems of commerce and communications, and corrosive to the fabric of our democracy.

It is important to remember what the private express laws are. Basically, they prohibit anyone except the Postal Service from carrying letters on post roads for compensation.

As a practical matter, what does this mean? The Postal Service monopoly applies only to letter mail. In addition, traditional exemptions from the statutes permit a letter to be sent outside the Postal Service, if the sender uses his own carriers or if the carrier receives no compensation. And the Postal Service has suspended the statutes in particular instances. For example, time-sensitive mail may be carried outside the Postal Service.

The private express laws are an important part of our Nation's history. They have existed in one form or another since the beginning of the American postal system in 1775. The Articles of Confederation expressly granted the Government a monopoly over the delivery of letters. Article 9 provided that:

"The United States in Congress assembled shall . . . have the sole and exclusive right and power of . . . establishing and regulating post-offices from one State to another, throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing thro' the same as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office."

The authority of the Congress over the provision of postal services was preserved in Article I of the Constitution, which provided that "The Congress shall have Power . . . To establish Post Offices and Post Roads."

In the first years of the Republic, the monopoly permitted the postal system to nourish and consolidate the dramatic growth of the American Nation. The number of post offices doubled every three years during the early decades of the Republic, as postal operations expanded from east coast cities to frontier after frontier.

Our first national leaders recognized the importance of this expansion and the monopoly that made it possible. George Washington advocated expansion of the postal network as a means of increasing the bond between the frontier settlers and the East. "These settlers," he said, "are on a pivot and the touch of a feather would turn them away . . . Let us bind these people to us with a chain that can never be broken." The Postal Service provided strong links for that chain. The expansion of the Postal Service to the frontiers of the South and West was funded largely with mail revenues derived from the eastern cities.

These mail revenues also subsidized certain services critical to the development and preservation of our democracy. To assist the flow of information from Members of Congress to the citizens they represented, these revenues subsidized the free delivery of franked correspondence to and from Federal officeholders. To encourage the publication of local newspapers and help assure the vitality of a free press, these revenues made possible the free delivery of newspapers and news pamphlets within each county in America.

By the 1820's, as volume grew, private express companies began circumventing the rather loose postal monopoly laws then in existence. By the early 1840's, up to half of postal volume—undoubtedly the most profitable half—was being carried outside the postal system. Postal deficits grew so large that in 1845, the Congress revised the law to tighten the postal monopoly, and lowered postage rates. In passing the bill, the Congress indicated that the Government should provide service to all areas, even though such service might not be self-supporting. Losses from rural service were to be offset by revenues from more populous areas. The Congress established a uniform rate for nationwide service. New services were introduced, such as free city delivery in 1863, and free rural delivery in 1896. These services, made possible by the postal monopoly, permitted the development of the mail order industry, which helped bring an ever increasing variety of consumer goods to rural America.

The history of our Nation is marked by a series of very pragmatic contracts between the Federal Government and the American people, to bolster our national strength and promote the public welfare. The private express statutes are one of the most successful of these historic contracts. We, the people, agreed to give up a small measure of our individual commercial freedom to secure for ourselves and our country the far greater benefit of nationwide mail service, at uniform rates. If we now default on this historic contract, a small number of businesses might profit, but the American people will lose.

Those who would abolish the private express laws believe that men and women driven by the profit motive can deliver all the mail more efficiently, and at a lower cost, than the Postal Service. This is nonsense, the Postal Service is exactly what the word says—a service—not just a business to be dominated by the desire to take home a profit. Sure, a private business can make a profit by delivering some mail at a lower price in certain easily accessible, densely populated areas. But the consequences for nationwide postal delivery would be disastrous. The universal postal system, as we know it today, would be destroyed.

Scores of private postal operators would spring up in populated areas to offer delivery services for local mail. As smart businessmen, these operators would limit themselves to high-volume, low-cost areas, like Wall Street, and similar downtown business districts. They simply would not bother to deliver mail to high-cost areas such as rural America, less densely populated suburbs, and poor inner-city neighborhoods. They would also not be likely to offer postal consumers conveniences that we have come to rely on, such as window service. No wonder mail service by some of the private operators would be less expensive—they would only provide low-budget delivery service in high-profit areas.

The consequences for the Postal Service would be ominous. This "cream-skimming," as it is called, would take a considerable volume of mail away from the Postal Service. The cost of providing service to rural communities, center-city neighborhoods, and other high-cost areas would skyrocket due to the loss of the urban business volume. The Postal Service would either have to raise its rates dramatically, or more likely, look to the Congress for the lost revenue. The mailers or the taxpayers would be left to bear these costs. If the postal monopoly were eliminated today, and the taxpayers subsidized delivery in nonprofitable areas, the cost of delivering mail to those areas would add $100 billion to the federal deficit by the mid-1990's.

The consequences for the American consumer would be worse, for we would have a balkanized postal service with many delivery systems. In addition to first and second class mail, we would have first and second class communities.

Where does the buck stop under such a balkanized system?

Who accepts the ultimate responsibility for the many services the public has come to expect?

For forwarding the mail when it has to go to another part of the country?

For protecting the privacy of the mail?

For protecting the public against fraud and false advertising?

For handling the huge volumes of foreign mail?

For assuring uniformity of service?

To force the American people to depend on the services of private carriers is to ask them to play Russian roulette with their personal correspondence, their bills, and their financial transactions.

It imposes upon them a crazy quilt system of rates that a genius couldn't keep in his head. If you think that the public has trouble with parcel post rates, just let people try to figure the cost of mailing a letter from New York to Louisville to a rural route outside of Paducah, Ky.—via three different carriers, or two carriers plus the Postal Service.

Having a nationwide system is a clear benefit to the American public and to American business. It justifies a uniform rate for a first class stamp, even if every mailer does not at all times take advantage of the nationwide feature of the system. In putting a first class stamp on his letter, a mailer in New York City or Biloxi, Miss., or Honolulu, Hawaii, can reach anyone in the fifty states from the local mailbox on the nearby street corner. In a world without the private express statutes, the Postal Service simply could not offer such service to everyone at a relatively low uniform price.

Abolition of the private express statutes would have other damaging consequences. The Postal Service's nationwide network would be curtailed, if not abolished. The Federal Government would lose the one contact that most Americans have with the Government on a daily basis. There are over 30,000 post offices in this country, and the Postal Service, through its network of carriers, reaches every point in this land.

Without its nationwide reach, the Postal Service could not provide the Federal Government with such special assistance as selective service registration, or help the FBI and other law enforcement agencies. Programs like "Carrier Alert," where postal carriers check daily on the elderly and handicapped, could not continue. This program has already saved dozens of lives because dedicated mail carriers noticed something wrong at the home of an elderly or handicapped citizen. I doubt whether many private companies, eager to earn a profit on their delivery service, would be interested in conducting such a program.

Other services Americans now take for granted would be likely casualties of a repeal of the private express statutes. The price of the first class stamp covers the cost of forwarding mail in case the addressee has moved. The letter follows the individual until it reaches him. This service is possible under a universal system that can keep track of millions of Americans who change their residences annually. In a balkanized postal world, it is not clear who would be responsible for forwarding mail or who would take mail from one local delivery system to another—and at what surcharge.

And how would international mail be handled? At a time of increasing interdependence, with international communications growing rapidly, predictable and regular communications among Nations are essential. How would foreign postal systems deal with a variety of private postal operations in large cities?

And what about the privacy of mail without a postal monopoly? Today, when someone deposits a check, or letter, or contract in the mail, he is confident that it will not be subject to prying eyes while in the postal system. Indeed, by law, a search warrant issued by a Federal judge is generally required before a first class letter may be opened. As a result, valuable documents and merchandise are placed in the postal system daily without a second thought that they will be opened or stolen in transit. Simply put, the mail is safe, and it is private. In the brave new world of several postal systems, I would be less confident about the security and sanctity of any communication that I might send.

Other services would be in jeopardy. At present, postal inspectors help guard the public against mail fraud and false advertising. These frauds, often directed at the naive and the elderly, frequently involve sophisticated nationwide schemes. Enforcement of mail fraud and false representation laws would be virtually impossible if the unscrupulous could operate among many private mail services. Who would enforce these laws? The private companies would certainly not be interested in maintaining an investigative force that would lower profits. And what authority would any private investigative group have? To whom would any such private investigators be answerable?

It is said that abolition of the private express statutes will lead to competition in the delivery of mail, and that this will hold down postal rates. Competition, however, already exists and is having precisely that effect. The Postal Service is but one supplier of communication services in the fiercely competitive communications market. In that market, the Postal Service's share of all communications has declined from 70 percent in 1900 to less than 20 percent today. Of course, the telephone is our greatest competitor, and it is responsible in large part for our declining share of the communications market. On the horizon, an even more formidable competitor looms—electronic communications. As electronic mail and electronic fund transfers become more common and their costs decline, they will compete for a substantial portion of the business transaction service that we now provide.

These communications alternatives serve to hold down postal prices. They require that the Postal Service be as efficient as possible in providing its universal delivery. For if the Postal Service is to compete with electronic communications services, it must be able to provide mailers with a nationwide network that can reach all the people at the lowest price possible.

You and I know that the U.S. Postal Service remains the most efficient postal system in the world, providing reliable, universal service at uniform rates. We know that the private express statutes are essential if we are to continue to be the best, continue to do our job.

But we must take our message to the American people. We must remind each citizen what a universal postal system means to him and to her. That is why I have come to speak to you today—to urge you to take this message back to every community and every citizen in America.

When you return to your home, remind the citizens in the communities you serve what the Postal Service with its universal delivery system means to them.

It means that any American can send a letter to any part of the country no matter how far away, at a uniform rate.

It means that each American gets the same high delivery standards—whether poor or old, a wealthy businessman or a store-room clerk, or whether he lives in Biloxi, Miss., Harlem in New York City, or at an Alaskan outpost.

It means that the carrier who delivers the mail in your neighborhood is a trusted, reliable employee of an agency of the U.S. Government.

It means that each American can send a private letter, knowing that privacy will be protected as a sacred right.

It means that wherever you live in this Nation, there is a mail carrier who will deliver your letters to you.

It means that when you move to another street, or another city or another State, your important mail will follow you.

It means that you can trace a lost social security check, no matter where in the country you live.

It means that you can be protected from fraudulent mail schemes and false advertising.

If you remind your friends and customers what a universal postal system means to each of them, they will stand with you and with the Board of Governors of U.S. Postal Service. They will join us in the fight to preserve the postal service that has meant so much to the commercial development of this great Nation and the individual liberty of its citizens.●

COMMENTS BY CHARLES McDOWELL ON VIETNAM WAR MEMORIAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. WIRTH) is recognized for 5 minutes.

● Mr. WIRTH. Mr. Speaker, I had the privilege of first visiting the Vietnam War Memorial with a group of Colorado Vietnam veterans on November 12. It was a most moving experience. The sight of 57,939 names on that gleaming black wall was a stunning reminder of the tragedy of that war, and I hope it will help prevent our country from ever becoming involved in such a conflict again.

I watched many veterans and family members of the dead who gathered to look for names of friends, sons, husbands, and brothers in those stark panels which reflected their own faces. I shared a moment with one of the Colorado veterans who held a bouquet below the name of one of those who gave his life in Vietnam—someone who had been his close childhood friend. The monument evoked many such intimate personal responses from all who were touched by the Vietnam war. Despite the controversy surrounding the design, I did not see anyone at the memorial who was unmoved by its painful message, and I would like to commend those dedicated people responsible for its construction.

Many eloquent words have been written about the memorial and the national ceremonies to honor the Vietnam veterans. I would like to commend to my colleagues one particularly beautiful statement—that made by Charles McDowell of the Richmond Times-Dispatch on Washington Week in Review on November 12:

TRANSCRIPT OF REMARKS BY CHARLES McDOWELL OF THE RICHMOND TIME-DISPATCH ON WASHINGTON WEEK IN REVIEW, NOVEMBER 12, 1982

PAUL DUKE: We've had thousands of people streaming into the capital this week, Charlie, to salute and honor some people who have not been saluted and honored before, the veterans of the Vietnam War.

CHARLES McDOWELL: We've had a week of ceremonies to salute those veterans. Vietnam veterans are people who feel as if they've been ignored, indeed disdained, for a very long time. Saturday we will dedicate the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, which is more than a memorial. It seems to me it's a symbol of all our needs to come to terms with that war and to come to terms with ourselves. So on the Mall, with Lincoln and Washington and the great museums of our heritage, we have a new monument for a war we didn't win, a war that wore away at most of the things that hold us together, a war that divided the generations—young and old, and a war that divided the young generation against itself.

Of the people eligible for service in the Vietnam War, far more than half avoided military service. Of the minority that was left, 2 million of them went to Vietnam and they took the casualties of body and in spirit. They were largely the poor, the black, the less sophisticated among us, perhaps can be said. In any case, they weren't in college. Because they weren't in college, they weren't deferred from being killed, is a harsh way to put it. Many were responding just to a call to duty of their country. Few probably knew a lot about the more sophisticated notion that a government can be wrong, and a government can be tragically wrong, and if it's wrong enough, resistance becomes moral; that was probably more than some of those people got into. In any case, the bitterness of the division of that generation left its mark on all of us to this day. A monument to a national trauma like that is necessarily somewhat ambiguous. It seems to me that in this monument's ambiguity—ambiguity—there's truth, and the simple truth is to be found in 57,939 names carved in a black marble wall. Those are the dead, and those are the first things to remember when you remember Vietnam.

CHARLES CORDRY: Charlie, there's been in my memory hardly as much controversy about anything in this city as about what this memorial's shape would be. It seems a little obvious to me that you've been down there looking at it. What do you make of it?

CHARLES McDOWELL: Charlie, it's an amazing place. It causes a tremendous quiet to come over you even if you've come to dislike it or like it. A lot of that memorial is what you've been through. I think that's probably proper. It's a 500-foot wall; it's angled like a PFC stripe; it's black granite—one of the most reflective substances in the world. As you look at it, at 58 thousand names, you realize the reflections you're seeing. You do see the Washington Monument; you do see the Lincoln Memorial. You see earth and sky and grass and trees. And if you look more closely you see the people looking at the names as clearly as you see the names. You see old couples holding hands; you see buddies from Vietnam taking pictures, or touching the monument—or crying. You see a man rolling a wheel-chair 500 feet, the length of that monument, and if you're low enough to look up as I was, he's moving across the sky itself. A lot happens there. Always one thing is constant in these images that change—57,939 names.●

"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

Year: 19.....

REPORT

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

P	QUARTER

(Mark one square only)

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
  - (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
  - (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

QUARTERLY REPORTS*

The following quarterly reports were submitted for the third calendar quarter 1982:

(NOTE.—The form used for reporting is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective headings.)

FILE ONE COPY WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE AND FILE TWO COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

"QUARTERLY" REPORT: To indicate which one of the four calendar quarters is covered by this Report, place an "X" below the appropriate figure. Fill out both page 1 and page 2 and as many additional pages as may be required. The first additional page should be numbered as page "3," and the rest of such pages should be "4," "5," "6," etc. Preparation and filing in accordance with instructions will accomplish compliance with all quarterly reporting requirements of the Act.

Year: 19.....

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee," state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
  - (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
  - (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) If the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports.

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

AFFIDAVIT

[Omitted in printing]

NOTE ON ITEM "D."—(a) In General. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—Section 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(i) In General. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in accordance with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multipurpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(i) In General. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

QUARTERLY REPORTS*

*All alphanumeric characters and monetary amounts refer to receipts and expenditures on page 2, paragraphs D and E of the Quarterly Report Form.

The following reports for the second calendar quarter of 1982 were received too late to be included in the published reports for that quarter:

(NOTE.—The form used for reporting is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective headings.)

FILE ONE COPY WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE AND FILE TWO COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

"PRELIMINARY" REPORT ("Registration"): To "register," place an "X" below the letter "P" and fill out page 1 only.

Year: 19.....

REPORT

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

P	QUARTER
	1st	2d	3d	4th

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:

- (i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
- (ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
- (b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
  - (i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
  - (ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:

1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§ 302(e).

(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports,

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

AFFIDAVIT

[Omitted in printing]

NOTE ON ITEM "D."—(a) In General. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—Section 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(i) In General. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in accordance with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multipurpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(i) In General. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

Fill in every blank. If the answer to any numbered item is "None," write "None" in the space following the number.
